SENATE VOTE BARS ALL WHISKY

SPY SUSPECT MUST LEAVE U. S. AT ONCE

Old German Agent, Now Swiss Aid, Is Ousted.

Washington, D. C., July 6.—[Special.]—The first tangible result of the drive against German agents in this country materialized tonight when it became known that Heinrich Schaafhausen, whom Count von Bernstorff named to be retained by the Swiss legation when the United States severed diplomatic relations with Germany, will leave the United States within the next few hours at the instance of the state department.

Schaafhausen's enforced departure may be accepted as the first move by this government to rid the diplomatic corps of persons the United States has reason to believe are active in the interest of Germany. It is the result of five months of investigation by the government's secret agents.

DUTIES WERE IN DOUBT.

Schaafhausen is a German subject who was formerly employed by Count von Bernstorff in a confidential capacity. His precise connection with the embassy and his activities have always been more or less of a mystery, but he was supposed to have assisted Von Papen and Boy-Ed in the perfection of some of their so-called military plots.

When Count von Bernstorff was sent home he asked Schaafhausen to be retained by Dr. Paul Ritter, the Swiss minister, who has since been recalled because this government looked upon him as pro-German. Schaafhausen was familiar with the routine affairs of the German embassy, hence he would be of great assistance in helping the Swiss minister look after the odds and ends of the Kaiser's affairs in this country.

ENVOY FINAL ARBITER.

The head of a friendly mission, like Dr. Ritter was, is supposed to be the arbiter of the men he employs, and the state department has consistently refrained from requesting that Schaafhausen be invited to leave the country.

Recent developments, however, have satisfied the administration that military necessity should not be tempered by diplomatic delicacies, and as a result Schaafhausen is to depart from our shores.

FEAR USE OF CODE.

The Swiss legation, like all neutral nations, has the privilege of using cable codes. In normal times an employé like Schaafhausen probably would not have access to code books, but this government fears that his presence in the legation might place him in a position to assist the fatherland by sending messages to Switzerland for transmission to Germany.

Schaafhausen has been shadowed almost continuously by agents of the government. He could not be directly connected with any of the groups who are active in Germany's interests, but Counsellor Polk of the state department, and others insisted that it will be unwise to allow him to remain in a privileged legation.

OTHERS ARE TO FOLLOW.

It is understood that Schaafhausen's departure is the forerunner of a general exodus of alien enemies who are or have been employed by neutral legations.

Reports that the state department is disturbed because of the presence in Washington of the Turkish and Bulgarian diplomatic staffs may be discounted. The department considers them legations harmless. It keeps a close tab on every movement they make and they have virtually no communication with their governments. Their diplomatic immunities have been reduced to a minimum.

NO CHANGE ON CENSOR.

Reports that the cabinet would attempt to evolve some scheme for coordinating the various secret services of the government appear groundless. The chief difficulty in this plan is the fact that legislation would be needed and the president does not desire to enter into any more tussles with congress just now.

To meet this condition the cabinet officers in supreme charge of the agencies have agreed that they would all work together under the direction of Counselor Polk of the state department. This system has been working to the satisfaction of the government.

It is believed here that the information sent out by spies reaches Berlin because of the faulty system of censorship cov-

GIVES FORECAST OF PEACE TERMS GERMANY SEEKS

Hollweg May Say No Annexations Are to Be Demanded.

BULLETIN.

AMSTERDAM, July 6.—According to the Deutsche Tages Zeitung, Herr Wolfgang Heine, a well known reichstag deputy, speaking at Cologne, said he had recently had a conversation with the imperial chancellor. As a result he could tell them that the chancellor was prepared to conclude a peace without annexation in the west or east and without indemnities.

QUIT HOPES OF RUSSIA.

LONDON, July 6.—Declarations which will serve as a basis for peace negotiations will be made by the German chancellor, Dr. von Bethmann-Hollweg, in his coming speech before the reichstag, according to German sources of information at The Hague, as quoted by the Central News correspondent there.

This changed attitude is said to be the outcome of the conviction that all hopes of a separate peace with Russia must be abandoned, and that a Russian offensive must be faced.

The chancellor's speech will probably be delivered tomorrow, an Exchange Telegraph company dispatch from Copenhagen says.

The Copenhagen correspondent hears that the reichstag Socialists will make their support of the new war loan dependent upon the situation developed by the debate.

Puts Blame on Entente.

BERLIN, July 6.—The reichstag was opened yesterday with a speech by the president, who said that a "shocking amount of misery and distress would be spared the world if Germany's enemies had agreed to the magnanimous peace offer of Emperor William and his allies to find a peace which would preserve the honor and the interests of all nations."

Saxons Grow Angry.

COPENHAGEN, July 6.—A dispatch from Dresden says the Saxon diet, which on Tuesday warned the government of a "disappearance of the sentiment of loyalty toward the king and also of a coming upheaval unless the government mend its ways, has now broken openly with the government. This action is a consequence of the refusal of Count von Vitzchum d'Eckstadt, premier of Saxony, to authorize the diet committee on constitutional reform to continue its labors during recess.

BARELEG GIRLS CAUSE BRITISH CAPTAIN TO FLEE

St. Louis, Mo., July 6.—[Special.]—Capt. F. C. Desumichrast, 73 years old, English army officer and a former Harvard professor, who is in St. Louis to make several addresses on England's side of the war and war conditions in general, could not reconcile bare legged cabaret with patriotism. He departed abruptly, without having delivered his scheduled address, from a banquet of the Rotary club at Sappington inn, St. Louis county, last night.

"I was asked," the captain said today, "to speak on war. Naturally, I felt that the question was a serious one and demanded a serious hearing.

"The first part of the program was a military tableau of the spirit of 1917 and was very interesting. Then came a group of young women in disgracefully scant attire who danced and sang and sat on the laps of the men, hugging them and acting in a most disgusting manner.

"I turned to the chairman and said: 'This hurts me mentally and physically and feel that I cannot stay any longer.' I went out of the room."

CRIPPLED GIRL A BOTHER; SLAIN; TWO WOMEN HELD

St. Johnsbury, Vt., July 6.—Olive Bradshaw, a crippled child, was killed because she was a bother to her father's housekeeper, Miss Etta May Hicks, according to admissions the authorities say they obtained today from Miss Hicks and her neighbor, Mrs. Alvin Kenniston.

The child, who was 8 years old, had been missing since yesterday. Both women were arrested tonight and it was announced they are being held for the grand jury.

The body of the girl has not been found, although it is alleged one of the women said it had been placed under a rock pile. A search failed to show any trace of the body.

According to State's Attorney Campbell and Sheriff Worthen, both women admit Miss Hicks struck the girl with a club while Mrs. Kenniston choked her.

COL. ROOSEVELT AND GOMPERS CLASH ON RIOT

Row Almost Breaks Up Welcome to Russians.

New York, July 6.—[Special.]—Starting auspiciously with a public welcome amazing in its spontaneity, the greeting of New York City to the Russian war mission ended tonight in hostilities between Col. Theodore Roosevelt and Samuel Gompers, president of the American Federation of Labor.

Before an audience that filled Carnegie hall to overflowing, at the mass-meeting which marked the end of the day's program, these two men for a few minutes went at each other in a way that caused the eyes of the visitors to open in astonishment, the crowd to gasp, then take sides, and finally to become thoroughly disorderly. The members of the mayor's reception committee looked on, much embarrassed.

CLASH ON NEGRO MASSACRE.

The clash was over the East St. Louis riots. Col. Roosevelt demanded that the government "stop murder." Then Mr. Gompers took up cudgels for organised labor, alleging it was innocent and that capital was guilty. Col. Roosevelt denounced the spirit that would excuse in any one section the element of the rioting community.

Mayor Mitchel succeeded in getting order out of chaos by reminding the audience that the purpose of the gathering was the welcoming of the Russians. Finally he made it possible for the new Russian ambassador, Boris A. Bakhmetieff, to make the speech he had prepared, while Mr. Roosevelt and Mr. Gompers, sitting just behind him, glared at each other.

"STOP MURDER FIRST."

The mayor had introduced Mr. Roosevelt as the chief speaker with glowing phrases and the crowd had yelled for "Teddy" as usual. With his manuscript in his hand the colonel departed from his prepared text and brought up the East St. Louis riots.

"Before I greet the envoys of the new republic," Col. Roosevelt said, "I wish to say a word to you in regard to something that has recently occurred inside our own boundaries.

"Before we speak of justice to others it behooves us to do justice within our own boundaries. I refer to the race riots in East St. Louis, a race riot for which, so far as we can see, there was no provocation and which resulted in such appalling brutality as to leave a stain on the American name.

PUNISH THE MURDERERS.

"It behooves us to express our condemnation of acts that give the lie to our words within the limits of our own country and to say that it is impossible that there should be justification for mob violence. It is our duty to demand that the governmental authorities shall use with ruthless severity every power at their command to punish those guilty of murder whether committed by whites against blacks or whether by blacks against whites.

"It is our duty to insist, first of all, on the restoration of order and the reign of law. Upon the foundation of law and order we must build the structure of justice."

Mr. Roosevelt then welcomed the Russian commission.

GOMPERS BLAMES EMPLOYERS.

When the colonel had concluded his prepared speech the mayor introduced Mr. Gompers, and the latter told a little story to the effect that had he his own way he would say, "That's my sentiment" and sit down. Then he turned at once to the East St. Louis matter and said he would yield to none in expressing detestation of acts of violence.

Mr. Gompers declared that many laboring men are in much the same position as Russians under the old régime. He read a telegram which he said he had received tonight from the president of the Federation of Labor of Illinois. This message purported to explain the origin of the East St. Louis riots. It asserted that instead of labor unions being responsible for them they resulted from employers enticing Negroes from the south to the city "to break the back of labor."

He said the corporations which brought in the Negroes were warned that trouble might follow, but they went on shipping them in, and no provisions whatever, for caring for them were

LOLITA ARMOUR GETS $300,000 GIFT BY FATHER

Cudahy Also Gives His Daughter $150,000.

Miss Lolita Ogden Armour was handed a little gift—some $300,000 worth—yesterday by her father, J. Ogden Armour, and by this gift becomes mistress of the property at Sixty-third street and South Park avenue, upon which stands White City. The property was conveyed for a consideration of $10 "and natural love and affection."

Held Under Lease.

The property is held by the White City company under a ninety-eight year lease at an annual rental of $10,000 for the first eighteen months; $12,000 for the next seventeen years; $15,000 for the next thirty-one years, and for 5 per cent of its fair cash valuation, not to be less than $15,000 a year, for the succeeding forty-nine years.

Gift to Miss Cudahy.

Another gift from father to daughter of handsome proportions was that of Edward A. Cudahy, to his daughter, Mrs. Austin Niblack, of a lot in Oakdale avenue, east of Sheridan road, in the new residential section north of Lincoln park. Mr. Cudahy is to construct a residence to cost $100,000 on the property. The total amount of the gift is said to be $150,000. At the same time Mr. Cudahy bought from Mrs. Elizabeth Ward, widow of Montgomery Ward, property in Wellington street upon which he is expected to build a residence for himself to cost $100,000.

1 DEAD, 2 HURT AS FUNERAL CAR AND AUTO CRASH

One man was killed, two others were cut and bruised, and seven persons, among them three small children, narrowly escaped a funeral pyre shaken to life yesterday when two automobiles collided at South Hannah avenue and Harvard street, Forest Park.

The dead:

B. S. Sandfelder of 5440 Cornell avenue, manager at 180 West Adams street, member of the Illinois Athletic club.

Injured:

A. R. Rankin, chauffeur for Sandfelder; cut and bruised.

A. R. Sandfelder of 5440 Cornell avenue, brother of the dead man; cut and bruised.

Sandfelder's car was being driven south in Hannah avenue. He and his brother were seated in the rear. Kirby, driving the limousine containing the funeral party, was going east in Harvard avenue.

Before Kirby could stop his car it had struck Sandfelder's automobile, overturning it. B. S. Sandfelder was caught beneath the heavy touring car and killed instantly. His brother and the chauffeur were hurled to the pavement.

A coroner's jury yesterday recommended that the driver of a motorcycle which knocked down and injured Jacob Spier, 72 years old, a gardener, 913 Oakdale avenue, at Sheffield and Oakdale avenues July 2, be apprehended and held to the grand jury on a charge of manslaughter. The motorcyclist did not stop after the accident.

CEDAR LAKE, IND., RESORTS RAIDED

Under orders from the Lake county, Ind., grand jury, which sat in Gary, the sheriff yesterday raided eight roadhouses at Cedar Lake, Ind.

Seven keepers were each fined $25 and costs for having slot machines in their places by Justice Levi Bailey of Crown Point; three women were fined $20 each as inmates of disorderly resorts, and Robert Russell, Edward Morarity, and John Kennedy were bound over to the grand jury on charges of operating disorderly resorts.

Cedar Lake, it has been charged, is the new home of vicious resorts since some of the places nearer Chicago have been closed. Morarity formerly was known in the levee district of Burnham, Ill.

Police Just Can't Solve Terrible Park Mystery!

Riverview park's mystery shooting early yesterday morning continued to puzzle the police up to a late hour last night, despite the fact that the victim and another man and a woman alleged to be concerned in it were held in cells all day in the hope that they would reveal it. The victim is Bernard Ford of 5736 Drexel avenue, an electrician employed in the park. The other two held are Daniel Moriarity and Miss "Billy" La Verne, both of whom work in the park, "Bug House." Ford was shot in the leg and Moriarity and Miss La Verne, who were found by the police near the scene of the shooting were taken in custody soon afterward.

Bride of George J. Gould Ran Boston Dance Studio

Boston, Mass., July 6.—[Special.]—Miss Laura M. Carter, the latest bride in a world love marriage, is a Boston girl. For several years she maintained a dance studio in the Back Bay, and appeared in exhibition dances at the Copley-Plaza with her partner, Zenas Crocker Jr. Mrs. Margaret Carter, mother of the bride, lives at 141 West Newton street, South End. Young George Jay Gould practically duplicated the romance of his father, who came to Boston many years ago and married Edith Kingdon, a beautiful member of the Boston theater stock company.

New Governor of Belgium Reported Dangerously Ill

AMSTERDAM, July 6.—It is reported by Les Nouvelles of Maastricht that Gen. von Falkenhausen, governor-general of Belgium, is dangerously ill and that hope of his recovery has been abandoned.

AND NOW SHE'S WIFE OF HUDSON BAY WOODSMAN

With Madelaine Sullivan it's heigh, ho, rockin, and away for the wide spaces and the open road. Once the romantic ideal of an Indian chief, next the bomber wife of a business man, she is now the bride of Albert A. Campbell, Hudson Bay trapper, scout, woodsman, and winner of the dog team marathon that was run from Winnipeg to St. Paul last winter.

Miss Sullivan, who began to achieve distinction in 1911 when she disappeared from her home at 820 Crescent place to eat jerked fish in the smoky wikiup of Chief Plenty Hawk on a Wyoming reservation, declared herself through with such doings when she returned and settled down to the sedate life of a Chicago flat dweller. She became the wife of Buford Mott, a business man, and until December, 1915, continued so, being divorced because the life was tedious.

In St. Paul last winter Miss Sullivan, she having resumed her maiden name, beheld with quivering nerves the finish of the dog race and saw the steel sinewed northmen plunging down out of the Canadian snows. Her heart turned a somersault, and Campbell, the winner, was her hero.

They were married last Saturday, Mrs. Campbell's mother admitted last night. And they have gone into the land of the whispering pines and the borealis. There in a chinked cabin they will draw up to the crackling wood fire and list to the howl of the wind in the forests.

BARBER CHAIR ALARMS WOMEN WHO FACE GUNS

PETROGRAD, July 6.—Russian women who took the stern oath to do or die when they joined the "Legion of Death" had a hard time making up their minds to cut their hair short, man fashion.

And Petrograd agreed today that it was this cropped head idea that made the women fighters embarrassed as they paraded yesterday—the first time in history, probably, that an active fighting force of women, trained and ready for the front, was formally received into the ranks of a nation's warriors. The feminine fighters were more embarrassed by the loss of their hair than by the trousers they wore.

The "Legion of Death" is composed of 400 university students and society girls. They wear a uniform exactly like the Russian soldier. They paraded yesterday through the Nevski Prospekt.

HINDENBURG TO LEAD DRIVE ON RUSSIAN LINES

BY MILDRED FARWELL.

[SPECIAL CABLE TO CHICAGO TRIBUNE.]

PETROGRAD, July 6.—[Special.]—Russia has thrown down the gauntlet to Germany at the suggestion of the United States. The July offensive has begun and signal successes have crowned the drives of the Russian armies in several sectors of the eastern front. But it is too early yet for rejoicing, for there still is some fraternising at the front between men of the Russian and German armies.

Moreover, the turn of events is expected to bring a bitter counter attack by Germany. Until the Russians took the offensive, there was no occasion for the kaiser to attack. Now, since the United States has taken a hand in the situation, the Germans are massing vast forces on the Riga-Dvinsks front. Here a real struggle impends. Von Hindenburg has arrived to superintend German operations. Summer weather conditions are ideal for an invading army and some uneasiness has arisen in official circles of Petrograd.

Red Has Same Effect on Him It Has on Male Cow

Ann Roth, 281 Elmwood avenue, told Judge Thomson yesterday that her husband's aversion to red dresses and his consequent ill treatment and beatings were the grounds on which she asked a divorce. She accused John of saying no "decent woman would wear it" when he saw her making a red dress. Then he tore it up and gave her a whipping, she said. She was granted a decree.

PUTS LID UPON BONDED SPIRITS AND IMPORTS

Defeats Proposal to Include Both Beer and Wines.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.

Washington, D. C., July 6.—[Special.]—The senate today in two separate votes went on record as favoring prohibition of the consumption as well as the manufacture of whisky or other distilled liquors during the duration of the war. It tentatively adopted an amendment to the food control bill offered by Senator Cummins of Iowa, which provided:

"No distilled liquors or spirits now in bond in the United States shall, during the existing war, be withdrawn to be used as beverages, nor shall there be imported into the United States during the said war any distilled spirits."

SEPARATE VOTES TAKEN.

The two provisions in the amendment were voted on separately. The one forbidding the withdrawal for beverage purposes of spirits now in bond was passed, 48 to 40. The clause forbidding the importation of spirits was passed, 68 to 18.

The wet forces are making a desperate fight on the proposal. Tomorrow they will attempt to eliminate the entire amendment from consideration, when the bill is reported. Failing that, the senate requires tonight was a compromise agreement by Senator Reed which would authorize the president to permit withdrawal of distilled spirits from the bonded warehouses if he believes it in the public interest.

REFUSE TO INCLUDE BEER.

Earlier the senate defeated a "bone dry" proposal which would have barred the manufacture of beers and wines as well as distilled liquors. The proposal was offered by Senator Myers of Montana. It is in the form of an amendment to the "Robinson compromise," which has been incorporated in the food bill and which forbids the use of foodstuffs in the manufacture of whisky or other distilled liquors. The Myers amendment sought to include "all malt, fermented, and vinous beverages."

The amendment was defeated by a vote of 52 to 34.

MAY DELAY WHOLE BILL.

The renewal of the prohibition fight may prevent success of the plans of the administration for a final vote upon the food bill as a whole next Wednesday or Thursday.

Many senators expressed their disapproval of the Cummins amendment, which they declared proposed virtual confiscation of $20,000,000 gallons of distilled beverages in bond without conserving any grain. They pointed out that the government would lose next year between $250,000,000 and $300,000,000 in taxes, and asserted that banks with loans upon distilled spirits might be put out of business.

Senator Stone of Missouri threatened that if the Cummins amendment was retained in the bill he and other senators would filibuster against the passage of the entire food control bill for many days to come.

Senator Underwood of Alabama, Senator Penrose of Pennsylvania, and Senator Harding of Ohio attacked the Cummins amendment on the ground that it took away property without due process of law.

Senator Underwood said he believed the Supreme court would declare such an act unconstitutional. He warned that the destruction of $300,000,000 of property, which he claims would follow the adoption of the Cummins amendment, might create a financial panic.

WANTS FIRST ISSUE SOLVED.

When Senator Harding made the argument that it was unjust to prohibit the use of the distilled spirits in bond because it took away property without due process of law or compensation, Senator Sherman replied:

"I will vote to settle the property rights involved in this amendment in its own time and place if given the opportunity. I want the question of whether a sober nation is a better in war freed from the entangling questions on property right, and that is what the senate has voted this day.

"I am looking in the faces of senators on the majority side of this chamber whose ancestors saw vanish over night by the signature of an executive pen countless millions of property that was as moved as the property of a whisky barrel."

DISTILLERS MUST WAIT.

Senator Harding suggested that Lincoln had proposed that the men of the south be compensated for the loss of their slaves.

"Yes," Senator Sherman replied, "and it was rejected by certain of the states to which the proposition was made. Is a distillery more sacred than a human soul, in peace or in war? If your ancestors in certain states lost millions by the proclamation of emancipation can you not stand sincere to your convictions and continue to vote here that the holders of stocks in distilleries of whisky may abide the results of this amendment and trust hereafter to legislation to pay for the property values involved?"

Senator Williams suggested there was a difference between confiscating the property of an enemy and that of a citizen.

"There is," Mr. Sherman replied, "but it is a distinction without a difference. Today the man who will pour liquid hell fire into a soldier's bosom is a public enemy. He is infinitely worse than the man who raised the standard of revolt."

Chicago Names Upset Him.

The debate was dramatic at times and at other times the senators and the occupants of the galleries rocked with laughter. Senator Sherman had read into the record two telegrams from Chicago pleading with the senate not to prohibit the poor man's beer. Each telegram was signed with a score of names, over the pronunciation of which the reading clerk almost dislocated his jaw.

When Senator Phelan of California, patron of wines and beer, deserted the "wets," and voted with Senator Cummins to prevent the use of distilled spirits during the war, Senator Penrose of Pennsylvania convulsed the senate by offering an amendment which would prohibit the manufacture of brandies for the fortifying of sweet wines.

"I offer this amendment," Senator Penrose said, "merely to show how statesmanlike the senator from California really is. It is unfortunate that whisky in bond is not located in California, or it might, too, have the senator's support."

The senate overwhelmingly voted down the Penrose amendment. Senator Penrose himself voting "no," chuckling as he did so.

Norris "Bone Dry" Appeal.

Senator Norris, in arguing for a "bone dry" nation in war time, said the whole question is one of saving 45,000,000 bushels of barley, 15,500,000 bushels of corn, and 2,000,000 bushels of rice used every year in the manufacture of beer.

"We are engaged in a war and we all want to win," he said. "We are willing to make all kinds of sacrifices in order that we may win. That widow must give up her son to be sacrificed, the wife must surrender the husband. Every one is called upon to sacrifice, to eat less, to give up all luxuries in order that the food for the army and navy and those who are laboring to sustain and supply the army may be conserved.

"Why is it that we shall demand of all of our people these sacrifices, and yet when it comes to the manufacture of beer we shall apply a different rule? Why should not those who make beer be called upon to suspend their operations in order that the food that is used in the manufacture of beer may be utilized for sustaining human life?"

ASK PRESIDENT FOR NORTH SHORE BONE DRY ZONE

Territory within fifteen miles of Fort Sheridan and the Great Lakes Naval Training station will be "bone dry" if President Wilson acts favorably on the petition that has been sent to him by the Universal Military Training League of Chicago. Another petition directed to Secretary of War Baker asks for the removal of all disorderly houses in the vicinity of training camps of the country.

The petitions are signed by H. H. Gross, president; Frank G. Logan, chairman of the executive committee; John J. Mitchell, treasurer; John V. Farwell, W. P. Clow, O. T. Wilson, George W. Dixon, and Albert N. Eastman.

Officials of the organization acted at the request of citizens of Highland Park, Lake Forest, and other north shore towns, who claim that an undesirable element is coming in as a result of the training camps at Fort Sheridan and Great Lakes. Among the towns that will be affected by the "bone dry" order, if promulgated, is Waukegan.

PRICE OF FLOUR HIGHER IN U. S. THAN ENGLAND

Washington, D. C., July 6.—[Special.]—Wholesale prices of flour are higher in the United States than in England, according to comparisons made and announced by government officials.

Comparisons were made between Minneapolis wholesale prices and English prices, for June of the indicated years showing that:

Minneapolis prices per barrel were $8.44 in June, 1915; $5.93, June, 1916, and $14.79, June, 1917, while English prices for the corresponding periods were $8.52, $7.49, and $10.32.

Flour Mills to Aid U. S.

Minneapolis, Minn., July 6.—Plans for uniting the 7,000 flour mills of the country to aid the government in its task of food distribution are now being worked out, according to an announcement today by James F. Bell, Minneapolis flour man, who is chairman of the United States millers' committee formed by request of Herbert C. Hoover, public food administrator.

Naval Reserve Officers Ordered to Annapolis

Washington, D. C., July 6.—[Special.]—Nearly two hundred officers of the naval reserve forces, most of them ensigns, but a few junior lieutenants, have been ordered to the naval academy for a special course in seamanship, navigation, ordnance, and gunnery. Instructions will begin next Monday and continue until Sept. 15. Those from the middle west who will take the course are: Ninth, Tenth, and Eleventh naval districts, Great Lakes, Ill.; William Frederic Kurfess, Donald Ryerson, Wellesley Stillwell, Elmer J. Stoffel, Arthur M. Tschirgi, Conant Wait, H. C. Nichols.

Fire Damages French Ship.

BORDEAUX, July 6.—A fire broke out today among some moving picture films in the forward part of a steamship in dock. The flames badly damaged the upper structure of the ship and spread to the merchandise on the wharf. The conflagration was extinguished after considerable loss. An official inquiry has been opened into the cause of the fire.

LIQUOR DEALERS SEE GRAVE PERIL IN NEW DRY BILL

Will Cost Nation Millions and Ruin Business, They Say.

Liquor dealers are doubtful if the Cummins amendment will be finally adopted, but they said last night that if it is incorporated in the war measure now pending in congress an array of mahogany bars, polished mirrors, and glassware will soon be useless. Charles H. Hermann, president of Chapin & Gore, called the amendment "frenzied legislation."

"I do not believe the amendment will be adopted by congress," said Frank A. Rehm, vice president and treasurer of Grommes & Ulrich. "If it does pass it will stop sales completely. That is all there is to it."

Fears General Disturbance.

Mr. Hermann fears a general disturbance of business conditions if the national thirst goes unquenched.

"This amendment, if adopted," he said, "would practically confiscate 220,000,000 gallons of spirits in warehouses, upon which many banks have made loans. There is only from twelve to fourteen months' supply now on hand, and if this could be used the liquor interests would have time to readjust themselves. I doubt if anything of the sort will go through both houses of congress.

"Under the new war tax the loss to the United States by cutting off revenues from spirits would amount to $600,000,000 annually. There are nearly 7,000 saloons in Chicago alone, where between 35,000 and 40,000 men and women are employed by breweries and liquor interests. There will be nearly 7,000 vacant stores here if this amendment wins out."

Kentucky Sees Peril.

Dispatches from Louisville, Ky., sent last night in answer to inquiries from THE TRIBUNE, stated that the passage of the Cummins amendment would mean a loss to the government this year of more than $33,000,000 from Kentucky alone. There are now 121,000,000 gallons of whisky in Kentucky warehouses.

Stanley Bronner of Louisville, editor of the Wine and Spirit Bulletin, said: "The passage of this amendment would ruin the distilleries and the bonding companies."

William Bonnie of Bonnie Bros., Louisville, said: "The Cummins amendment, if it should go through, would mean the end of the distilling business in Kentucky."

Adolph Woolner, manager of the whisky trust interests in Peoria, said he did not believe congress would prohibit the use of spirits now in bond. "The distillers are willing to stop the manufacture of intoxicating liquors for beverage the moment the president requests it," he said. Prices would be raised immediately, he added.

FACTIONS OPEN CIVIL WAR FOR CHINA RULE

PEKING, July 6.—Fighting began yesterday at Lang-Fang, about thirty-five miles southeast of Peking, between the troops of Gen. Chang Hsun, supporter of the monarchy, and the forces of the republicans. The railway was torn up.

The situation in the capital is becoming serious. Trains are filled with fleeing Chinese going to Tientsin. The hotels are full of foreigners. Small American and Japanese forces are endeavoring to come from Tientsin, but their arrival may be delayed by the fighting at Lang-Fang, where 5,000 of the troops of Gen. Chang Hsun are opposing an advance guard of 20,000 republicans.

The position of Gen. Chang Hsun apparently is hopeless. It is feared that when this is realized his troops will loot Peking. The legations are prepared for all eventualities.

Three thousand imperialist troops and 1,000 Chang Hsun soldiers have taken position astride the Peking-Hankow railway, four miles from this city, ready to oppose 10,000 troops commanded by Tsao-Kun, who have reached a point twenty-five miles from Pekin.

ROOT PRESENTS $2,500 TO THE RUSS SOLDIERS

PETROGRAD, July 6.—Elihu Root, head of the American mission to Russia, has donated $2,500 to the soldiers of Moscow. He was formally thanked for the gift by the mayor of the city.

Maj. Gen. Scott at Jassy.

JASSY, Roumania, July 6.—Maj. Gen. Hugh L. Scott, chief of staff of the United States army, with other military members of the American mission to Russia, has arrived here from the Russian front. The Americans were welcomed formally at the house of parliament, where addresses of welcome were delivered by Premier Bratiano and other ministers.

In reply Gen. Scott said he had received from the Roumanian ministers and the Roumanian general staff a report concerning the needs of the Roumanian army and that his mission would use all possible energy in order to see that these needs were satisfied.

Coal Producers Reduce Prices to Agreed Figures

Washington, D. C., July 6.—[Special.]—Members of the committee on coal production of the council of national defense asserted today that the great majority of the coal producers of the country are living up to the voluntary maximum price agreement for bituminous coal reached at the conference here last week with Secretary Lane and the federal trade commission.

Investigation by the federal trade commission into the cost of producing bituminous coal is progressing rapidly, and a report is expected on the subject in a fortnight. The commission will turn over its findings to government departments.

Don't Muzzle U. S. Press, Plea of Northcliffe; Explains How England Rid Country of Spies

Washington, D. C., July 6.—Lord Northcliffe, head of the British missions in this country, today authorized publication of parts of a confidential speech on spies and censorship made to the National Press club July 4. He described the work of spies in England and the flood of fatal information that pours over the cables through neutral countries to Germany and spoke of the dangers of any except technical military and naval censorship of the press.

Only twice in the last month, Lord Northcliffe said, had he seen anything published in American newspapers that might have been of value to the enemy. The address follows:

"What does not yet seem to be understood here, and what we did not understand at the beginning of the war, is that the really deadly high explosive news is not newspaper news but the news sent out by spies in code in neutral countries for transmission to Germany.

Find Spies by Checking.

"Admitted that the task of examining hundreds of thousands of cables a day is difficult and costly; admitted that keen brains are required in large numbers for the task, the brains are here in abundance and the outgoing cables can easily be coordinated so that all cables addressed to the same names abroad and even to the same towns abroad come under the eyes of the same censors week after week. It is by means of checking back cables addressed from England to neutral countries that we have caught many of our spies.

"It is not difficult for spies to get news. Their task is the delivery of the goods and that task they concentrate.

"Now that ocean travel has become so difficult, now that the British mail censor has perfected his methods, the enemy spy working in your midst is thrown back entirely on the cable and one or two steamer routes.

Mail Censorship Needed.

"I do not know whether you have a mail censorship on letters to Spain, but I venture to think that if you have not and start opening letters to that country you will get as rich a haul of information as our secret service department did out of the censoring of American letters to Europe.

"The cable censor must be remorseless if he finds constant domestic telegrams going to one particular place. At the risk of disturbing happy homes he must hold up or destroy the cables. A world of meaning can be concealed behind the words 'Mother better,' or 'Mother going to seashore.' Many complaints will come from business men as to detention of their messages, but business men of standing can easily satisfy the cable authorities, and, in any case, the main business at the present time is war, and lives are more important than business losses.

System Long Established.

"We, in England, were loath to believe in the existence of an extensive German spy system in our midst until strange happenings by land and sea proved that their spy preparations, firmly established in England years before the war, were just as efficient as all their other preparations.

"The German spies are divided into five or six classes, working independently of each other.

"There is the business spy, whose work is the gathering of information, personal and otherwise. An establishment called Schimmelpfennigs opened out in England, purporting to be something like your Bradstreet's or Dun, but really with the object of ascertaining the capacity for making guns, munitions, and what not of every plant in England, together with any other information that might be useful to Germany when she went to war.

"A second form of spying was organized by the German consuls in Great Britain, who collected information by means of hotel waiters, barbers, governesses, and domestic servants, to whom they paid comparatively small sums monthly.

Germans Purchase Hotels.

"In naval and military towns the German government provided Germans with capital with which to open and purchase hotels. All this was done through the consuls.

"Then there was a series of spies organized by the famous department which had its headquarters in Brussels. These were spies who moved about in a good social circle as a rule, picking up any information they could get. When it came to picking up information as to British psychology they got it all wrong, for it has been notorious that, almost without exception, they reported to Berlin that Great Britain would not go to war.

"Members of this class of spy were entirely unknown to each other and only known to headquarters by numbers. They were paid a minimum of $3,000 and a maximum of $12,000 a year and were usually engaged in some other kind of work—very often insurance work, very often as traveling salesmen. Quite a number of them were women. Out of respect for their sex, among the spies we have shot at the tower of London the women have been exempted and sent to long terms of imprisonment."

Tells Story of Carl Lody.

"Further, there were the military and the naval spies. This kind of spying is regarded as legitimate among all nations. Carl Lody, whom I saw tried by court martial and who had an American passport and spoke American with the slightest German accent, was a legitimate naval spy and was so regarded by our authorities, who treated him as well as he could be treated in the circumstances, and finally, very properly shot him. He was captured owing to clumsiness on his part. Among other foolishnesses he kept his coda in his pocket, and therefore knew at the moment he was arrested that he was a dead man. One of the things that led to his detection was the cable censorship.

"We had been warned for years that the country was full of German spies, but did not believe it. Germans were admitted to our clubs, went about among us, and seemed very friendly. At the outbreak of the war we found that we had been entertaining several battalions of spies. I remember the night that went on day after day in London just before the outbreak of the war, when they swarmed to the German consulate to get their passports vised. Many of them obviously had information that the war was coming and that they might have difficulty in getting out.

Piano Tuners as Spies.

"Large organizations such as insurance companies, electrical concerns, and pianoforte makers who required large numbers of men to go about tuning pianos, were in effect central depots for gathering information for the German government. A certain steamship company also had its own series of spies and had to do with the subventions of Germanized newspapers in London and of certain notorious English writers. In their hurry to clear out of England this steamship company left behind valuable incriminating documents, one of which was damning evidence of Germany's war intentions.

"I can now relate with safety, inasmuch as more than two years have passed and both the British and German codes have been changed, an incident told to me by Lord Fisher in the early days of the war when he was at the head of our navy. He had given instructions that eight ships should be coaled at a port which I will call Bristol. That same afternoon one of our destroyers picked up a wireless from one enemy submarine to another making a rendezvous at this very port for the following day and naming the eight ships. The coaling order was, of course, at once canceled, but the incident showed that information must have come from some one in close touch with the government department concerned. It sounds, indeed, almost too mysterious to be true, but it was true.

Praises American Press.

"Compared with the leakage of news into newspapers, the daily leakage of secrets by cable is as a Niagara compared with a mountain stream. I am a pretty close student of the war and have read a number of your newspapers in the last month, but on only two occasions have I seen anything likely to be of assistance to the enemy. That does not mean that there should not be a newspaper censorship. Our newspaper people from the outset recognized the need for official technical military and naval action in such matters. The danger of a censorship is that it may be used to exalt incompetence, to impair efficiency by hiding mismanagement, to weaken resolution by exaggerated optimism.

"If I may make a suggestion it is that the American people should take stories about the sinking of submarines with a grain of salt. Your newspapers have sunk a very large fleet of submarines during the four weeks I have been here. Every gunner who fires at a periscope and can see no periscope after the splash of the shell thinks he has sunk a submarine.

Illustrates with Story.

"I will give a little instructive and perfectly true story on this point. A certain man of war reported that it had fired on a German submarine and sunk it. An English submarine, which was in exactly the same location on the same day, reported that it had been fired on by a German battleship and had dived and escaped it! I fear that these constant illusory sinkings of submarines may check American inventive effort on which the allies rely so greatly.

"I have no idea of the preparations your government has made for the censorship of pictures. A picture may easily disclose dangerous information. The Germans have a system of enlarging newspaper photographs to see if they can find any valuable information. Thus, when we had been at war sufficiently long to invent 'tanks' we had got wise, as you say here. No picture of any new tank, aeroplane, or other machine of war should be published here.

"As to the censorship in general, if instructions are given to newspaper people they themselves form the best censors. Trained newsgatherers and presenters of news are much more intelligent than the kind of man who usually drifts into censors' offices. Neither military nor naval men care for the task of censorship. They want to be at the front or at sea.

Trust Newspaper Man.

"Judging by my own colleagues in England, I believe that American newspaper men should be very largely trusted to do the censoring themselves, provided, of course, that Gen. Pershing has a system such as has been adopted by Sir Douglas Haig, who, while allowing the utmost freedom of correspondents, sees that the dispatches are read and examined by competent members of his staff. The dangers of misuse of the power of censorship are well known to those who know what we suffered from the hiding of the truth about the war for the first two years."

BLOW TO BOOZE

Senate Vote Which Would Forbid Use of Bonded Spirits for Beverage Purposes.

ering outgoing messages. The state, war, and navy departments are working on a scheme to perfect the censorship and they have invited the allied governments to assist.

Close Guard Over Cable.

Following today's cabinet meeting Postmaster General Burleson announced that he was opposed to a mail censorship and that he would not adopt such measures unless forced to do so.

The censorship of the outgoing cables is considered comparatively simple and George Creel is in New York to confer with officers of the cable companies concerning the best methods of instituting and enforcing cable censorship, including incoming as well as outgoing messages.

The censorship of the cables can be carried to any point desired without congressional authorization, as the lines are foreign owned and by entering into an agreement with Britain and France respecting their use and restriction no ratifying action by the senate is necessary.

CATCH "SPY PAYMASTER"?

New York, July 6.—Agents for the department of justice today arrested two Germans, one reputed to be a paymaster for the German spy system in this country.

The prisoners are accused of being alien enemies of the United States. They are described as Carl Heynen, a German organizer and an authority on Mexican affairs, and F. A. Burgemeister. The latter is alleged to be the spy paymaster.

Heynen, once German consul at Mexico City and prior to that connected with the Hamburg-American line, was mentioned in connection with munition contracts alluded to in correspondence seized by the British in Capt. Franz von Papen's effects at Falmouth while the former attaché was returning to Germany.

Federal authorities today arrested Prof. Jonathan Zenneck, German radio expert, and took him to Ellis island, where he will be interned for the duration of the war.

Rich Brewer's Son to Prison.

Freeport, Ill., July 6.—Elmer Ohlendorf of Freeport, a son of a wealthy brewer, today was sentenced by Federal Judge Landis to serve a year in prison on a charge of boot-legging. He also was fined $1000. Ohlendorf's father agreed to support the son's family while he is in prison.

NO ALTERATION IN NAVAL STORY, CREEL DECLARES

Insinuation That News Was Distorted Is Lie, He Says.

New York, July 6.—"To insinuate that there was any elaboration in the sense of alteration is a lie," George Creel, chairman of the bureau of information, declared today in replying to the published charge that he had admitted elaborating on Admiral Gleaves' report of a battle between German submarines and destroyers convoying American troops to France.

Dictated by Daniels.

"The whole attack has its base in absolute falsehood," Creel continued. "Secretary Daniels, with the Gleaves reports in his hand, dictated the statement. There was no intent to create the impression that he was using the exact language of the reports.

"It was Mr. Daniels' own announcement to the people of America, based solely and absolutely upon the official statement of facts contained in the dispatches from Admiral Gleaves. These dispatches contained official matter that decided the navy experts against publishing them textually."

ADMISSION BY CREEL.

THE TRIBUNE, among other newspapers, printed the dispatch from Washington yesterday that Mr. Creel admitted he had elaborated the report. As stated in that dispatch, he told a representative of THE TRIBUNE in Washington on Thursday night that he elaborated the report, but he would not explain how he elaborated it or give the facts that were the basis of his elaboration. THE TRIBUNE did not allege there was any "alteration."

HECKLERS GIVEN JAIL SENTENCE

Washington, D. C. July 6.—[Special.]—Reversing his own ruling that no case lay against the White House pickets so long as they "kept moving," Judge Mullowney today sentenced eleven suffragists to a fine of $25 each or three days in the district jail for picketing with banners before the White House. As they filed out of the courtroom to take their places in the "black Maria"—every woman had refused to send for a private automobile to take her to the jail—the judge's eyes filled with tears.

Dr. Hillis Seeks War "Color."

New York, July 6.—[Special.]—Dr. Newell Dwight Hillis, pastor of Plymouth church, Brooklyn, is on his way to Europe to make a tour of France and England to gather information to be used in stimulating the American public to invest in the next issue of Liberty bonds.

PARISIANS WILD OVER U. S. TROOPS ON JULY 4 MARCH

Stars and Stripes Cover City; Throngs Cheer Pershing's Men.

[SPECIAL CABLE TO CHICAGO TRIBUNE.]

PARIS, July 4.—[Delayed.]—United States soldiers, who took Paris in a storm of admiration today, will leave tomorrow morning for the first United States training camp. Every man in that battalion will leave Paris with the knowledge that never before has the French capital extended itself to such unreserved bounds of enthusiasm as was manifest in today's celebration of America's Independence day.

From early morning, when the crowd began to assemble in front of Gen. Pershing's house, until the last stragglers left the boulevards late tonight, America, Gen. Pershing, the United States soldiers, and American independence were the objectives of thousands of vociferous "Vives!".

July 4 Wins Parisians.

France as reflected in the utter abandon of Parisian enthusiasm has taken July 4 for her own and will ever remember it with her own national fete ten days from now in commemoration of the fall of the Bastille.

Parisians said that never has Paris shown so many flags, not even during the days when her own sons marched away to keep the Germans out of Paris. It was noticed that for the day only clusters of allied flags were almost entirely replaced by groups composed solely of the French tricolor and the stars and stripes.

Taxis and fiacres flew flags and bunting from all attachable places. Flag venders, did a wholesale business on the streets. Street singers sang patriotic parodies eulogizing Uncle Sam and his nephews and garnered harvests of sous from their efforts.

Unconsciously Starts Riot.

The spirit of the crowd is mirrored in one incident in front of Gen. Pershing's house in the Rue Varenne. An old man, being jostled in the mob, cried out: "Let me pass in peace." All the crowd happened to hear was the last word, "peace." The result was an uncalled for anti-peace demonstration to the great surprise of the unconscious pacifist.

"Roman Caesars clad in khaki" is the way Paris papers described the appearance of the United States soldiers on their march from the Invalides to Lafayette's tomb.

March with French "Vets."

The regulars marched with a regiment of French territorials, all veterans of the war, and many of them incapacitated for front service through wounds and age.

Other French soldiers on leave from the trenches and still bearing mud stains of the battle front life cheered on their new comrades at arms.

"Vive Les Teddies" was the shout of the "middinettes," which is the name Paris assigns its pretty shop girls who take their only promenade during the lunch hour. The "Teddy" name has been used by the French papers and seems to have been taken up, although "Vive Les Americains" still remains the more popular phrase of salute.

The training bases for American troops in France, which are ready for occupancy, include aviation, artillery, infantry, and medical bases.

The section of the battle front eventually to be occupied by the Americans has been approved by Gen. Pershing. The location is a military secret and no actual time has been specified for American participation in the fighting.

NO U. S. REQUEST FOR STOCKADES TO GUARD GRAIN

Reports current on the board of trade yesterday to the effect that the government had requested officials of the exchange to build stockades around grain warehouses and mills were based on the fact that some time ago circular letters were received by the exchange officials asking that every precaution be taken in safeguarding elevator and mill properties.

President J. P. Griffin denied having received any special request from Mr. Hoover asking for the building of stockades. W. H. Ferrine, chairman of the warehouse committee, said there was no foundation for the report that stockades would be erected.

As far as the grain elevators are concerned there have always been guards, but in most cases stockades would be impractical.

BREAD TOO HIGH AT 10 CENT LOAF; 5 ARE INDICTED

Washington, D. C., July 6.—[Special.]—A federal grand jury here today returned indictments against four men said to be agents of two leading baking companies and one grocer on charges of conspiracy to hold the retail price of bread at 10 cents a loaf. The baking companies' agents also are charged with having conspired to decline to sell their product to a grocer who expressed a willingness to retail bread at 9 cents a loaf.

This is represented as the beginning of a widespread investigation by the department of justice and the federal courts in a campaign to compel the big baking companies to reduce the cost of bread to the people, as the price of flour goes down.

War-Time Prohibition

An Appeal From Britain

America has done gloriously. Will you please help the "Strength of Britain Movement" to win war-time prohibition in Great Britain? Already we have succeeded in reducing beer from 36,000,000 to 10,000,000 barrels a year. See Priestley's Ink, June 28, for our history.

All officials honorary. Donations urgently needed, and may be sent either to Hon. Secretary, F. S. A. Smith, Bedford, N. Y., or direct to "Strength of Britain Movement," 20 Denman street, London, W., England.

SWEDEN IN FEAR OF DISASTER IF U. S. ENDS IMPORTS

Minister Denies Claim Nation Sends Food to Germany.

STOCKHOLM, July 6.—Washington dispatches of the last few days forecasting the sharpest limitation or possible discontinuance of all exports to neutrals caused anxiety in government circles and among the people. The situation is already grave.

Crops are likely to be below the average. Manufactories of various lines are closed by lack of raw material. Others cannot maintain production much longer. Benzine and petroleum are nearing exhaustion. Leather is scarce and so dear that a pair of ordinary shoes costs from $10 to $12. Automobile tires bring $600 each. The stocks of coffee in the kingdom will be exhausted in a month. Long lines of people standing outside the stores waiting to buy coffee may already be seen.

Denies Any Re-Exports.

In view of the assertions that Sweden's imports are not intended solely for Swedish consumption, Herr E. B. Trolle, formerly minister of foreign affairs and now president of the government war trade commission, made this explanation:

"Official statistics of Sweden's importations for 1916 demonstrate conclusively the absolute erroneousness of assertions that we are bringing in American products for the purpose of passing them on to the central powers.

"In several instances our total importations from America show a decided decrease compared with 1915, the last normal year. A Paris paper recently declared that exports to Scandinavia and Switzerland rose from $40,000,000 in 1913 to $183,000,000 in 1916. Leading American papers have published similar statistics and asserted that the increase was largely due to the fact that Sweden had been reexporting to Germany. This assertion will not stand the test of examination.

Some Held by British.

"I may remind you that a considerable part of the merchandise mentioned in the American export statistics never reached us, having been detained by the British.

"It is a fact that our importations of cereals from the United States in 1916 showed an increase of 72,846,...0 crowns over 1913, but it must not be forgotten that in 1913 we imported 65,000,000 crowns of cereals from Germany, whereas we did not bring in a crown's worth last year. Nor must it be forgotten that an increase in the value of products imported by no means indicates an increase in the quantity, in view of the tremendous rise in prices.

"As a matter of fact, our total imports of cereals in 1916 amounted to only 856,000 tons, against 515,000 in 1913.

No Imports from Russia.

"The total of importations from the United States shows an increase of 18,000,000 crowns, but importations from Germany decreased 38,000,000 crowns, and receipts from other sources were insignificant. We imported 18,000,000 crowns' worth more of oils and fat from America, but importations from Germany were 15,000,000 less and imports from Russia practically ceased. The total quantity from all sources was only 185,000 tons, against 213,000 tons in 1912."

OYSTER STAKE MISTAKEN FOR A PERISCOPE!

Norfolk, Va., July 6.—[Special.]—But for the fact that bay passenger boats were halted and warned to navigate the head of the Chesapeake in a zig-zag course, it is probable that local navy and war department officials would have successfully prevented a leak of the submarine scare that tied up shipping out of Hampton Roads yesterday afternoon for several hours.

No submarine was located. Investigation showed that two ship masters, arriving in the roads, reported sighting the periscope of a submerged submarine, evidently entering the bay.

What they saw was an oyster stake floating end up, bobbing on the waves, and being driven into the bay by an oncoming high tide.

Buchanan, Playwright, Enlists.

CANADA FAVORS DRAFT MEASURE BY 118-55 VOTE

Resolution Advanced to Second Reading Amid Exciting Scenes.

Ottawa, Ont., July 6.—The Canadian house of commons early today adopted the resolution offered by Premier Borden passing to second reading the bill for compulsory military service.

Liberals Break Away.

The count gave the government seven twenty more votes than it usually polls on important questions. This was the result of a considerable number of English speaking Liberals breaking away from the leadership of Sir Wilfrid Laurier and joining with Premier Borden in support of conscription.

Before the bill was sanctioned Sir Wilfrid Laurier's proposal that the opinion of the people on conscription should be tested by a referendum was defeated by a majority of forty-nine. The attendance of members of the house was the largest that had been seen in parliament for many years. The galleries were filled with spectators throughout the night and until the proceedings closed at sunrise. Most of the spectators were women and soldiers returned from Europe.

Kill Six Months' Delay.

A resolution presented by the French Nationalists from the province of Quebec that the conscription bill should be killed by the adoption of a six months' postponement was defeated by the large majority of 186. Only nine Nationalist votes were cast for the resolution, and both the government and the opposition to conscription voted against this proposal.

WOOL INDUSTRY IN A BAD WAY, WARNS OF WASTE

Patch pockets are an unnecessary luxury in time of war, according to H. H. Merrick of Armour & Co., who yesterday urged the members of the National Association of Clothing Designers, meeting at the Congress hotel, to prevent the waste of wool in every possible way. The changing fashions in women's clothes, Mr. Merrick said, represents an enormous waste, and he urged the designers to be reasonable on style.

"Since 1910," said Mr. Merrick, "the production of sheep has been a dying industry. There are in the United States about 50,000,000 sheep. The country could easily raise twice that number and by using its grazing lands to the fullest extent it could raise three times that number.

"Unless the business men get together and back the administration and the national council of defense in working out new methods of increasing production and avoiding waste we shall meet disaster if the war continues."

LOSS OF $9,200,000 IN 1917 FOR U. S. THROUGH U-BOAT

Washington, D. C., July 6.—American shipping losses due to submarine activities during the first six months of 1917 amounted to nine times total loss of the two previous years, Dr. William G. De Lanoy, chief of the United States war risk insurance bureau, said today.

Since Jan. 1, 1917, the bureau has insured $441,761,513 of American cargoes, with a loss of $9,200,000. Previous to that time the bureau had lost only $200,000 due to submarine sinkings. Since the beginning of the war in 1914 the total salvage of vessels sunk amounted to only $59,055.

ELLER'S BALK ON DRAFT TO DELAY THE ENTIRE CITY?

City Sealer Refuses the War Secretary's Appeal to Serve.

Morris Eller, Mayor Thompson's "cracker jack" city sealer, yesterday treated with contempt a personal appeal from Secretary of War Baker that he serve on the exemption board of the Forty-fourth district until his successor could be named.

He fired back an answer to the secretary's telegram in which he said that in no circumstances would he serve on the board.

Dr. Frank A. Stahl, 1320 South Halsted street, another member of this board, also refuses to serve. Meantime the cards remain in the offices of the election commissioners. The copying was to have been completed by the exemption boards tomorrow night.

Holds Up Entire City.

This one district now holds up the entire draft machinery in Chicago and may delay the draft machinery of the United States.

Mr. Eller is as loyal as a dog to the mayor, in whose cabinet he is quite a personage. He denies, however, that his refusal to have anything to do with the patriotic work of the country at this time bears any relation to the public attitude of the mayor.

Meanwhile he has been busy explaining his position. Early in the day he was quoted by the City Press representative as saying he was "just as smart" as the men at Washington.

In the afternoon he objected to the word "smart." He said he didn't use it. Instead he explained that he was too busy in his job as city sealer to "monkey with this stuff."

Later at night he revised his two previous explanations and said he would not tell why he did not want to serve.

"That's my business," he said. "I don't know that I want to tell why. I won't do it. It's nobody's business. Under no circumstances will I serve on that board."

Little Time Required.

At the most it would not have taken Eller and his colleagues on the board more than three days to dispose of the preliminary work.

Mr. Eller was given a berth in the mayor's cabinet at the request of "Billy" Cooke, the Clark-street saloonkeeper. Eller grew up in politics under the tutelage of the old Lorimer-Cooke school of instructors in the old Ninth ward.

Dr. Stahl, who also refuses to serve on this district board, said last night that he had not received a special telegram from the secretary of war to help out temporarily, as had Eller. He reiterated his statement of a few days ago that he was very busy.

Dr. Stahl was in Germany when the war broke out. He is a great admirer of the fatherland but said that that would make no difference with him in this matter if he had the time.

Jacob Bernheim, the other member of this board, spent the day at a picnic.

Will Help for a Time.

Right next door to Eller's district, in the Forty-third, two of the three members of the exemption board also resigned. They are Louis J. Marschak, 926 West Twelfth street, and Dr. John Vitullo, 926 South Halsted street.

Mr. Marschak said he would be willing to help out for a couple of days. The cards were sent to this district.

It was announced in Springfield last night that Gov. Lowden already had forwarded to Washington recommendations of four new members of these two boards and four members of two boards out in the state where a majority of each board refused to serve.

Numbers Are Changed.

The four new lists, which they must prepare from the registration cards, will bear new numbers, beginning with one and running as high as there are registered men in the district. This same method will be followed in every registration district in the United States, so that there will be, for instance, a number 1, 2, 3, 4, etc. in each district.

The drawings will be by numbers. The Washington officials will select numbers by lot and these numbers will be sent to the exemption boards in the entire country. There will be, for instance, a No. 4 and No. 6 and so on in each district. All that the local boards will receive from Washington will be the numbers. That is the purpose of the present listing of the names with new numerals. It is to furnish Washington with the figures that are to be used in the drawings.

Five of the eighty-six draft boards in Chicago completed their preliminary work and turned in the registration card lists at the corporation counsel's office by midnight. The office was in charge of Assistant Corporation Counsel Berthold A. Cronson and five aids, who remained on duty through the night to receive the reports.

Training Camp Will Get Old First Cavalry Horses

Two hundred horses now on the regimental property rolls of the Second Illinois Field artillery, formerly the First cavalry, are to supply the mounts for the horseless cavalry troops at the reserve officers' training camp at Fort Sheridan. Since the reorganization of the camp candidates the two cavalry troops have been doing dismounted drill, principally because the government could not provide mounts.

A day or so ago, however, Col. William Nicholson, camp commandant, remembered the old First cavalry had enough government owned horses to mount his men.

As a consequence Capt. Leland F. Hamm, supply officer of the Second artillery, has been directed to return from strikes duty in Bloomington to make an invoice of the animals preparatory to transfer.

BIG SHAKEUP OF NATIONAL GUARD DUE IN ILLINOIS

Mann Will Visit West to Discover Cause of Weakness.

[BY A STAFF CORRESPONDENT.]

Washington, D. C., July 6.—[Special.]—As a result of the war department's dissatisfaction with recruiting, a shakeup in the national guard of Illinois, Wisconsin, Minnesota, Nebraska, Kansas, the Dakotas, and several other states is impending.

Brig. Gen. Mann, chief of the bureau of militia affairs, will make a tour of inspection of these states to discover the causes of the unsatisfactory showing.

The Illinois national guard made a gain of nearly 10,000 men in the last three months, but it still is 11,000 men short of the division it has been allotted. It will be necessary to draft the men needed to bring the Illinois division up to 28,000 men.

Think Officers at Fault.

If Gen. Mann finds that officers are at fault, boards of efficiency will be convened and those officers who do not come up to requirements will be given a chance to resign.

While the war department does not insist that each state fill a quota of 900 national guardsmen for each congressman and senator, it insists that the existing regiments be brought to full war strength. All recruits up to the time of the draft will reduce the number that will be required by draft. But the shortage of Illinois national guard strength is so great that officials today said the number of men to be drafted in Illinois would be increased.

Changes in Service.

The strength of the Illinois guard April 1, after discharges of soldiers with dependents and others had depleted the ranks, the adjutant general reported was 6,672. Of this number 3,551 were in state service and 3,121 in federal service.

During April and May there was a gain of 6,444, of which 4,979 was in troops remaining in state service and 1,465 in the troops then in federal service. During June 2, 1917, more recruits were added, 2,834 to the troops in state service and 867 to the troops in federal service.

SAYS ROSENWALD IS MOST POPULAR MAN IN CAPITAL

Julius Rosenwald was declared "the most popular man in Washington today" by Commander John M. Hancock, who spoke before a luncheon of the Illinois Manufacturers' association yesterday.

"I am glad to say in his home town that Mr. Rosenwald is more than appreciated in Washington," said the commander. "He has been a fine help to the navy and government. When he has anything to say or do he says or does it without any pussyfooting, and he has made one slogan famous in Washington: 'Gentlemen, this is no time to be polite.'"

Commander Hancock was introduced as "the best customer in the United States." He is in Chicago for the purpose of making navy contracts.

$7,000,000 IN CASH PAYNE BEQUESTS TO INSTITUTIONS

Payne Whitney Given Bulk of Personal Effects.

New York, July 6.—Cash bequests of more than $7,000,000 to charitable and educational institutions are provided in the will of Col. Oliver H. Payne, who died in this city last week, it was announced tonight. The largest gifts are to Lakeside hospital, Cleveland; Yale university, and the New York public library, each of which will receive $1,000,000.

A permanent endowment of $500,000 is bequeathed to Cornell university medical college, the income of which is to be used for its support and maintenance, while other large gifts include:

Phillips academy, Andover, Mass....	$500,000
St. Vincent Charity hospital, Cleveland	200,000
Cleveland Jewish Orphan asylum...	200,000
Hamilton college, Clinton, N. Y.....	200,000
The University of Virginia.....	200,000

Bulk to Payne Whitney.

Payne Whitney, a nephew, inherits most of Mr. Payne's household and personal effects, including his yacht Aphrodite, now in commission for the federal government; Greenwood plantation at Thomasville, Ga., and all real estate except Mr. Payne's country place in Ulster county, which goes to another nephew, Harry Payne Bingham, with a legacy of $2,000,000.

Lewis Cass Ledyard, one of the executors, was bequeathed $100,000, and to the decedent's cousins, Henrietta B. Morris and Mabel Wendell, $100,000 each was left. Harry Payne Whitney, another nephew, received a painting of Mr. Payne as a remembrance. For faithful and careful attendance Emma Christina Larson received $50,000, and Capt. Charles W. Scott, master of Mr. Payne's yacht, received $25,000.

Servants Get $1,000 to $5,000.

Every servant in the employ of Mr. Payne for the last two years was remembered with gifts ranging from $1,000 to $5,000.

Mr. Payne was one of the largest owners of Standard Oil stock and was largely interested in many other corporations.

PRIZE FOR BEST WHEATLESS AND MEATLESS MENU

Cooks of Chicago are asked to put on their thinking caps and get busy with their pencils, for the winning of the war may be in their hands.

Food is one of the greatest problems of the nation. All those professionally engaged in the preparation of foods are invited to attend a massmeeting at the Hotel Sherman next Thursday evening and to bring with them the best wheatless and meatless menu they can concoct.

Mr. Hoover has said, and we have all repeated, that we must save wheat and meat. Food conservation has become the ritual of the nation. The person who brings the best wheatless, meatless menu of not more than three courses to the meeting will receive a prize of $10 from the woman's committee of the council.

The judges of the contest are the following professional chefs: Lucien Raymond of the Congress hotel, Theodore Rooms of the Blackstone, Albert Mujlier of the North American restaurant, Robert Meyer of the Royale restaurant, and Albert Stalle of the Sherman.

Miss Harriet Vittum of the woman's committee and Dr. W. A. Evans will speak and Miss Carolina White of the Chicago Grand Opera company will sing patriotic songs at the meeting. Albert Stalle will preside.

Royal Arcanum to Picnic.

It is expected that 15,000 members of the Royal Arcanum will attend the eighth annual picnic of the Royal Arcanum Hospital association, which will be held in Riverview Picnic park today. There will be ball games and athletic events.

DATE FOR DRAFT CREEPS CLOSER; METHOD SECRET

Officials of Government Await the Exemption Board Lists.

[BY A STAFF CORRESPONDENT.]

Washington, D. C., July 6.—[Special.]—Plans are nearing completion for turning the great military wheel of fortune which will designate who in America shall go to Europe to fight for democracy.

Although the expected announcement of the date for the draft of the new national army did not materialize today, it is known that war department officials are waiting only for local exemption boards to complete listing the registered citizens and assigning to each name a serial number for the drawing.

Delay in announcement of the date, it was learned, has been due to the length of time required to prepare the lists. It was first planned to use the registration number on each card, but when this was altered it required more work from the exemption boards.

Fate of Men in Capsules.

The fate of each registered man, it has become known, is to be sealed in a small gelatin capsule. Each capsule will contain a number and that number will correspond to the number given a registered citizen. Numbers drawn, probably some time next week, will be flashed over the country, and 10,000,000 men will learn who of them have been chosen for examination to enter the new army.

While the work of numbering the registration lists is progressing the provost marshal general's office in Washington is a busy place. Here men are engaged in stamping a series of numbers on sheets of paper marked off in half inch squares.

Each square will bear a number and will be inclosed in the tiny capsules. There will be several sets of these figures and each series will run up to 6,000. As each local division sends a copy of its list to Washington it will be examined to see how many eligibles it contains. That many squares of paper marked with numbers corresponding to the names on the list will be put into capsules and thrown into a container, probably a huge glass globe.

Lottery Plans a Secret.

How the numbers will be drawn is not known, but reports indicate that twenty men already have been designated to draw the numbers from the container.

Reports that one number will be drawn from the container in the big lottery and that every man in the country having that number in his own district will be called for examination could not be confirmed today and were sufficiently frowned upon by officials to indicate that such a system is unlikely to be used.

According to this system, with each of the local boards having started their series of numerals with the figure 1, if the number 5 were drawn on the first selection from the container every man in the country having the number 5 would be the first man in his given district liable for service. Then a second number would be drawn and every man having this number would be the second man liable in his district.

The war department has given no indication what form of lottery will be used or what system will be followed, but those close in touch with the situation here believe that at least every state will have a separate drawing.

Undecided on Number of Men.

No decision has been announced on the number of men to be examined at this time. It is certain that more than 625,000 men are to be called for service in the first draft. The ranks of the national guard and the regular army are to be filled to war strength first and each state will be called on to fill its quota for these services by draft. This will take 200,000 or more men. Following this the 500,000 men for the first national army with the 125,000 reserves will be drawn.

Whether the million and a half men to fill several draft calls will be examined at this time, as members of the general staff wish, has not been announced.

The war department may decide to draw every man in the lottery so as to determine the order in which he is subject to service and then proceed with the examination of as many men as it wishes for the army.

When this examination is completed they could take up the cases of enough more men in their proper order to fill at least one more army call and thus save the necessity of turning the burdensome exemption machinery again this year.

DOCTORS PLAN FREE CARE FOR BABIES HERE

The babies of northwest Chicago whose fathers go to war are to be given the best medical attention possible, and without cost, it was determined last night by the members of the northwest branch of the Chicago Medical society. The doctors will cooperate with the infant welfare nurses. Every member of the Northwestern branch volunteered his services.

U. S. Compliment to Gary Becomes Embarrassing

Gary, Ind., July 6.—[Special.]—After years of impressing the world how big it is, residents of Gary now face the task of convincing the government that there is such a thing as being regarded as too big. The war department, estimating Gary's population at 110,000, desires to make its draft quota from those figures, but local exemption boards declare there are only 50,000 persons here. Last month the government estimated Gary's population at 80,000 and sent 3,000 registration cards, but due to the large proportion of young men 11,000 were enrolled. The government's revised estimate is regarded as more flattering than desirable.

"NOT MY DIARY"

Mrs. May Howard.

WIFE DENIES SHE KEPT SHORTHAND DIARY OF LOVE

She Gets Alimony Until Divorce Trial.

Mrs. May Howard, whose alleged shorthand diary was recently cited in an alienation of affections suit, yesterday won her motion for temporary alimony pending her suit for divorce from Louis A. Howard, former broker. Judge Thomson granted her $10 a week and told Howard he "had better pay it."

At the hearing the diary that Howard says his wife wrote was introduced into the evidence. Several sensational charges were made by Howard, but they were all denied by Mrs. Howard.

Transcribed by Stenographer.

"I found that diary last July, a year ago," said Howard on the witness stand. "I had it translated by a stenographer and accused my wife of being intimate with Morgan Leonard Eastman."

He then said he condoned this misconduct and, telling his wife that "he, too, had made errors," asked her to continue living with him. This was taken by Judge Thomson as one of the reasons why the former broker should pay temporary alimony.

"But I'm broke and haven't any job," protested Howard. "I just quit a position in Eldorado, Colo., and am looking for a job here."

"How much do you pay for your meals a day?" questioned the judge.

"A buck," answered Howard.

He told of an evening when he went to Orchestra hall, where he met Eastman and Mrs. Howard. Morgan L. Eastman, conductor of the Commonwealth Edison orchestra, is the man whom Howard charges with alienating his wife's affections.

Denies Writing It.

When the diary Mrs. Howard is alleged to have kept was introduced into the evidence Mrs. Howard denied having written it.

"I never saw it until it was shown to me in court," said Mrs. Howard.

After the hearing Howard asked his wife and her companion out to dinner. She refused.

U. S. WAR POWER

Combined Strength of Regular Army, National Guard, Navy Marine Corps and Officers Pass 750,000 Mark.

[BY A STAFF CORRESPONDENT.]

WASHINGTON, D. C., July 6.—The combined strength of the regular army and national guard has passed the half million mark, the war department announced today, after receiving final reports from the states on national guard totals.

With the navy, marine corps, officers in various training camps, and reserve engineer regiments added there are now three-quarters of a million men under arms or under orders to mobilize within a month.

The strength of the various arms of the military service as reported by the war and navy departments today stood:

National guard	295,877
Regular army	254,439
Navy	128,889
Marine corps	27,000
Officers in camps	40,000
Engineer regiments	9,000
Total	754,705
Add first draft	625,000
Grand total	1,739,705

Complete reports from all the states show that the national guard is 103,000 short of war strength of 398,877, which is the strength of present organizations now formed or in process of being formed, when fully recruited.

The national guard still in state service gained 32,000 recruits in the last ten days of June. The strength of the guard in midwestern states follows:

PEONY SHOW

Today, July 7. The public is invited to view in our rooms, 937-41 Marquette Bldg., an extraordinary display of peonies and other perennial flowers from our nurseries in Glenview.

These are the largest and most brilliantly colored blossoms that are produced outdoors in this latitude. Our collection, accumulated in 60 years in business, is one of the finest in the country. The sight will repay a visit.

While sales are not the purpose of this exhibition, it affords an excellent chance to select varieties for the home grounds. Plants from 50 cents upwards will be delivered in September, which is the proper time for planting.

We invite every one interested in flowers, whether he is fortunate enough to possess a garden or not.

If you are unable to attend, send us your name and address and we will take pleasure in mailing you a peony catalog.

SLOGAN WRITERS FILL THE MAILS WITH WAR CRIES

Winning Phrases Yet to Be Coined, It Seems.

And still they come! Slogans from every point of the compass. Almost 2,000 new ones have arrived since the judges announced their inability to find a suitable one in the first batch submitted, but the one with the punch to it seems yet to be written. Some of the latest are fairly good, but not what is desired. Two slogans submitted in the first batch of 10,000 came close to being what the judges desire, and these are being held in case nothing better shows up.

THE TRIBUNE is offering prizes of $50 each for two slogans appropriate for the big naval poster by Robert Reid at Michigan boulevard and Randolph street. Slogans are wanted which will inspire enlistments in the navy. The shorter the catch phrase the better. Only men between 17 and 25 can compete. The contest closes next Tuesday midnight.

Tips to "the Boys."

Here are some from the latest arrivals:

"Follow the flag, boys, your navy and nation need you."—O. O. Cooper, 550 East Thirty-sixth street.

"Rock the U boat, don't rock our's."—W. E. Erdice, Keota, Ia.

"I came, I saw, I'll enlist."—Frank S. Zajdzinski, Fort Bayard, N. M.

Knock the Kaiser.

SLACKERS FIND IT COLD WORLD, EVEN IN PRISON

One hundred and twelve slackers were entering the bridewell yesterday when a "tough bird" poked his grizzled head out an upper window and regarded them.

"This has been a respectable bandhouse up till now," he observed. "I don't mind bein' in stir, but I'd hate t' have my folks find out I was in with slackers."

They were inclined to be forcedly carefree and blasé as they were herded from a special train and marched to the bridewell gates, were these 112 I. W. W. slackers who fell under the displeasure of Judge Landis on the day before in Freeport. United States Deputy Marshal T. J. Sheehan and ten assistants guarded them as they arrived to serve a year and a day for activities antagonistic to the conscription law.

A crowd numbering more than 200 collected outside the walls of the prison and engaged in little verbal descriptives which are best omitted here. Some brought tin cans and begged the opportunity of tying the same to the coattails of the slackers.

Others begged Supt. John Sinan not to pollute his prison with them and others pleaded tearfully for "just one wallop" at them crooks."

FIRST INFANTRY HAS VAUDEVILLE FETCHED TO CAMP

"Good-by, Broadway! Hello, France!" is becoming the "Tipperary" of the American soldiers.

This fact was brought out last night at an entertainment held at Camp Cicero, the home of the First Illinois infantry. It was the first of a series of affairs to combat homesickness and unrest. The entertainment was held outdoors and a crowd of 2,000 soldiers gathered around a ring. The lighting was furnished by two automobiles.

The boys cheered wildly at the "rag" music and athletics and listened politely to the "highbrow stuff," but "Good-by, Broadway! Hello, France!" was the favorite. At every opportunity the men, alone and in groups, sang it.

George [K. O.] Brown, the boxer, toyed through six rounds with local talent, and on one occasion went so far as to take his opponent over his knee and spank him.

TYRO OFFICERS DEFY RAIN IN FIELD PROBLEM

Vital Need of Letter-Perfect Signaling Is Shown by One Man's Error.

BY PARKE BROWN.

Fort Sheridan, Ill., July 6.—[Special.]—Through three hours of heavy rain a company of infantry from the reserve officers' training camp battled this afternoon against a troop of cavalry that lay in ambush near the post cemetery.

For the first time since the camp opened blank cartridges were used by the opposing forces. Only five rounds per man had been issued and by good "fire control" much of this was conserved so that the engagement was not noticeably smoky. But it was the first actual combat game played by the students and they enjoyed it immensely, in spite of the downpour.

Other Companies Go In.

Other companies — those digging trenches and those composing a battalion scheduled to bring an attack up within reach of the trenches—either came in when the rain became heavy or stayed in their barracks, but this company stuck to its problem and fought it out.

The practice of calling the students in from field work during heavy storms is due to the lack of a change of uniform clothing.

The rainproof outfit is the first company of the Michigan-Wisconsin regiment. Capt. Douglas McCaskey, the regular army instructor, acted as referee, but the unit was in command of Capt. W. R. Nellegar, a reserve officer. The problem brought out a reason why such emphasis has been laid on signaling.

Capture Advance Guard.

The enemy surprised the advance guard [the warning body sent out ahead] of eight men and captured it without firing a shot. The sergeant in command of the advance guard had signaled "S. O. S.," meaning "support needed." The connecting files mistook the positions of his arms and transmitted the signal to mean "take cover." In real battle the error might have been very costly.

During a talk to the students upon the work of the national council of defense Julius Rosenwald tonight passed by several chances to renew his criticism of congress. He said, however, that "congress fooled around for a month" after a state of war was declared.

MOTHER'S PLEA TO MOTHER ADDS A SON TO ARMY

Church organizations and individuals, mostly mothers, yesterday commended Capt. Franklin R. Keaney for his stand with regard to taking convicts into the army. The captain criticised Joseph Siman, superintendent of the bridewell, and Will T. Davies, county jailer, for statements attributed to them to the effect that convicts would be pardoned if they wanted to enter the service.

Mothers figured in another episode of the day at the recruiting office. A woman was seen trying to dissuade her son, who was about to enlist. Another woman came along and told the first mother that she was the mother of seven boys now engaged in the war in France. After that talk the son of the first woman enlisted with his mother's blessing.

E. E. Wood of the National Veterans' Reserve corps was appointed an honorary assistant recruiting officer yesterday by Capt. Kenney. He will have charge of all "park recruiting."

About forty British subjects presented themselves to the British recruiting office, 54 West Adams street, yesterday and enlisted.

The part of Grant park from Randolph to Monroe street and from the Illinois Central tracks to the lake will be converted into a naval training camp for naval recruits who cannot be accommodated at the Great Lakes.

Munitions Workers Join in Dutch Food Rioting

AMSTERDAM, July 6.—Workers from the government munitions works at Hembrug, a short distance from Amsterdam, and soldiers clashed last night in a continuation of the food riots, according to the Handelsblad. The munitions workers were joined by strikers and were fired on repeatedly by the soldiers. One man was killed and eleven wounded.

ORLEANS SUNK BY SUBMARINE; 4 OF CREW LOST

Craft Won Fame as First U.S. Ship to Brave Seas After War Edict.

Washington, D. C., July 6.—The American steamship Orleans of the Oriental Navigation company has been torpedoed and sunk by a submarine.

Four of the crew were drowned, but all members of the armed naval guard were saved.

The state department, announcing the sinking today, withheld the place and the time of the attack.

As the first ship flying the American flag to brave a transatlantic voyage after Germany announced her policy of relentless submarine warfare, the Orleans was given a great demonstration on its arrival at Bordeaux.

Ten Americans in Crew.

New York, July 6.—The Orleans, a vessel of 2,302 tons gross, commanded by Capt. Allen D. Tucker, left here June 18 with a cargo for France. Of its crew of thirty-six ten were American citizens. The Orleans formerly was the Avellaneda and later the Menaptha under the Argentine flag.

Herbert M. Weimers of Highland Park, Ill., was third mate of the Orleans.

NORSE SHIP TORPEDOED.

COPENHAGEN, July 6.—The sinking by a German submarine of the Norwegian steamer Benguela is reported by the Tidens Tegn of Christiania. It was on its way from England for Philadelphia and was insured for $1,000,000. The crew was transferred to a Spanish steamer.

NEW U-BOAT DEVELOPMENTS.

Washington, D. C., July 6.—[Special.]—Developments increasing the efficiency of German submarines since April 1, it was learned on high authority today, have made the U-boat menace still more baffling to the allies.

The four known developments since April 1 are:

1. Four small pumps, regulated by electrical devices so the hydrostat will indicate the depth of submersion, by which the submarine is enabled to remain motionless under the water.

Use Improved Periscopes.

2. German submarines are using telescopic periscopes. The U-boat floats near to the surface, then suddenly shoots up its periscope, in this manner being enabled to detect as quickly as being detected. The telescope in the same manner may be withdrawn instantly, and the submarine can change its position without leaving a wake.

3. Now the German submarines are using the Diessel engine, it being supplied with oxygen and a mixture of strained gas, which takes the place of air.

Better Listening Devices.

4. Remarkable improvement has been made in the German submarine's telephone and listening devices, enabling them to hear and to locate at a considerable distance the direction and the type of vessels from the frequency of their propeller returns. This listening radius is usually about five miles.

Despite various stories which have been published and alleging the discovery of effective anti-submarine devices, it was asserted by an authority today that no real progress had been made.

WOMEN TO MEN: YOU SAVE CIGAR, WE'LL EAT CORN

Washington, D. C., July 6.—[Special.]—If women of the country are going to eat Indian corn to give the soldiers bread, let the men sacrifice some of their cigars to give the soldiers a smoke.

This suggestion was made today by Dr. Anna Howard Shaw, chairman of the woman's committee of the council of national defense, who says there is a growing sentiment among women of the country against being scolded about saving.

"The soldiers have written back to us that they want tobacco. Well, I say, let the men economize on tobacco and give the boys in the trenches a smoke, if it is going to make them happier and more comfortable. If each man would put aside one cigar a day the soldiers could have a great time smoking."

Mrs. Woodrow Wilson, who is aiding the food conservation movement, today placed a beacon in the White House window as a guide for American women.

GERMANS ARREST BELGIAN LEADERS

HAVRE, July 6.—The Belgian government is informed that the German authorities in Brussels on June 29 arrested twenty former Belgian colonial officials or directors of colonial companies. Among them were Count Jean d'Oultremont, formerly grand marshal of the court of King Leopold, and Count Hippolyte de Ursel, director of the national bank, and Baron de Cuvelier.

The men arrested were allowed one hour before they were taken to the camp at Holzminden, where they were subjected to rigorous treatment.

The Germans allege the arrests were reprisals for the treatment suffered by German civilians in German East Africa from Belgian troops after the taking of Tabora.

EXPORT CONTROL IN HANDS OF U. S.

LONDON, July 6.—"The United States has an enormous power in its hands in its control of exports to European neutrals," Lord Robert Cecil, minister of blockade, said today.

"I do not like to express any opinion as to the policy which would guide it in the exercise of this power," he continued. "That is the United States' business, not ours. The foodstuffs Germany obtains from Holland and Denmark alone must be measured in hundreds of thousands of tons, while the mineral and fish exports of the Scandinavian nations are of vital importance to Germany."

OFFICIAL REPORTS ON ALL WAR FRONTS

RUSSIAN FRONT

RUSSIAN.

PETROGRAD, July 6.—In the direction of Zlochoff there has been increased artillery activity on both sides.

In the region northwest of Rybniki, near Dsikseny, there were a number of brief, sharp encounters between our detachments and the enemy. The enemy's artillery conducted an intense fire against our positions east of Lipnicadolna. Fusillades were repulsed on the rest of this front.

AVIATION.

In the direction of Kovel, in the region of Gradiska, our artillery brought down a German airplane. The machine was wrecked and the aviators were killed.

In the Carpathians German artillery brought down one of our airplanes in flames. It fell in enemy territory. The French pilot and observer evidently were killed.

GERMAN.

BERLIN, July 6.—Army group of Prince Leopold—Between Zborow and Brzezany an artillery battle of great violence developed. It diminished during the night and has increased again since daybreak.

Also at Zwyzyn, Brody, and Smorgon the artillery activity was lively at intervals.

AUSTRIAN.

VIENNA, July 6.—To the south of Casinu valley Roumanian troops, who had been prepared to attack, were dispersed by our fire.

In the Galician battle sector the enemy artillery fire increased yesterday afternoon and early today. An attack west of Zborow was repulsed.

TURKISH.

Our troops captured yesterday 202 Russians in repelling an attack. Five hundred Russians were killed with the bayonet.

ROUMANIAN FRONT

GERMAN.

BERLIN, July 6.—Army group of Archduke Joseph — We observed preparations of Roumanian infantry for an attack against some heights held by us south of the Casinu valley. These were dispersed by our destructive fire.

Army group of Field Marshal von Mackensen—On the lower Danube the enemy was more restless than he had been lately.

AUSTRIAN.

VIENNA, July 6.—There is nothing important to report.

RUSSIAN.

PETROGRAD, July 6.—In the region of Ballestchi the Germans displayed white flags and called upon our soldiers to fraternize. They were met by the fire of our artillery. There were fusillades on the rest of this front.

FRENCH FRONT

FRENCH.

PARIS, July 6.—The day was marked by an increase in artillery activity in the sectors of Vauxaillon, Laffaux, La Royere farm, and Bray en Laonnois.

In Champagne we have carried out in the sector of Mont Haut and to the east of Mont Carnillet detailed operations which enabled us to reduce two small salients and to capture a score of prisoners. The enemy who attempted four times to recapture the terrain we had taken suffered heavy losses to no avail.

DAY STATEMENT.

The artillery fighting was rather spirited for a time between the Miette and the Aisne. Three attacks on small posts in this region were repulsed by our fire.

In the Champagne there was active artillery fighting, especially at Le Casque and Le Teton. We easily repulsed enemy attacks west of Mont Carnillet and southeast of Tahure.

On the left bank of the Meuse (Verdun front) our batteries directed a destructive fire on German defenses west and north of Hill 304. Patrol encounters near Louvemont on the right bank of the river enabled us to take prisoners.

There is nothing to report from the remainder of the front.

BRITISH.

LONDON, July 6.—The artillery has been active on both sides of the Scarpe (east of Arras) and in the Messines and Nieuport sectors (Flanders). There is nothing further to report.

DAY STATEMENT.

The Germans attempted a night raid on the British posts near Bullecourt which was repulsed. There is nothing further to report.

BELGIAN.

PARIS, June 6.—Enemy artillery bombarded various sectors on our front. Spirited bomb fighting took place in the region of Het Sas. The enemy artillery bombarded Dixmude. An enemy patrol was dispersed by one of our reconnoitering parties to the south of St. Georges.

GERMAN.

BERLIN, July 6.—On account of the haze and rain, only the usual fighting activity took place throughout the day. Towards evening there was better visibility and firing was often revived. At night there were several reconnoitering engagements.

Due north of the Aisne shock troops belonging to a Wurtemberg regiment after bitter hand to hand fighting fetched a large number of French prisoners from enemy trenches.

ITALIAN FRONT

ITALIAN.

ROME, July 6.—On Wednesday night our detachments in a surprise attack pushed forward our line northwest of Selo, on the Carso, capturing outposts and taking prisoners. They maintained their gain against violent counter attacks.

On the following night the enemy, after violent artillery fire, attempted to retake the ground lost. His troops were mowed down by our barrage and machine gun fire. They retired in disorder, suffering considerable losses and leaving more prisoners in our hands.

Yesterday our artillery effectively shelled enemy troops in motion.

AUSTRIAN.

VIENNA, July 6.—There is nothing important to report.

MACEDONIAN FRONT

BRITISH.

LONDON, July 6.—The enemy gained a temporary footing on the ridge west of Doljeli (southwest of Lake Doiran), but was driven out by a counter attack.

Nineteen tons of explosives were dropped and considerable damage inflicted by British airplanes in June.

GERMAN.

BERLIN, July 6.—There were no military operations of importance.

FRENCH.

PARIS, July 6.—The artillery has been rather active in the Cerna bend.

TURKISH FRONT

BRITISH.

LONDON, July 6.—The situation is unchanged. There has been considerable artillery fighting.

We put out of action thirteen enemy guns and destroyed many gun implacements in June. The sickness percentage of the troops was lower than the average in Egypt in the five years preceding the war.

RUSSIAN.

PETROGRAD, July 6.—In the direction of Sakkie, in the Caucasus, in the region of Bistan and the River Abishirvan, our troops are engaged in battle with newly reinforced Turkish detachments. On the rest of this front there were fusillades.

SUPPLEMENTARY

GERMAN.

BERLIN, July 6.—Western theater—There is nothing new to report on this front.

Eastern theater—In eastern Galicia the battle developed afresh today. Massed attacks by the Russians between Zborow and Koniuchy and at Brzezany broke down with heavy enemy losses.

RUSSIAN THEATER

1—Russians bring down German airplane with artillery fire.

3—Petrograd reports sharp encounters in the Brzezany region.

ROOSEVELT AND GOMPERS CLASH ON RACE RIOTS

made. Mr. Gompers said the whole story should be told.

All was still apparently peaceful when Mayor Mitchel arose to introduce the Russian ambassador, but just here Col. Roosevelt, still fuming, asked to say a word. The colonel turned on Mr. Gompers. He screamed at him, and, standing over him, shook his fist in his face. The crowd cheered Col. Roosevelt and also boo-ed him.

Mr. Roosevelt was interrupted by Mr. Gompers, who rose from his seat and approached the former president.

"Why don't you accuse after an investigation?" the labor leader demanded.

With these words he returned to his seat. Roosevelt strode over to his chair and exclaimed:

"Mr. Gompers, why don't I accuse afterward? I'll answer now, when murder is to be answered!"

With that the colonel brought down on Mr. Gompers' shoulder his open left hand which he had raised above his head. At this juncture many of the men on the platform leaped to their feet and there was a storm of hisses, cheers, and "boos" from all parts of the house. When Mr. Roosevelt could make himself heard above the din he went on:

"I will go to any extreme to bring justice to the laboring man, but when there is murder I will put him down."

No Time for Apology.

"There should be no apology for the infamous brutalities committed on the colored people of East St. Louis," declared Mr. Roosevelt. "Justice is not a mere phrase. It has to be translated into action. How can we praise Russia for doing justice to all people when we must apologize for doing murder to the helpless?

"In the past we have listened to the same excuse from those in authority in old Russia for the fearful pogroms on the Jews. I will do anything for the laboring man except that which is wrong, and that I won't do for him or for any one else. I care not a snap of my finger for a telegram from the head of the labor unions of Illinois. Let there be the fullest investigation into these murders."

When the former president had finished, Mr. Gompers, evidently deeply stirred, started to rise to make rejoinder, but was pushed back into his seat by those who sat near him while Mayor Mitchel, who presided, pounded vigorously with his gavel in an effort to restore order.

Asked if he would make a statement when he was leaving the hall, Mr. Roosevelt said:

"I meant everything I said. I stand by it."

"How about the slap on Mr. Gompers' shoulder?"

"That wasn't a hard blow," he replied. "It was only a gentle touch. I did that to emphasize my point. I have no personal grievance against Mr. Gompers."

Calls Roosevelt Bluffer.

When Mr. Gompers was asked to give his side of the controversy he said:

"I was very much surprised and pained that the colonel acted as he did. He misunderstood me. I made no apology for the riots in the name of labor. I simply explained the situation as it had been reported to me. I repeat, I made no apology. Furthermore, I think the colonel could have reserved his charges—for that's what they were—until an investigation had determined the cause for the riots.

Ambassador Bakhmeteff received an enthusiastic greeting when he delivered his speech.

"The destiny of the world is at stake," he said. "Never have responsibilities of nations, governments, individuals, been so great.

Seek Partnership of Nations.

"There was for some time an illusion in the Russian democracy that the Russian revolution would set afire the edifice of German autocracy and that the German people, liberating themselves from the iron reign of the tyrant, would stretch to the peoples of the world their unselfish hand with a message of peace. It was an illusion which had to be lived over.

"Russia believes that a permanent peace can be enacted when all democracies will agree to hold to and follow certain precepts and embody them with all sincerity and without reserve. The nations must realize their common life and effect a workable partnership and secure that life against aggressions of autocracy and self-pleasing power."

German Woman Swindler to Prison.

BERLIN, July 6.—The notorious Mrs. Kupfer, whose swindling and "confidence games" were said to have netted her millions, was today sentenced to two and a half years' imprisonment.

ATTENTION EVERYBODY!!

The Continental Can Company is going to build its largest factory at Clearing. It will be a Four Million Dollar Plant. Work has already been begun. It will employ three thousand people.

This will require the building of homes for three thousand people at Clearing. There are four thousand people living at Clearing now.

This means that the population in the Clearing Section of Chicago will almost have to double within a year. If you know anything about what makes the price of real estate increase you know what this is going to mean. Today and tomorrow we shall begin that Chicago has seen in twenty years.

The Greatest Sale of Lots

During this sale, the prices of Clearing property will remain the same as they were before the Continental Can Company selected this district. After this sale, we will not guarantee to maintain these present prices. But today and tomorrow and while this sale lasts you can buy.

30x125 Ft. Residence Lots for As Low As $149
Pay $10 Cash and $5 Monthly

30 Ft. Lots on Car Line St. As Low As $350
Pay Only $10 Monthly

Half Acres for As Low As $675
Pay $50 Cash and $10 Monthly

Get here today or tomorrow and get some property if you have to beg or borrow the first payment. The prices on Clearing lots, with millions of dollars of improvements in this district, have actually been kept lower than the prices of raw land two miles further away.

Clearing is IN the City of Chicago, at 63rd St. and Central (56th) Avenue. Just take the car on 63rd St. marked "63-Central" (not 63-Central Park) and it will bring you right to the office of the property.

FRENCH RENEW OFFENSIVE IN THE CHAMPAGNE

Straighten Out Line; Repel Four Attacks by Germans.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

After checking the latest effort of the German crown prince in the Champagne the French took the offensive and succeeded in straightening out their line in the region of Mont Haut and Mont Carnillet, according to official reports. Gen. Petain's men held their gains despite four strong attacks, which they repulsed with heavy loss.

Switching his operations from north of the Aisne did not help the crown prince, as his effort in the Champagne west of Mont Carnillet and southeast of Tahure failed as did his recent heavy attacks north of the Chemin-des-Dames.

French Reduce Salients.

Gen. Petain responded to the German effort by reducing salients in his line east of the scene of the Teuton attack. The French not only captured prisoners but beat off counter attacks, showing that the Germans attached importance to the French gains.

On the rest of the French front and especially around the curve in the French line northeast of Soissons violent artillery engagements are in progress. To the north the British and Germans have shown little infantry activity outside patrol encounters and raids.

Russian Front Still on Fire.

A great artillery battle is in progress on the front where the Russians made their sudden advance early this week. Near Zboroff and between Zlochoff and Brzezany, in Galicia, the Russian and German guns are hammering the opposing lines, and near Smorgon, north of the Pripet marshes, the big guns are active.

Signs of a reawakening of activity on the front in Roumania are increasing, and near Bialestchi German attempts to fraternize with the Russians were answered by the artillery.

Northwest of Selo, on the Carso, an Italian surprise attack netted some gain of ground. Austrian counter attacks were beaten off successfully.

CONVENTION TO FREE IRELAND MEETS JULY 25

LONDON, July 6.—Premier Lloyd George announced in the house of commons this afternoon that the Irish convention would meet July 25 to deal with preliminary business, including the appointment of a chairman. He said the government had suggested Henry E. Duke, chief secretary for Ireland, as provisional or temporary chairman.

The premier added he thought it obviously better that the choice of a chairman should be with the convention. The first sittings of the body will be held in Dublin. The convention will be free to sit elsewhere, however, if it so decides.

The premier said he was glad to acknowledge the admirable public spirit displayed in the offers of many public buildings in Dublin for the sittings of the convention, and he hoped to be in a position to make a definite announcement regarding this. The government will do its utmost to assist the convention.

END STRIKE AT BLOOMINGTON; TROOPS ON JOB

Rioting Ceases as Chicago Boys Pitch Camp in City Square.

[BY A STAFF CORRESPONDENT.]

Bloomington, Ill., July 6.—[Special.]—The street car strike was settled this afternoon.

The street railway company agreed to take back the men on strike with the understanding that the men now employed are to be retained.

The issues in dispute, such as hours of labor, rate of pay, and whether the closed shop shall prevail, will be taken up next Monday by committees representing the Federated Shop Employés of the Chicago and Alton and the Street Car Men's union, Mayor Jones of Bloomington, and General Manager C. H. Chubbuck of the Illinois traction system.

Troops Patrol Streets.

Black muzzles of nine machine guns, bristling in a circle around the courthouse, and the 800 men of Col. Milton J. Foreman's Second Illinois field artillery had a hand in curbing the pugnacious inclinations of the strikers and sympathizers. Tonight the soldiers, carrying service automatic pistols and Springfield rifles, guarantee quietude to Mayor Jones and Sheriff Flesher.

For a brief time after the first trainload of Col. Foreman's men marched from their cars to a central camp on the courthouse grounds black clouds hung over the field.

Then representatives of the Illinois Traction company and D. W. Snyder, superintendent of the Bloomington and Normal Electric Power and Railway company, agreed to confer with a committee of the striking employés.

Parade, but No Riot.

While the two faction leaders were locked in the city hall some 1,200 workers on the Chicago and Alton railroad walked out in sympathetic strike. They walked in a great column, six abreast, through the streets of the business section.

They made no effort to "start anything," but marched around the courthouse, where the first detachments of Chicago militiamen were encamped, and hooted and howled. There was a grim tightening of soldiers' jaws, but no retaliatory word came from them.

Inside the city hall, two blocks away, C. H. Chubbuck, general manager of the Illinois Traction company, and President Snyder of the B. & N. sat with J. M. Patterson, president of the Trades assembly, Mayor Jones, and Chief of Police J. M. Jones.

The appointment of the committee to continue further negotiations on Monday was the final step in delaying further hostilities.

Strikers Hoot Soldiers.

President Patterson of the Trades' assembly made the decision known to the men massed outside the city hall. For a time the hotheads who caused all the trouble by following the advice of "Mother" Jones in the meeting Thursday night in Eagles' hall sought to stir things up again.

"Who brought the soldiers here?" they cried. "Let's run 'em out of town. Let's force recognition of the union once and for all."

"Listen, you men who would have bloodshed," Mr. Patterson interrupted. "These soldiers are here for business. They have ball cartridges and they have machine guns that would wipe you out without mercy if you resort to trouble making tactics.

Speech Sobers Up Crowd.

"These soldiers are here under orders to prevent trouble. I believe that they will carry out their orders and that violence would not only cost us many lives but would irrevocably prejudice our case."

The advice had a sobering effect and the hotheads were howled off their feet. The men turned and marched peaceably to their homes shouting:

"We've won the strike!"

East St. Louis Demands Law and Retribution

EAST ST. LOUIS, Ill., July 6.—[Special.]—The citizens' committee, at the meeting called by the chamber of commerce, today adopted the following resolutions in condemnation of the political causes and official negligence leading to the recent riots:

"The following declaration is promulgated:

"We, the citizens of East St. Louis, who are in favor of law and order and the protection of life and property, in a meeting assembled, declare that,

"First—Without undertaking to specifically account for the recent riots, it is necessary to state briefly what has occurred. About a month ago a riot took place, in which a number of citizens, under the pretext of driving from the city all colored people located here, marched down our streets and assaulted every colored person that came in their way, and it so happened that nearly all of the Negroes assaulted were of our old time citizens and most of them law abiding people.

"A number of vicious and lawless Negroes took advantage of the excitement brought about by this riot, and, under their leadership and impassionate plea for revenge, the worst element began to organize and arm themselves for this purpose, and on Sunday evening, July 1, when it was reported among them that some one was riding through the southern portion of the city, shooting into their homes, this lawless and armed band met at a late hour of the night in one of their churches on an agreed signal given.

"When the police officers learned that the Negroes were assembling in the church, believing that a riot was likely to start, a number of officers were sent to dispel them, and as they reached the church these officers, without any warning, were fired upon and two of them murdered. This greatly aroused the white people and was the immediate cause of the riot July 2.

"Second—We in the most emphatic terms condemn the action of the rioters in the latter part of May. By their action they were defying the law and were administering punishment to innocent and unoffending people.

"In the same manner we condemn the action of the lawless and savage Negroes who on Sunday night, July 1, armed themselves for the purpose of committing deliberate murder, and who carried out these intentions by killing two of the officers of the city.

"We are at a loss to find language to express our indignation concerning the action of the rioters on July 2; their unwarranted acts stand without a parallel in the history of our country. These rioters, without the slightest effort to discover the persons who had murdered the East St. Louis officers, directed their wrath against colored people who they knew had nothing to do with the murder. They in the most savage and brutal manner set fire to their homes and shot them down as they were fleeing for their lives. Some were not permitted to escape and lost their lives in the flames of their burning homes.

"Third—We believe that the principal cause of this riotous conduct was the laxity in the punishment of crime that has prevailed for some time past. On account of this indisposition to punish crime there has grown up in our midst irreverence for the law that has brought about the harvest that we have just reaped.

"Many criminals, both black and white, have found a congenial home in our city and have carried on their criminal acts without the slightest fear of the pains and penalties of the law. For all of this the police department of our city and those officials charged with the conservation of the law are the most to blame.

"While we commend the action of Adjt. Gen. Dickson for the able and efficient manner in which he and the men under his direction are handling the present situation, and for which we feel extremely grateful, we must condemn the action of the militia who were in our city on the second day of July pretending to give to the city aid, but who were wholly inactive and in some instances aiding and abetting the rioters.

"Fourth—The good people demand that our city be rid of the criminal class that has recently infested it, that the law be strictly enforced without fear or favor, and that there be no influence in the city that can screen or immune any offender, that all law abiding persons in our city, be they ever so humble, white or black, rich or poor, be absolutely secure in their lives, property, and the pursuit of happiness, that all persons, hereafter, who have a grievance, be it real or imaginary, must resort to the law for redress, and we pledge that we will see that nothing be spared to punish persons, white or black, who attempt to take the law into their own hands.

"Fifth—We demand that the police department of the city be reorganized upon such a basis that the law will be enforced as hereinabove stated. And we pledge to the mayor our entire support in so reorganizing the police department of our city and in the bringing about every reform that tends to peace and good order.

"Sixth—We demand that every effort possible be put forth to punish the persons who murdered the officers Sunday night, July 1, and to punish all of the persons guilty of murder and arson and assaults on Monday, July 2."

POLICE GET "LINE" ON BARBERS' ROW BY ARREST OF 30

Thirty union barbers and three bottles of an evil concoction that caused Capt. Morgan Collins to turn pale and gasp for air when he uncorked one of them were seized in a raid on the union headquarters at 22 North Fifth avenue and taken to the central station yesterday.

The raid was made for the purpose of obtaining evidence in connection with a long series of window smashings and other violence directed at nonunion barber shops, including the dynamiting of J. W. Barnhart's shop at 112 North Dearborn street recently. Capt. Collins questioned all of the men arrested, and stated later that he had obtained an "inside line" on the workings of the union and the depredations committed.

Among those arrested were Louis Buck and Ray Williams, president and secretary of the union. Also included in the arrests were two men who are awaiting trial for robberies and are now out on bond. [illegible] the time the raid was made [illegible]erman, known to the police as [illegible]an," was picked up at Clark [illegible]ision streets and questioned re[illegible] the campaign of vandalism.

[illegible] stuff in the bottles evidently was [illegible] use in the making of 'stink bombs,' which have been thrown into nonunion shops," said Capt. Collins.

All of the barbers were released after the questioning.

Boys Who Tried to Steal Girls Accused of Burglary

Aurora, Ill., July 6.—[Special.]—A charge of burglary has been lodged against Floyd Brandenberg, 18 years old, and Herbert McDermott, also 18, the two Batavia boys who were captured at midnight, July 3, while trying to kidnap young women out of the state school for girls at Geneva. The boys, still shaking from their experience, fourteen intimidating shots having been fired as they stood on improvised balconies and wooed fearful Julietas, were released from the Kane county jail at Geneva last night. Their parents furnished bonds of $4,000.

Survey for Extension of Ogden Avenue Ordered

Engineers of the board of local improvements will begin immediately a survey of the territory affected by the proposed extension of Ogden avenue, it was announced yesterday by Michael J. Faherty, president of the board. The survey will be completed in six months, he believes, and is preparatory to condemnation proceedings. The Chicago plan commission has recommended an extension of the thoroughfare to Lincoln park.

COURT TO UNFOLD TEN YEAR OLD'S EVENTFUL LIFE

Mother Seeking Boy Now Protege of Rich Couple.

Joseph Le Mar Kaminski, 10 years old, who may be taken from the luxurious home into which he has been adopted, to return to his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Philip Kaminski of Detroit, who are in moderate circumstances, will have his eventful young life thoroughly scrutinized in the next few days.

Joseph is now the foster son of Mr. and Mrs. I. I. Nixon of Clinton, Ill., and he is with them now on a motor tour of the Wisconsin lakes, unaware that he may be taken away by the Kaminskis, from whom they allege he was kidnaped in 1910.

Must Prove Right to Boy.

Judge Victor Arnold of the Juvenile court has indicated that the Kaminskis may have the boy if they prove he is their child, despite the fact that he is now being treated with all the considerations of a scion of wealth. It was suggested yesterday that the boy may be offered a choice, but this seems unlikely.

Mrs. Kaminski, who will remain in Chicago until the case is settled, reiterated her story of how her son Joseph was kidnaped when a baby by Joseph Le Mar, a Chicago contractor, and later found to have been delivered to Mrs. Gertie Dingee, who then kept a boarding house at 711 North Clark street. Le Mar later killed his wife and himself.

Le Mar's Stories Conflicting.

Mrs. Dingee, who now lives at 5 West Erie street, told a reporter yesterday that Le Mar gave her conflicting accounts of the boy's antecedents. At first he said the boy was his own and later that he was a foundling. Mrs. Dingee said she turned the boy over to a probation officer.

Wilfred S. Reynolds, superintendent of the Illinois Children's Home and Aid society, who placed Joseph with the Nixons, left last night for Detroit to examine the evidence of the boy's birth.

THE DAY BOOK, ONLY "AD-LESS" NEWSPAPER, DIES

The Day Book died yesterday, aged six years.

"The only ad-less newspaper in the United States" couldn't make both ends meet, its publisher and editor, N. D. Cochran, announced yesterday in the valedictory issue. "The increased cost of white paper, together with other war contingencies, made it inadvisable to continue," he said.

Cochran, who is also editor of the Toledo News-Bee, will spend most of his time in Toledo and Washington. The Day Book was founded in 1911 and sold for 1 cent until last November, when it was raised to 2 cents.

The publication reached its high water mark of circulation when it sold 25,000 copies daily. At one time, the farewell editorial states, the paper was running at a monthly loss "of not over $500."

THE COPPER STRIKE.

GLOBE, Ariz.—At noon today conditions in Globe and Miami, where copper miners are on strike, were quiet, according to reports received by the sheriff's office. United States troops have established a regular patrol around the Old Dominion mine.

JEROME, Ariz.—It was estimated that about 250 miners failed to report tonight at the various copper mines in the Jerome district as a result of a strike order issued by the Industrial Workers of the World organization.

BISBEE, Ariz.—Pickets were posted today around the copper mines today following a meeting of strikers last night, which was addressed by an I. W. W. member.

GALLUP, N. M.—All mines of the Gallup American Coal company were idle today, the last of the miners leaving their work last night. A strike was called against the property Monday by the United Mine Workers of America, which asks recognition of the union.

BUTTE, Mont.—Efforts to end the strike of the Metal Mine Workers' union, which, with the strike of the electricians, has all but closed the copper and zinc mines of the Butte district, reached the stage tonight where a committee of the miners' union went into conference with representatives of the International Mine, Mill, and Smeltermen's union to discuss the absorption of the miners by the International Mine, Mill, and Smeltermen's union.

Free Lunches Doomed.

Chief Schuettler issued an order yesterday directing enforcement of the ordinance prohibiting free lunches in saloons, which went into effect Thursday. A fine of not less than $5 nor more than $100 is provided for each violation.

NEGROES TO MEET GOV. LOWDEN AT CAPITAL TODAY

Will Take Memorial in Behalf of Colored Citizens.

Several of Chicago's representative Negroes will meet Gov. Lowden in Springfield today at noon, by special appointment, to hold a conference with him "in behalf of the 200,000 citizens of the state who belong to the colored race." They take with them a "memorial," which is the result of the recent race riots in East St. Louis.

A member of the committee, who brought to THE TRIBUNE a copy of the memorial, last night said:

"The inflammatory meeting held in Chicago the other night, when talk was made of arming with guns for protection, is not representative of Chicago Negroes. In our churches, our publications, and at our meetings we teach a different kind of logic.

Advised to Avoid Whites.

"We advise our people to avoid taking a seat beside whites in the cars; to refrain from being boisterous in them and in public places. We ask our people to avoid white restaurants and to patronize our own theaters.

"We are working for Negro schools in the black belt and have a place picked where we hope to establish a playground exclusively for colored children. We are working to segregate ourselves as far as possible and it can come without any act of law.

"The Negro who marries a white woman or the negro woman who marries a white man is ostracised in Chicago's biggest Negro district. We object to them taking up residence there. We do not approve of it."

Signers of the memorial and the committee named to take it to Gov. Lowden are composed of Edward H. Wright, Louis B. Anderson and Robert R. Jackson, prominent in Negro politics; Sheadrick B. Turner, Robert S. Abbott and Benjamin H. Lucas, editors of Negro publications, and Archibald J. Carey.

Show Touch of Pathos.

Extracts from the memorial, showing a touch of pathos which is typical of a race that has learned how to suffer, follow:

"We are in no position to exercise force. We would be reckless and foolhardy indeed to do other than to appeal to the best conscience of the American people and ask that the constitution be respected as to all citizens alike.

"We are but 'a drop in the bucket' as compared to the 100,000,000 citizens of America. We can do naught but appeal to the best conscience and Christian spirit of that vast body of American citizens who believe in law, who believe in God, who believe in the destiny of America—to point the way to a greater freedom and a wider liberty to all the people of the earth.

"If the answer should be that to us alone these blessings shall be denied, and for us must be slavery and serfdom or annihilation, we are ready for the sacrifice—for never will we of choice accept anything but justice."

REFUGEES STAY AWAY.

East St. Louis, Ill., July 6.—[Special.]—Only a few of the East St. Louis riot refugees will return. Of 400 in one camp in Missouri, only six volunteered to ride across the bridge in the packing town trucks.

An organized force of Negroes, led by Mrs. Ida Wells Barnett of Chicago, worked among the refugees, advising them to stay away from the Illinois side. She said they should refuse to return until East St. Louis has hanged at least one white man, legally, for Monday's rioting. Mrs. Barnett says that the Chicago Negroes are armed and ready for trouble.

A military inquiry was held today into the shooting late last night of Peter Veriosky, 2100 Market street, by Arthur J. Keating of Company L, Second infantry, Chicago. Private Keating attempted to halt a party of three in the vicinity of a plant against which several threats had been made. Keating testified that he ordered the party to halt three times, and fired after the third time. His story was verified, but the killing of Veriosky has added to the unrest.

Public officials, federal, state, and local, say they have been unable to find any evidence that would connect the race riots with either pro-German propaganda or with an I. W. W. manifestation.

ASHAMED

City Council Passes Resolutions Deploring the East St. Louis Mob Violence.

LOUIS B. ANDERSON, Negro alderman from the "black belt," yesterday offered the following resolution in a meeting of the Chicago council. It was passed without a dissenting vote:

Whereas, The good name of the state of Illinois has been besmirched by the recent lawlessness and mob violence in the city of East St. Louis; and,

Whereas, The safety of our government, the peace and happiness of its citizens depend upon the strict observance of the law by the people, and the rigid inforcement of the law by the properly constituted authorities, therefore be it

Resolved, That we deplore the actions of the mob, which resulted in the loss of many lives of innocent men, women, and children, the destruction of millions of dollars of property, and bringing disgrace upon the fair name of the state; and be it further

Resolved, That we call upon all citizens of whatever race or creed to unflinchingly respect the law and accord to all men those rights guaranteed under the constitution and the laws of the land.

'RED CROSS' TAG DAY MAY LEAD TO INQUIRY BY U. S.

Chicago Chapter Refers Case to Attorney General.

Prosecutions by the federal government loomed up yesterday as a possible aftermath of the tag day of the Independent Sisters of Charity in the loop on Thursday. Between $3,000 and $4,000 is said to have been collected. The case has been referred to Attorney General Gregory.

Accounts published beforehand of the purpose of the tag day stated that the Red Cross and destitute mothers with newborn babes would be beneficiaries. A permit was granted by the city council two months ago over the protest of many of the aldermen.

Statement by Champion.

"The Red Cross never has approved and does not now approve of the tag day method of raising money. It has never been the beneficiary of a tag day, has never authorized the use of its name in connection with a tag day.

"It has been reported that the name of the Red Cross was used recently by a Chicago charity for tag day purposes. If this is true the person or persons who did it are liable to severe penalty under the provisions of the federal statute which protects the Red Cross name and emblem.

"I am today reporting this matter to the office of the attorney general, asking for a full investigation, and if the facts warrant prosecution of the offenders the Red Cross will not hesitate to employ severe means to protect the public and itself."

Statement Not Available.

Efforts to obtain a financial statement of the sale were unavailing. The officers of the Independent Sisters of Charity, who were in charge of the day's work, were Mrs. Henry Sherry, wife of a draftsman, 3336 Douglas boulevard, general manager; Mrs. Charles Gutstadt, wife of a peddler, 1230 South Troy street, assistant manager; Mrs. B. Shackman, director of tag workers, address not known, and Mrs. Louis A. Shedroff, wife of a salesman, 1235 South Turner avenue, director of publicity.

The organization was a participant in the general tagging campaign conducted on Nov. 1.

Efforts yesterday to locate many of the taggers of Thursday were unavailing. The names and addresses given in answer to reporters' questions were false.

July Suit Reductions

THIS sale is not intended to interest those who are guided solely by price figures. It is a different kind of a sale, a sale in which quality plays just as important a part as price. If you want to get a good suit at considerably less than the usual cost, this event should interest you immensely.

The suits in this division are worth more now than before. The cost of wool has advanced. But the lines are broken and must be cleared. A wonderful opportunity for men and young men to save a substantial sum on a suit purchase, as these spring and summer garments, in all sizes, have been radically reduced to $18.75

The broken lines of our very finest spring and summer hand-tailored suits have been assembled in this division to facilitate a quick clearance. All sizes are represented, including special sizes for short, stout, and tall men. The suits cost more at wholesale than the reduced price of $28.75

New arrivals of smart novelty suit styles for young men, single and double breasted models in summery weaves, unexcelled values at $15, $20 and $25.

This store will close at 6 P. M. today and every Saturday throughout the year.

CONSPIRACIES AGAINST OUR PEACE.

Without desiring to exaggerate evils inherent in our present internal situation, it is advisable to consider frankly the possibilities of artificially stimulated disorder in order that public opinion may promptly support the authorities and give no aid to disturbances under a mistaken impression of their character.

We understand that it is held by the German government to be a legitimate war measure to create domestic trouble or external aggression even against a neutral nation. That has been confessed or proved. We must realize, therefore, that now we are in a state of war what restraint existed before upon such a policy, if there was any, has disappeared. We must expect German or pro-German agencies to be busy stirring up disturbances in this country for the purpose of embarrassing our conduct of operations, and we must do all that is possible to meet the danger promptly and resolutely.

Charges are being made that the East St. Louis riot was assisted if not deliberately fomented as a part of this secret campaign. We have no doubt this will be thoroughly inquired into by both the federal government and Gov. Lowden. But the field of industry is an even more promising source of conspiracy and we hope patriotic labor leaders and union men will guard it carefully. From organizations like the Industrial Workers of the World we can expect nothing but trouble. But unionism as a whole is loyal and we feel sure can be relied upon to stamp out conspiracies.

The danger of the situation lies in this. We know the socialist party in America is more German than socialist; that it is largely made up of Germans and other hyphenated Americans sympathetic with Germany. This brand of socialism is to be found in the ranks of union labor and it is influential. It will do what it can to encourage strikes, opposition to military service, and other disturbance.

Besides this there is an extreme pacifist element which does not accept the reasoning which has brought the United States into the war, which theoretically opposes all war, and which pretends to believe that our policy and that of our allies is dictated by capitalistic interest. This element will work with pro-Germanism to disturb conditions.

Against them, happily, is an influential element, including such leaders as Samuel Gompers, John Mets, Simon O'Donnell, and others, which realizes its duty as citizens and which has grasped the larger aspects of the conflict for the overthrow of militaristic imperialism. We are confident this loyal Americanism belongs to the majority of wage earners and union members, who, we are confident, will help to preserve peace at home and to energize the effort for victory.

The question of strikes is a serious one. No one would wish wage earners who may be suffering from grave injustice or oppressive conditions to surrender the right to strike altogether. But it is fair to demand of organized labor that it limit its use at this time to cases of ultimate necessity—and such cases, we believe, will not arise. Avoidable strikes or lockouts are moral treason when the nation is at war and especially in such a war as we have entered. Both employers and employés should do their utmost to maintain harmony through compromise and even sacrifice. Public opinion will punish industrial warfare as gross disloyalty and will support the authorities in strong measures of suppression. Employers should recognize the conditions of labor and employés recognize the new burdens and heavy responsibility of employers.

This is the time for all of us to show our gratitude to the republic and our love of country by moderating our private desires and working shoulder to shoulder for the common cause.

HOW THEY VOTE IN PRUSSIA.

The cause of "democratization," meaning apparently some electoral reform and nothing more, seems to gain ground day by day in Prussia. If it succeeds, the Prussians will enjoy greater freedom in electing representatives who, when elected, are not allowed to represent them, unless democratization proceeds farther than liberalizing the franchise. Yet, when all Prussia is agog over electoral reform, it is instructive to discover how Prussians vote at present.

The Prussian citizen votes indirectly through electors and his voting strength depends on the amount of his income tax. Voters who have paid a third of the total income tax choose a third of the electors, and these electors choose a third of the members of the reichstag. Voters who have paid the next third of the total income tax do the same. So with the remaining third. Thus from 3 to 5 per cent of the voters control one-third of the reichstag. From 10 to 12 per cent control another third. The great mass of the people get what is left. Inequality is not only permitted, it is prearranged and enforced. In each of something like 2,000 first grade electoral districts the first grade electors consist of but one Prussian. "Rotten boroughs," long ago abolished in England, persist in Prussia.

No effort has been made to district the country in accordance with its present population. A system in use ever since 1871 gives the landed aristocracy every advantage. Berlin is now as large as Chicago and should send twenty-four delegates to the reichstag. It sends nine. One district has 313,000 inhabitants, another barely 34,000. While a quarter of the population is rural and elects 161 deputies, another quarter in the cities elects forty-one. In 1903 the Socialist vote was 18.8 per cent of the grand total, but not one Socialist candidate was elected.

Before us lie the figures of an election in which 2,315,916 Prussians took part. The Social Democrats cast 601,093 ballots and elected seven members of the reichstag. The Conservatives cast 358,110 and elected 152 members. The Clericals cast 502,594 and elected 104 members. The Liberal People's party should have elected forty, according to our American idea of suffrage. It elected twenty-eight.

All this, of course, may be a mere academic discussion. If so the proposed electoral reform is likewise academic. For the reichstag itself is.

Americans who have lived in Germany often tell us that democracy prevails there, and so it does if you give that name to a system of state socialism granted to the people by a benevolent despotism. We don't. We demand a government of and by the people. This is what Germany lacks. It is what America would lack under German rule.

A LESSON FROM EAST ST. LOUIS.

When Negroes live in any considerable numbers in any community and become an object of political favors and manipulation, the basis for an outbreak like that of East St. Louis is laid. Make no doubt about that.

In other places than East St. Louis this condition exists in a more or less malevolent form—in other places not so far from our own doorsteps that we can afford to ignore this truth. In East St. Louis many Negroes of the lower order were the tools of the local politicians. Their law-breaking had been condoned. Insolence and even violence had gone unrebuked and this could have no other outcome than a revolt of the whites. Race feeling is nothing to be tampered with. It was inflamed in this case. Economic rivalry was probably another factor. But we shall make a grave mistake if we do not face the fact of political corruption as an element of danger there and elsewhere. The bosses of East St. Louis are not the only ones unscrupulous enough to play this game. Decent whites and decent Negroes should unite to disappoint their devices wherever they appear.

THE ROCKFORD SLACKERS.

The testimony in the slacker cases before Judge Landis shows that the United States has not only been a haven for the oppressed but a haven for the scum and the dregs of humanity. These despicable beings never drew an honorable breath; they were cheaters from birth. Their theory of life is to take and not give. They demand the benefits of our civilization and then seek to escape its responsibilities. But the climax is reached when they try to justify their actions on conscientious grounds. Judge Landis performed a public service by promptly imposing the severest sentence under the law, but even that sentence is not severe enough. It is a problem what to do with them. They are of no use to themselves or to anybody else. They are not even good enough to fight for us.

MARY PICKFORD AND MAJOR FUNKHOUSER.

It must be a source of regret to Maj. Funkhouser that he can't censor President Wilson's speeches. The major must feel that the president is violating the spirit if not the letter of the Chicago film ordinance. Doesn't the ordinance prohibit anything "tending to create hatred toward any class of people"?

Now, you must understand that Maj. Funkhouser did not bar Mary from Chicago because of any solicitude for the German cause. O, dear, no. It was all because of the ordinance. Amid crashing worlds, Maj. Funkhouser stands on the civic firing line tightly grasping that inspiring document.

It is a wonderful gesture, we admit, but at the same time we should like to convey a word of admonition to Maj. Funkhouser. We suggest he will do well to avoid the appearance of having joined the ranks of the city hall secessionists, no matter how sacred he regards city ordinances. The man on the street looks at the barring of the Mary Pickford film as a political play, and no amount of fine explanation will alter his opinion. He is convinced it is just another development of Big Bill's transparent anti-war activities. Maybe it is.

UBIQUITOUS TAGGING.

The tag day business is being overworked. Nearly every week, it seems, a new set of taggers is on the street. The multiplicity of these events has made "dodgers" of us all, with the result that the taggers have to resort to all sorts of means to land a victim. Perhaps we are not being victimized, but there is a suspicion in some cases that the destination of the funds is open to criticism.

We believe the city council is to blame for the indiscriminate issuance of permits. Under the old system there were only two tag days a year—one in the spring for children's charities and one in the fall for old people's homes. They were conducted with little or no impropriety, and the results were uniformly successful.

Tagging is a kind of taxation for charity. It is worth doing because it collects small amounts from a large number of persons who never give to charities. But it does not accomplish that object unless the tagging is performed on a large scale.

For the most part our charities are supported by a small group of philanthropic individuals. This group comprises only a small section of those who can afford to give. A successful tag day passes around the burden, but the prevailing system makes a successful tag day impossible. Frequent tag days put a premium on avoiding the tagger. They react to the disadvantage of worthy charities.

The objection to having young girls do the tagging will gather a great deal of force if the council continues to grant numerous permits. As it becomes more difficult to sell the tags, the girls are forced to make greater efforts, and the dangers of the situation are naturally increased. The flirt won't get very far if everybody is buying a tag, but if there are few purchasers he can make himself conspicuous—and obnoxious.

WOOL SHORTAGE.

[From the American Sheep Breeder.]

To slaughter for meat at this time a breeding ewe or ewe lamb is high treason, and we believe our great interests are sufficiently patriotic and unselfish to devise some measure to save our precious breeding stock. If this isn't done, Lord save our sheep industry!

Millions of western ewes and ewe lambs were lost by storm and insufficient feed. Our wool clip this year will fall short many millions of pounds. The western lamb crop is the lowest in years. In some states it will run not over 40 per cent; in some sections not over from 10 to 15 per cent were saved. Something heroic must be done—something besides talk and prayer are need to save the wool industry of the United States.

To see if in the devil's parlor he,
By some ironic chance, the Holy Grail
My mind is clouded even yet with doubt:
I shrink to disobey divine command,
Yet cannot stand aloof, the pale without
It may be that our brother men so dear
Are making for themselves an earthly hell;
Or this may be the thunderstorm, to clear
The sickly air and break delusion's spell.
But this I think: that those of us who fight
Serve, not the God of Love—the God of Right!

GHOSTS OF THE NEW WORLD.

(Alfred Noyes, in The Bookman.)

There are no ghosts, you say,
To haunt her blaze of light;
No shadows in her day,
No phantoms in her night.
Columbus' tattered sail
Has passed beyond her hail.

You'll meet in Salem town
No silver-buckled shoon;
No lovely witch to drown,
Or burn beneath the moon;
Not even a whiff of tea,
On Boston's ghostly quay.

Then let your Pullman cars
Go roaring to the West;
Till, watched by lonelier stars,
The cactus lifts its crest.
In that strange painted land
One desolate shade shall stand.

Majestic and forlorn,
Wreck of a dying race,
The Red Man, half in scorn,
Shall raise a spectral face,
Inscrutable as the sky,
To watch our ghosts go by.

O, ghostly Spanish walls,
Where brown Franciscans glide,
Is there no voice that calls
Across the Great Divide
To pilgrims on their way
Along the Santa Fé?

What? On that magic coast,
Where Raleigh fought with fate;
Or where that Devon ghost
Unbarred the Golden Gate,
Saw you no strange bronzed men
Beat in from sea again?

Must all those dead lie still?
Must not the night disgorge
The ghosts of Bunker Hill,
The ghosts of Valley Forge,
Or England's mightier son,
The ghost of Washington?

No ghosts where Lincoln fell?
No ghosts for seeing eyes?
I know an old cracked bell
Shall make ten million rise,
When his immortal ghost
Calls to the slumbering host.

MEASURING BABY'S FOOD.

WHEN the mother of a young baby cannot breastfeed, she finds that there are three objections to the use of ordinary cow's milk. First, ice is required, and the use of ice is expensive. Second, city milk as it comes to the consumer is too old to be safe. Third, the methods of milk modification usually given are much too complicated for an ordinary woman. The usual formula contains a string of ingredients and each is to be accurately weighed or measured.

To overcome this last objection baby specialists are recommending a much simpler procedure. A baby requires one and a half ounces of milk for each pound of weight. A baby weighing ten pounds should have fifteen ounces of milk a day; one weighing sixteen pounds, twenty-four ounces; one weighing twenty pounds, thirty ounces. The milk is to be diluted with water and made more nutritious by the use of sugar.

The amount of water to be added is determined as follows: It is figured that a baby will take three ounces of food in the twenty-four hours for each pound of its weight. For instance, a baby weighing fifteen pounds will require forty-five ounces of food. Now a baby of this weight will need twenty-two ounces of milk. Therefore, twenty-three ounces of water is to be added. To this dilution sugar must be added. Most baby specialists hold that malt sugar is the best of the sugars, though its superiority is not great, even in the opinion of those who advocate it most strongly. It is more laxative than the other sugars. To begin with, one level tablespoonful of malt sugar is added to the twenty-four hours' feeding. This amount is gradually increased to three level tablespoonfuls if the child thrives on it.

It is preferable to make up the total amount of food required for twenty-four hours' feeding, to divide it into the proper number of feedings and to put each feeding in a separate nursing bottle and keep it on ice.

The number of feedings and the intervals between feedings are dependent upon the age of the child. Generally speaking, babies are fed too frequently. Rarely should the interval be less than three hours, and most children older than 4 months do better on four hour intervals. The stomach needs a chance to rest between feedings. A two hour interval means almost no rest interval for this organ. Again, most babies do better if allowed to sleep through the night without being fed.

More babies suffer from overfeeding than from hunger. Even when they seem underfed the probability is that the ability to digest and assimilate food has been impaired through overfeeding and that this is the indirect cause of the state of undernourishment.

DROOPING EYELID.

N. E. writes: "The upper lid of my right eye has a tendency toward drooping, causing my right, at times, to be smaller than the left. I have been advised to have it operated upon. Is the operation serious and what chances are there of recovery? I would not undergo it if I thought there was danger. Do you think massaging would be better?"

REPLY.

Such a condition may result from tire. If so, rest, and particularly the use of properly fitting glasses, would cure it. I have no idea, however, that the condition is more marked and more permanent than the description given would indicate. The operation for drooping lids is reasonably free from danger and reasonably certain to cure.

TEPID WATER PREFERABLE.

Rose W. writes: "1. I am a young woman 23 years of age and want to know whether it is harmful to go swimming any time in the summer during the menstrual period? 2. My periods reoccur about every twenty-four or five days instead of twenty-eight. Have I any reason to be worried or is it of no significance? My general health is good."

REPLY.

1. Yes. Bathing in the tub in tepid water is helpful. Swimming in cool or cold water is harmful.
2. No.

A HOME ENLISTMENT.

E. E. writes: "I see that you answer war questions. I have one to ask you. Does a man who enlists in the army or is drafted in have to go over to Europe to fight if he does not want to, or can the government force him to go? I would like to enlist, but do not like to go to Europe."

REPLY.

If you join the army you will be subject to orders.

SEVERAL CAUSES POSSIBLE.

S. R. S. writes: "Please advise through your column what causes breath to have the odor of 'rotten eggs' about two hours after meals. Could tonsils be the cause? Can this be corrected?"

REPLY.

The cause of bad breath varies. In some cases it lies in the tonsils and when these are removed the symptom vanishes. It may be that the teeth need attention, or the nose. In many instances the objectionable gases are absorbed into the blood from the large intestines. They are excreted by the lungs. In such cases the diet should be changed.

A BANTAMWEIGHT.

Reader writes: "[1]. I am a young man 22 years of age; am about 5 feet 4 inches tall and weigh about 115 pounds. Would you please state in your columns how much should one of my height and age weigh? [2]. What would you advise me to do to increase weight? [3]. Also state if I could be accepted in the army or navy weighing as stated above?"

REPLY.

2—Exercise. Eat a bowl of milk and sugared rice twice a day in addition to your other food. Sleep long and at regular hours. Do not worry or fret. Keep on your feet.
3—If you have a well developed and symmetrical frame and good muscles you will probably get by.

SCALES ON INFANT'S HEAD.

Mrs. T. P. writes: "We are very much interested in your column and would like your advice on how to remove scurf or scales from an infant's head. The baby is 6 weeks old.

REPLY.

Usually the eruption can be removed with grease. You are more interested in preventing its formation. Your milk is too rich. Your baby is overnourished. To make your milk more watery you should drink more water and eat less. Give the baby water just before he nurses.

WOULD SPOIL CHANCE.

N. L. writes: "Would a case of rupture where the man only removes his truss when retiring be cause to keep a married man out of the army? When doing too heavy work it bothers him. (2) Is this serious?"

REPLY.

1. It would.
2. Moderately so. He should consider an operation.

VICE + POLITICS = RIOTS

BY HENRY M. HYDE.

EAST ST. LOUIS, Ill., July 6.—[Special.]—In any city where Negro gamblers and dive keepers are given protection by the municipal authorities; in any city where ignorant Negroes—particularly recent immigrants from the south—are allowed to do about as they please, race riots are certain to follow.

The awful outrages here in East St. Louis were chiefly due to these causes. They will have the same effect in any city.

Race antagonism lies just below the surface in most men, even under normal conditions. Humanitarians deplore it, but it remains a fact. Scientists explain that race prejudice of the white against the black is nature's rough and ready method of protecting the superior—because more highly specialized—race against the encroachments of the lower—because less highly specialized—race.

Whatever the name or the explanation, race antagonism is still an unpleasant and, under some circumstances, a terrible fact. It is idle to ignore it.

And there is no question that here in East St. Louis the race hatred of whites against the blacks has been fanned to a flaming fury. I have talked to dozens of white citizens here and without exception they show a feeling against the black man which promises a renewal of trouble if conditions are not radically changed.

"It was hard that the innocent had to die with the guilty," said one old man, evidently a laborer of German birth or descent, "but they had to be cleaned out. We couldn't live here any longer, the way the Niggers were acting."

He was bitter also in denouncing Mayor Mollman and the other city officials.

"They're to blame for it all," he said, "and when the soldiers get out of town, Mollman and his crowd had better go with them."

I saw two elderly white women, leading little girls by the hand, stop on the main street and glare across at a young colored woman as if they would like to tear her to pieces. Twice, after starting on, they stopped, looked angrily across the street, and seemed to be debating with considerable heat some course of action.

"There is certain to be a recurrence of these riots," said one of the most respected residents of the city," if the vicious and disreputable elements—both black and white—are not permanently driven out of East St. Louis. The town has been a center for all sorts of vice and debauchery. The officials have permitted the Negroes, especially just before elections, almost unlimited license."

Leaders among the Negroes also have helped to stir up race antagonism towards the whites among their own people. A real estate dealer, Pearl Abernethy, and Dr. I. N. Bundy, a dentist, are especially blamed. It is said that on Monday night, after the shooting of the two white detectives, special bands hunted for these and other black leaders with the announced intention of killing them on sight. But they had seen the danger and fled the city.

Dr. Bundy was under investigation at the time of the last presidential election, under charges of attempting to colonize Negro voters from East St. Louis in Chicago. He is said now to be in that city.

A prominent and respected citizen of East St. Louis—a white man—was out in the streets all Monday night trying his best to protect innocent Negroes from death at the hands of the rioters.

"Down at the relay station," he says, "a young Negro woman was attacked by four or five white women and about as many men. The white women were prostitutes. The men with them were half drunk. The white women were tearing the clothes off the young Negress. Myself and another white man tried to protect her, but found it difficult.

"I went to Mayor Mollman and told him that if he would give me one policeman I would undertake to arrest and lock up these white women and their male escorts. He said he could not give me a man. Then I tried the officers commanding the national guard, but with no better success.

"One national guardsman, standing on the steps of the city hall, said to me, 'We cannot protect these Negroes. When it comes to that, no city is big enough for both races to live in at the same time.'"

The fact seems to have been that the 200 or more national guardsmen who arrived in East St. Louis on Monday and Monday evening came from the towns in the southern end of the state, where the Negro problem is almost as acute as it is here. The testimony is that they were practically swamped by the crowds on the streets, but that even when opportunity offered they made nothing like a determined effort to protect the terrified Negroes.

Under normal conditions race feeling in cities where whites and blacks both are residents rarely grows into open outbreaks, and sometimes almost seems to disappear. But—as has been the case here—when colored voters are made political pawns and their political leaders are, in return, protected in the running of gambling houses and disreputable resorts, it may be set down as fairly certain that serious trouble will result.

THE ENEMY AT HOME.

[From the New York World.]

THE SHAME OF ILLINOIS

WHOLESALE BRUTAL MURDERS.

[From the Nashville Tennessean.]

Lincoln's birthday is observed in Illinois by pseudoes and much oratory, but on any one of the other 364 days of the year Lincoln is liable to be forgotten, while mobs rage through the streets of Illinois cities and play and impoverish the descendants of the race that honors Lincoln as their liberator.

The south has been blamed by northern papers for isolated lynchings, but never has there been the wholesale murder of innocent blacks as witnessed in Illinois. THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, which has been so rancid in its editorials upon the lynchings of individuals in the south, after heinous crimes, will find itself peculiarly situated in commenting upon the riotous mobbing of innocent Negroes in its own state.

Perhaps the certain northern "brothers" of the Negro who petitioned President Wilson to act on the lynching of the Negro at Memphis will also petition him to act on the carnage in Illinois.

Perhaps!

THE EAST ST. LOUIS ORGY.

[From the Memphis Commercial-Appeal.]

It will not do in considering the East St. Louis tragedy for the southern people to cry tu quoque to their northern neighbors.

We cannot justify the commission of crime in the south by pointing to the fact that the same crime is committed in the north.

The tragedy of East St. Louis not only beshames that city and the state of Illinois, but is a disgrace to the whole country.

The forces of the law all over this country have become attenuated.

Respect for the law is less than it has ever been in the history of America.

The ground sill of our governmental fabric was the rule of the law. The law written in our constitution was the expression of the people as to their rights, their liberty, and their hopes.

The horror of the East St. Louis situation is not in the death of twenty-one or twenty-two people, either white or black, but in the anarchy that prevailed in that city for more than thirty-six hours.

The humiliating thing was the inability of the police and the militia to take care of even themselves.

[From the Atlanta Journal.]

One's first impulse in commenting on the East St. Louis [Ill.] riots is to remind certain self-righteous sealots of the northern press of the opprobrium they have heaped upon the south in somewhat similar though far less aggravated circumstances.

But the East St. Louis occurrence is too serious and deplorable a thing for sectional recrimination. For its own part the Journal is not disposed to taunt that unfortunate community with charges of barbarism or admonish our erstwhile bitter critics that "it is a good divine who follows his own instructions." We feel sure that in Illinois, as in Georgia, prevailing sentiment is for law and order and justice; we know that there, as here, a whirl of passion cannot be taken as a fair measure of the broad current of a people's thought and life.

To the right thinking, representative people of that city we leave the task of setting their house in order. They alone can do it, for they alone know the real elements of their problem.

Can it be said that Illinois or any other northern state to which the Negro has been migrating offers him these opportunities? We think not. What happened in East St. Louis would never have happened, from such causes, in the south. But it might have happened in any one of scores of northern communities if the influx of Negro labor had been as heavy in them as in East St. Louis.

And that problem and peril will continue as long as great numbers of Negroes are enticed from the southern agricultural south, where they naturally belong, to the crowded industrial sections where they are woefully out of place.

ANARCHY IN ILLINOIS.

[From the Houston Post.]

To have this shameful exposure of savagery raging in the heart of the country at a time when the nation is giving vent to the loftiest purposes which can animate it is peculiarly humiliating. It not only shames the nation, but it reproaches the nation's allies now engaged in the noblest effort of history to suppress savagery and brutality and to reënthrone Christian civilization among men.

We know that it is inhabited by a great and enlightened people. Its many works of constructive civilization prove that. Are the lawless few to override a great commonwealth's ideals and devotion to law and kill and burn without restraint?

Is the city of East St. Louis to continue to bring reproach upon a great state and a great nation and become a pesthole such as the most savage of all wars has failed to produce in Europe?

Unless Illinois can hold its wild element in leash, it ought to call upon the president for assistance, for surely he cannot strike with the full power of righteousness in the great struggle to save human civilization if anarchy must be strained stains American soil with blood.

THE FURY OF SAVAGERY.

[From the Galveston News.]

The true and fundamental solution of this grave problem lies as a matter of duty and policy with the south. The south is the Negro's natural habitat, and the south has an economic need of him. The interest of the south and of the Negro are complementary in the truest sense.

A policy of justice is likewise the policy of expedience. The Negro labor which the south indispensably needs for its own economic well being, can be retained it the south will, in its treatment of the Negro, conform its practice to the chivalrous precepts with which it decorates itself. When the Negro goes north he is moved more by the repulsive of the conditions that beset him in the south than by the attraction of those that invite him to the north.

His natural preference is to live in the south, but that preference is not strong that it cannot be nullified by the injustices which are done him so frequently in the south. The Negroes of the south are not seeking social equality. They do, however, crave a larger opportunity for educational, economic and social progress than they enjoy, and it is the denial of this which makes so many of them yield to the lure of the north.

The south has only to reform its evil habits of conduct toward the Negro to keep him contented, and, by doing that, preclude a repetition of the carnival of savagery which the country has been called on to witness at East St. Louis.

IN LINCOLN'S STATE.

[From the Atlanta Constitution.]

And it looks as though, by employing their own methods, them mad-makers of the Negro question in Lincoln's state have set for themselves a more perplexing race problem than the world ever thought of!

Before they get through with it, it is probable that they will become convinced that our way is the best after all!

As to those colored folk who have escaped with their lives, they had better come back home where they were put off. And those who have not gone north can thank their lucky stars that they have stuck by the south, where every man is safeguarded in the right to work—and to live in peace and security if he works and leads the life of a decent, self-respecting citizen!

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE

NATURALIZATION AND ARMY ADVANCEMENT.

Chicago, July 5.—[Editor of The Tribune.]—The draft regulations as published show that a man who has declared his intention of becoming a citizen is liable to draft. The best prospects held out a drafted man are that he may rise to commissioned rank.

It would appear, however, that the declarant who is drafted has no such prospect. The writer, a former British subject, was discharged from the present officers' training camp at Fort Sheridan after three weeks' training because of incomplete naturalization, though in the opinion of his superior officers he is otherwise well equipped. He now has his choice between giving up his first papers and trying for a commission in the British army or of staying here and being drafted with no prospect of advancement. WENTWORTH F. JONES.

STOP EXPORTS TO NEUTRALS.

Geneva, Ill., July 5.—[Editor of The Tribune.]—Is anyone asking the people to sign a statement agreeing to abstain from certain foods on certain days.

I will gladly sign that statement when those in authority in this country refuse to feed Germany through the neutral countries. I refuse to deny my household necessary food in order that our enemies, the Germans, may be fed more wheat, more meat, more fats, in order to grow strong to kill our sons.

MARY M. BURGESS.

MADE HIS WIFE A BIGAMIST, AND ALL FOR NAUGHT

Second Husband Brought Into Home Lacks the Expected Cash.

Jacob G. C. Trumpover, so the evidence states, laid down the evening paper and looked over his glasses at Mrs. Olga Trumpover.

"I tell you what we do," he said. "You marry Clarence Georgeson and we'll fix to get his money."

Fifteen years of living with Jacob G. C. had made Mrs. Trumpover retiscent in the matter of disputing her lord. Jacob, she said, took her when she was 18 years old and for twelve years followed the conventions. He frequently followed certain little eccentricities of manner and ethics, which also were related in court yesterday, that made her hesitate to resist his extraordinary suggestion. So she compromised by saying nothing. This, too, was told in court.

Children Called Him Uncle.

"What happened?" asked Judge Uhlir.

"Well," said Mrs. Trumpover, "Jacob told Clarence that he was my brother and he was perfectly willing to have me marry him."

"I've bought you a wedding dress," he told his wife. "I paid $30 for it and I gave $5.75 for a wedding veil. You'll look some bride."

And he snickered a sinful snick.

"I stayed home with the children," said Mrs. Trumpover in resuming her story before Judge Uhlir, "and he made them call him 'uncle.' I had to call him 'brother.' He gave me $50 as a wedding present and then took it away from me.

A Woeful Discovery for Jacob.

"His father left him $1,500 and he bought an automobile. He sold that and bought another one for $450. He was getting out of funds. He never did work. I had to get the money. He made me do that, too. He thought he was going to get money of Georgeson."

Mrs. Trumpover and Georgeson were married. And then some one told Jacob Georgeson didn't have a cent.

"What!" he yelled. And he kicked Georgeson out of the house.

Yesterday he was due to appear on a charge of pandering. Mrs. Trumpover and Georgeson appeared. But Jacob probably is still going.

COUNCIL CALLS ON CITY TO HONOR FRANCE JULY 14

"France Day," the French "Independence Day," will be celebrated in Chicago July 14.

The city council, following the suggestion of Capt. Franklin R. Kenney and W. F. MacNeill, executive secretary of the French celebration committee, passed a resolution introduced by Ald. A. A. McCormick, urging all citizens of Chicago to display the tri-color and to hold appropriate celebrations on that day.

The resolution follows:

"Whereas, since July 14, 1917, is the One Hundred and Twenty-eighth anniversary of the independence of the French republic, and,

"Whereas, Our army is now fighting in France, and,

"Whereas, The president has called for volunteers to join our army, and,

"Whereas, We, as a nation, owe a debt of gratitude to the French for their aid in helping us secure our independence,

"Be it therefore resolved, that the city council in regular session assembled, hereby call upon all citizens to display the tri-color of France, our ally, on July 14, and to otherwise materially assist by urging all who can do so to go to the front, and,

A conference of Capt. Kenney with Mr. MacNeill resulted in the making of tentative plans for celebrations in Lincoln, Washington, and Garfield parks. A parade of military bands will be the feature of the day.

"France day" will be a recruiting day. It is planned to have three double deck busses made into temporary recruiting stations and stationed in the three parks.

State Closes Its Case in Tananevicz Bank Crash

The state closed its case yesterday against John M. Tananevicz, private banker, on trial before Judge Pam on a charge of receiving deposits while his bank, which failed last fall, was insolvent. It is estimated by the state that the depositors lost about $500,000. The defense will start its case Monday.

"REORGANIZERS" OF GRAHAM BANK INSPECT BOOKS

Niblack Aids Men Who Plan Payment, but Gives No Names.

Representatives of the "interests," which are said to be preparing to take over the Graham & Sons bank and pay "dollar for dollar," appeared yesterday morning at the bank. They were met by William C. Niblack, receiver, and asked him if he was willing to assist them in the work of appraisement.

"Delighted," said Mr. Niblack. "Take any of my map you want. Call for any help you need, and you will get it."

Assisted by the Graham brothers and several auditors they took possession of a large room on the second floor of the bank and spent the whole day busily going over books and securities.

Names Are Guarded.

Speaking of the work Mr. Niblack said:

"I was told that the identity of the men behind the reorganization must remain a secret for the present. For that reason I did not ask who they are nor was the information volunteered. I do not know their names, but I have faith that they are good men.

"I've taken in a lot of money, due the bank, today. If there is any weak point it certainly is not in the banking business of the Grahams. It could only be in investments outside; in real estate or possibly corporation stock that they might hold. The bank's business is in exceptionally fine shape. The Graham boys have conducted their bank right."

Niblack May Be Relieved.

If the deal for reorganization goes through, and all connected with the work declare it is certain, Mr. Niblack will be relieved of the work for the Chicago Title and Trust company, receiver.

John D. Black, attorney for the Grahams, said yesterday that the plan of reorganization is founded on "good, sound business" and not on sentiment. He added:

"It is in no wise a friendship matter. The bank has been a money maker and men financially able to put it back on its feet have been interested."

Auburn Creditors Meet.

Two committees of creditors of the defunct Auburn State bank met with Frank Spohr, acting for the Chicago Title and Trust company, receiver, yesterday. It was announced that all creditors of the bank should file claims at once with the trust company. A number of safety deposit boxes in the Auburn bank remain unopened.

Unless the owners appear soon or unless the keys are turned in the boxes will be drilled open.

Checks are being prepared to pay a 5 per cent dividend, the first, to depositors in the defunct "Paisley bank." Of the first 1,496 claims filed the total amounts to $213,795.19. Only a very few cents on the dollar will ever be paid. A number of depositors have never taken the trouble to file their claims.

BETTS' FRIENDLY POSE GOT $5,000, WIDOW CHARGES

Carleton Hudson Betts is again in hot water. This time he is being sued in Superior court for the recovery of $5,000 by Mrs. Ella K. Johnson, a widow residing at 4808 Lake Park avenue. Mrs. Johnson alleges that Hudson, while posing as a "family friend," inveigled her into giving him the money to invest.

Prior to her husband's death, which occurred in 1907, she testified, she gave him $1,500 of her savings to invest in notes. After her husband's death, she said, she turned over $3,500 to him, again receiving notes. The notes were signed by Ella L. Aldrich of Chicago and Mrs. Caroline M. King of Minneapolis. All of the notes, she alleges, proved worthless.

The defendant is the Carleton Hudson Betts who was mixed up in the case of former Judge A. N. Waterman.

AUCTIONEERS OF CHICAGO GIVE MRS. SRERY $75

Additional contributions totaling $88.10, including one of $75 from the Association of Chicago Auctioneers, have been received for Mrs. David Srery by THE TRIBUNE. Mrs. Srery is the widow of the junk dealer who was slain by a gang of boys. The fund now totals $448.80, as follows:

Association of Chicago Auctioneers	$ 75.00
Sisters of Aid of the South Side Hebrew congregation	10.10
Mrs. M. N.	1.00
Total	$ 86.10
Previously acknowledged	362.70
Grand total	$448.80

The additional contributions have been given to Mrs. Srery.

GOSSIP OF BOOKS OF THE DAY

LIFE OF VILLON AND HIS TIMES

BY ELIA W. PEATTIE.

It was a happy day for those who love their Villon when H. de Vere Stackpole decided to write a biography and conduct a literary critique of that unforgotten poet and knave. Ask for "FRANCOIS VILLON: HIS LIFE AND TIMES" (Putnam's) and you will possess a book which will provide you with delight for many evenings. Stackpole is no advocate, no apologist, yet he enters upon his task with unfeigned loyalty to that great son of the University of Paris, that "first lucid poet of France," that man who ran the gamut of sin and sanctity, of degradation and beauty, and whose genius made him akin to all men.

The biography is a scrupulous one. Mr. Stackpole is at pains to hunt down each treasured rumor. He searches out events, is a detective for the discovery of incidents, and he sets Villon in his time, surrounds him with his friends and foes, and breathes into him the vivid life which made the ballade maker the most palpitating man of his time.

That he makes him to a great extent the victim of fate suits our sympathies. These sympathies intensify as we see him pass from Paris to be swallowed up in that solitude for which he had so little feeling. For Rabelais' story of Villon's unclean old age Stackpole has no credence. "We may presume," he says, "that Villon died shortly after his exit from Paris. It was the best thing he could do. He had lived his life. Recklessness, disaster, starvation, punishment, and death, all these terrible things seized him in turn, and from them all, as they devoured him, he drew the food for his genius—but more especially from death." Villon's greater poems find able translation from Mr. Stackpole's fidelity.

Margaret Skinnider
AUTHOR OF "DOING MY BIT FOR IRELAND." CENTURY CO.

The above unconventional portrait of Margaret Skinnider shows her as she disguised herself as a Fianna boy during the Dublin revolt of last year. Her book, "Doing My Bit for Ireland," will not endear her to the British government, which she most heartily hates.

Miss Wyatt's Companions.

"GREAT COMPANIONS" is the title which Miss Edith Wyatt has chosen for her book of literary essays (Appleton). The companions are the books and the spirits of the men who wrote them—the books and spirits of Stephen Crane, of Henri Fabre, of Defoe, Henry James, Du Maurier, Shelley, and a number of others. Miss Wyatt's comments are discerning and judicious. She has a mind that weighs well and that takes on conviction with a certain finality. She is not witty, but she is sometimes original, and always earnest, and the sobriety and lucidity of her writings give a solid satisfaction.

There is something tonic about her. Take, for example, her essay, "Nonsense About Women." She speaks of the rubbish concerning the "mystery about women." "Why," she inquires, "are women any more mysterious than children, or men, or eagles, or tigers, or any other manifestation of life?" And she hits Fiona MacLeod's absurd "Runes of Women" the good, healthy whack that they long have needed. Thousands have suffered from Fiona's wailing women, but none, until Miss Wyatt, has discountenanced their prolonged lament.

Miss Wyatt says: "A great deal of speculation has been expended lately on the consideration of how women would act if they had to be men and go to war, etc. It is odd and rather staggering, in the light of Mr. Sharp's type of consciousness (Fiona MacLeod and Sharp are one), to consider how men might behave if they became women. It would be a dismal circumstance if, just as women were setting out hopefully on the path of scientific inquiry and exploration, men were to start back along the road to the ideal expressed by the customs and the heroine of 'Scottish Chiefs' and the achievement of one's ends by means of fainting and bursting into tears."

The book contains plenty of spirited comment of this sort, as well as its fervid appreciation of many masters, chiefly, perhaps, William Dean Howells, whose point of view is very similar to Miss Wyatt's own.

A Swiss Rackmaster.

Mrs. Reginald De Koven, that true lover of curious histories and biographies, has written a book which many will prize, not only for the strange and melancholy story which it tells but for the beauty and dignity of the telling. "THE COUNTS OF GRUYERE" is the theme, and no more romantic one could have been found. Mrs. De Koven has had no need to add anything to the chronicle. She has not weakened it by fictive devices, but has written it as history, neglecting nothing that can add to the tale of this ancient family of the western Alps, and its proud régime.

For six centuries the counts of Gruyere ruled their pastoral kingdom—ruled by might as well as wisdom—succumbed through superstition and undue obedience and weakness. Many legends have woven themselves about the fortunes of this poetic family, and Mrs. De Koven has told these well; moreover, she has translated some of the songs which the minstrels of the château sang to celebrate its glories, and she has caused the book to be illustrated with unusually engaging pictures, glimpses of the town about the château, or of the château itself, still preserved through the devotion of lovers of beauty, although it is now 400 years since Gruyere held within its walls a hereditary heir. "The Counts of Gruyere" is a fine monograph, at once history and romance.

Charge Bakers with Conspiracy.

Washington, D. C., July 6.—The federal grand jury today indicted four local bakers and a grocer for alleged conspiracy to prevent delivery of bread to a grocerman who sold a regular 10 cent loaf for 9 cents. The indictments alleged violations of the Sherman anti-trust law and the general conspiracy act.

ON SHAKESPEARE AS A WORKMAN

ARMY CORPS, rather than legion, is the word best describing the number of books written on the subject of William Shakespeare and his works—without speaking of the very many volumes which seek to show that Shakespeare's real name was Bacon. Some of these books have scholarly and thoughtful merit and make good reading. More of them do not come up to such quality. But among the worthy, intelligent, interesting, truly readable ones must unquestionably be ranked Sir Arthur Quiller-Couch's recently published "NOTES ON SHAKESPEARE'S WORKMANSHIP" (Holt).

Quiller-Couch's work consists of essays—"first written as lectures, and so spoken before an audience in the University of Cambridge"—with "Macbeth," "A Midsummer Night's Dream," "The Merchant of Venice," "As You Like It," "The Story of Falstaff," "Hamlet," "'Pericles' and 'King Henry VIII'," "Cymbeline," "The Winter's Tale," and "The Tempest" for their themes; together with a particularly commendable and agreeably informational paper on "Shakespeare's Later Workmanship," wherein the last group of his plays is reviewed as to those plays' general characteristics, striking resemblances, neglect of unity of time, stage limitations, etc. And, throughout, the author does his best to point out, as he says in his brief preface, "just what Shakespeare was trying to do as a playwright." For, declares Sir Arthur, "this has always seemed to me a sensible way of approaching him, and one worth reverting to from time to time. It is no disparagement to the erudition so piously heaped about Shakespeare to say that we shall sometimes find it salutary to disengage our minds from it all and recollect that the poet was a playwright."

Very true, this. And very well done, the author's reasoning on the premises thus stated—free from all pretense, affectation, would-be depth, and indigestible heaviness. Wherefore "Notes on Shakespeare's Workmanship" is a book full of good, honest, unostentatious thought, happily phrased, and so not only gratifying to the genuinely comprehending lover of Shakespeare but also educational in the most pleasant sense of the word.

Life of Luther.

The four hundredth anniversary of the reformation has been celebrated in several ways. Elsie Singmaster has produced a brief biography, "MARTIN LUTHER" (Houghton Mifflin company), which recalls the chief events of his life and of the movement of which he was the leader.

HEINE'S POEMS IN ENGLISH FORM

BY BURTON RASCOE.

RUE poetry is at best only a half-articulate expression of the mood or emotion a poet feels. Whether a poem is brought forth in great labor or whether it springs, like Athene, full grown in line and lineament from the poet's brain, it must, when put into words, seem a pale and frigid record of the ecstasy, the exalted cerebration that conceived it.

Think but of the sincerest words of sympathy you ever spoke in a tragic circumstance, of an avowal of your love, of your exclamation at visual pleasure on beholding a splendid sunset, and you will realize how hollow and inept they were as indications of the reactions set up within you.

The poet's province is to give these precious wavelets their most adequate vocalization. The choice of words, the relation of vowels and consonants, the phrasal sequence the poet uses are so arbitrary that to alter them is to shatter the effect entire. Choose any bit of excellent verse and substitute for a word therein a synonym of equal length and like accent; use "gone" for "done" in Longfellow's "The Day is Done": the result resembles the original only as the mist resembles the rain.

That is why George Moore is right when he says that translating from poetry into poetry instead of poetry into prose is folly. When an unhappy choice of a word in the original can cause such havoc, it is clear how great are the exigencies to be met in conforming the thought and diction of one language to the thought and diction of another. Mr. Moore might have said that a true lyric, a perfect sonnet, cannot be translated at all, and that is one who has not at least an elementary knowledge of the pronunciation of a foreign language the great poetry of that language must remain unknown. Imagine, for instance, what even a word for word translation of Arthur Rimbaud's sonnet to vowels would be like.

All this is apropos Mr. Louis Untermeyer's new volume of translations of "POEMS OF HEINRICH HEINE" (Holt), without doubt the most comprehensive and most adequate rendition Heine's verse has had in English. But it is unsatisfactory for just those reasons why other Heine translations in verse are unsatisfactory. Consider. Here are 325 poems by one of the greatest lyricists of all times. And among all of them, when rendered into English verse, not one remains quotable, not one has that musical quality that leads to inevitable memorizing.

Not even the "Lorelei," "Du bist wie eine Blume," or any of those verses whose music remains forever etched in the subconsciousness of the first year German pupil. Here is what Mr. Untermeyer has done to the second verse of "Aus meinen grossen Schmerzen":

I let those grief and sweet flower—
Find those lyre and sweet heartbreaker;
Consolation and sweet relief
What they had seen in her heart there.

The valuable service Mr. Untermeyer has done to the whole English reading public is to prove that the force of Heine's irony, his bitter sarcasm, the virtuoso ease in the fall of verse of his poems, these modes of a distinguished poet, these periodic anticlimaxis which shatter a carefully built up sentimental mood, have been sickled over with the pale mist of lollipops in other English versions; but not so in Mr. Untermeyer; he has been at pains to present them in all their devastating symbolism.

It is perhaps precisely that intimate understanding of Heine the "Jewish Jew," as Mr. Untermeyer calls him, that renders Mr. Untermeyer incapable of presenting to us Heine, the sublime lyricist.

Three Outdoor Books.

Cast in a form which would bring down the wrath of T. R. on the head of Lucy C. Kellerhouse, the author, are seven little stories of trees and the forest. "FOREST FANCIES (Duffield). They will, with the photographic illustrations, appeal to the young.

"WHO'S WHO AMONG WILD FLOWERS AND FERNS" (McKay, Yard & Co.), by W. I. Beecroft, is a popular manual of the subject. It is quite untechnical and is just the thing to stimulate the interest in field botany, for it enables one to identify blossoms and ferns quickly.

"THE BIRD STUDY BOOK" (Doubleday, Page & Co.), by T. Gilbert Pearson of the National Association of the Audubon Societies, consists of a number of chapters on aspects of bird life, with suggestions for the study of birds, their economic value, their migration and habits, bird sanctuaries, etc.

WILLIAM J. LOCKE'S NEW NOVEL

A STORY OF WARTIME BUT NOT OF WAR

Love and mystery and love again—these are the threads the war god tangled and W. J. Locke has unraveled in this, his best story since "The Beloved Vagabond." Though it has war for its background, "The Red Planet" is a story of home, it has its setting in a quiet English village, where dwell the mothers and fathers, the wives and sweethearts of those who are not "somewhere." Love is there, and great devotion, and quiet courage and mystery. And the old soldier who can no longer serve his country thrills you with the story of it all.

How the War Can Be Won From the Skies

Tremendous plans are now being formed to deliver a crippling blow at Germany's military efficiency, not only "putting out her eyes," but spreading havoc by aerial armadas numbered by thousands. Vast sums are to be spent for the establishment of an American air-fleet on a colossal scale, and training-schools for air-pilots are beginning to spring up like mushrooms over night.

During the past three years, there has been in Europe not only an immense development of the art of flying, but a specific evolution of the allied art of the aerial duello.

In THE LITERARY DIGEST for July 7th, one of the most interesting articles is a translation from the French of Oscar Ribel, Chief Instructor in a French "School of Pilotage." This article explains in much detail the tactics of air-fighting. It is illustrated by sketches which visualize the tactics of pursuit, offense, and defense.

There are many other features of unusual interest in "The Digest" this week, among which are:

"Which Is the School for My Boy and Girl?"

This is a question that will be asked in many thousands of homes throughout the country during the next few weeks, and there is scarcely any other decision that will exercise more influence upon the future life of your boys and girls.

In this week's DIGEST there is a wealth of information comprised in the many business announcements of American schools. Girls' schools, and colleges for women; boys' military schools; co-educational, and music and art schools; schools of oratory and dramatic art; business and technical schools; vocational and professional schools; schools for backward children. All are represented in this number.

The DIGEST has attained a unique place as an educational medium. Not only do parents recognize its value in this sense, but superintendents, teachers, and students throughout the country know its value also, for it is in daily use as a text-book in current history in thousands of schools.

Inquiries are invited from teachers and principals as to how THE DIGEST will ease the burden of their school-work.

SOUTH AMERICA GOLFER ENTERS WESTERN MEET

Argentine "Champ" Among 156 Listed for Tourney.

BY JOE DAVIS.

Additional entries received yesterday brought the total for the western amateur championship at the Midlothian Country club to 156. Among the late comers were Reuben Bush of New Orleans, southern champion in 1916 and runner up in 1910 and 1911, and John Mays of Buenos Aires, champion of the Argentine republic.

Mr. Mays hails from Newcastle, England, but has been living in South America several years. Although rain prevented his completing a full round yesterday afternoon, he showed himself a clever player.

Charles Grimes, former western junior champion; A. A. French of Annandale, Cal.; I. W. Lincoln and Dr. C. Cadwell of Flossmoor were among the late entries.

Ouimet Here for Tourney.

Francis Ouimet, former national amateur and open champion, arrived yesterday but did not go to Midlothian. Jesse Guilford, his clubmate, went around with Professional George Turnbull and scored a 79 on his first circuit of the course.

So far five teams are entered for the annual thirty-six hole competition for the Olympic trophy today. The Western Golf association team, selected yesterday, will be composed of Albert Seckel of Riverside, Kenneth P. Edwards, Addison Stillwell, and Paul Hunter of Midlothian. The other teams are announced as follows, subject to change:

SOUTHERN—Bob Jones, Perry Adair, Richard Hickey, Tom Prescott.

By RING W. LARDNER.

THE SPOON.

THE spoon has more loft than the knife, but less carry. It is seldom used for meat or potato shots, but is valuable when it comes to cereals, pudding, soup, and ice cream. Some players even prefer it for peas. It is also used for short coffee shots, but only by the most experienced players, as the club has a tendency to tip and wabble and a novice is likely to discolor shirt or vest, as well as to suffer physical discomfort if the coffee be too hot or too wet.

The table spoon has more carry than the regulation spoon and is sometimes resorted to in cereal shots when the player is particularly hungry.

The soup spoon was formerly little used, soup players as a rule preferring to use a piece of bread as a sponge or to tip up the plate itself. Recently the club has come into favor, especially in cafés, though it is mighty dangerous in the hands of a beginner, particularly one who is dressed up. The soup spoon should always be used sidewise to avoid the peril of getting it caught in the mouth. The player should be careful not to get the spoon too far under the soup. Short, snappy soup shots will pay better in the long run, even though you be in a hurry.

The regulation spoon is frequently utilized by doctors when a throat infection is suspected, the average leech preferring not to take a chance of having his fingers bitten off.

A recent invention is the glass spoon, played almost exclusively in high ball and rickey shots, in the former as a stirrer and in the latter to overcome lime seed hazards. Other spoons are the iced tea spoon and the demitasse, played only by professionals. The spoon should never be used for chocolate shots and only most sparingly for gravy.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

You probably do not look high enough when you shoot. Focus your eyes on a spot a couple of feet higher than the top of the tree just before starting your downward swing.

STAGG DECLARES MEN AT FT. SHERIDAN LACK TIME FOR ATHLETICS

Prof. A. A. Stagg of the department of physical education at the University of Chicago, familiarly known as the "Old Man" to hundreds of Maroon alumni, yesterday telegraphed Dr. J. E. Raycroft that he did not think the time is ripe for intensive athletic instruction at Fort Sheridan training camp. Dr. Raycroft is a member of the commission appointed by Secretary of War Baker to promote recreation and athletics for the men while off duty.

Director Stagg had been frequently mentioned for the position as civilian athletic director at Fort Sheridan. He investigated conditions there and found that the time of Uncle Sam's future officers is fully occupied with military instruction and that no specific period had been assigned for instruction in organizing camp off-duty activities to be used in future mobilization camps.

"There is a great work to be done," Prof. Stagg said, "but at present the boys are working so hard, both mentally and physically, that they are doing all they ought to be asked to do. Their brief recreation period is filled with the hundred and one things to be done around a camp. Physical Director Miller of Wooster university has a well organized system that fills present needs. I had two cordial conferences with Col. Nicholson and his associates, who share my views of the present situation. The war department has officially recognized athletics, but has not made instruction compulsory or allotted time for it."

Chicago Woman in Final of Kansas City Net Meet

Kansas City, Mo., July 6.—Chicago and Kansas City will contest for the great plains patriotic tennis title, as the result of today's matches. Mrs. Walter A. Ellis of Chicago entered the final round by defeating Miss Minnie Ewins of Kansas City, 6—3, 6—1. In the other bracket Miss Marjorie Hires eliminated Miss Louise Hammann, 7—5, 6—2, and will play Mrs. Ellis for the title.

In doubles semi-finals Mrs. Ellis and Miss Leslie La Beaume of St. Louis defeated Miss Ewins and Miss Lyle Hayes, 8—6, 6—3. Miss Hires and Miss Evelyn Seavey won from Miss Mary Morley and Miss Hammann, 6—8, 6—4, 6—3.

Soldiers to Run Program of Racetrack Events

The horse race fans will see something new at the west side track this afternoon, as the races have been placed in charge of the First Illinois infantry, to which the entire gate receipts will be donated. In addition to four regular races which will bring out all the best horses on the grounds, a full program of army drills, races for army horses and mules, boxing contests, and other events will be given.

QUESTIONS THEY ASK.

Chicago.—[To the Editor.]—What is cotton thread fishing? A. V.

Answer—A system of fishing practiced by the Cotton Thread Fishing Club of America, an eastern organization devoted mostly to salt water fishing. The club specifies Clark's O. N. T. spool cotton, No. 24, which is used just as it comes from the spool. Six foot rods averaging about three and one-half ounces in weight are used. Some large fish have been landed with this frail tackle, but of course such fishing never will become popular.

Chicago.—[To the Editor.]—1. What time of the year do black bass spawn? 2. What are some good baits for bass in streams? 3. Is it true that larger fish are caught on bait than on flies?

B. T. D.

Answers—1. From April to July, depending on latitude and local conditions. In backward seasons like the present the bass are not through spawning in cold waters until the latter part of July or even early August. 2. A combination made up of spinner and fly; minnows; helgramites; small sized artificials. 3. It is generally true that larger specimens are taken on bait whether it be in salmon, bass, or trout fishing.

Chicago.—[To the Editor.]—1. How is corn used for catching carp? 2. Do carp have teeth? 3. How are dough balls made?

D. E.

Answers—1. Soft corn or sweet corn is generally used. Three or four grains are put on the hook and it is fished on or very near the bottom. 2. They have blunt grinding teeth. 3. Simply make a batter of half corn meal and white flour and roll it into balls. Some fishermen bake the batter either in the oven or in hot grease, but this is not necessary.

Chicago.—[To the Editor.]—1. Please give us some information on fishing at Lauderdale lakes in Wisconsin. 2. Can a spinner be used in fly fishing?

T. K. F.

Answers—1. We have never fished there. Will some one who has give us a hand on this? 2. Yes, if it is not too large. Use numbers 0, 1, and 2. Hildebrandt scale. A small spinner often saves the day in either trout or bass fly fishing. Get them in both the nickle and gold finishes.

GOVERNOR AFTER SHERIFF FOR BOUT

Lansing Mich., July 6.—Gov. Sleeper has instructed Attorney General Grosbeck to ascertain if there was an actual violation of the law in staging a bout between George (Knockout) Brown and Phil Harrison, Chicago pugilists, at Benton Harbor, July 4. With presentation of satisfactory evidence, Sheriff Hogue and Prosecuting Attorney Sterling will be summoned to Lansing and proceedings probably will be started for their removal from office.

The governor had warned them that if the fight was permitted to proceed such action would follow. "I do not propose to make Michigan a haven for Illinois prize fighters," Gov. Sleeper said.

AT THE BILLIARD ROOMS.

Runs of 11 and 7 made respectively by Kieckhefer and Morin featured the second block of the three cushion match at Munsey's Monroe street room, in which Kieckhefer and Moore defeated Reiselt and Morin, 50 to 39 in 50 innings. Score at each tenth inning:

Moore-Kieckhefer.7 10 14 27 41 50—Inn. 59
Morin-Reiselt ....4 6 18 22 28 39—Inn. 58

In the three cushion tournament at Sattler's, Grayfort [28] defeated Whitman [38], 28 to 21.

Exhaust Echoes

By SHEPPARD BUTLER.

OUT in progressive California they have turned from the more or less passé joys of automobile racing to the practical matter of contests in fuel economy. The most ambitious test of its kind ever staged in this country has just been completed there, and inasmuch as what cars will do on California roads they will do likewise, presumably, in Illinois, the results should be of more than passing interest to motorists hereabouts.

The run was a strenuous one, from Los Angeles, 370 miles to Camp Curry, in the Yosemite valley. Fourteen cars, each of a different make, participated. In picking the winners, the weight of the cars and their loads were taken into consideration, the results being computed in "ton miles per gallon"—i. e., the number of miles the car might have covered theoretically, on a gallon of fuel had its load been exactly 2,000 pounds. To arrive at this figure the car's weight in tons was multiplied by the total mileage and the result divided by the number of gallons of gasoline consumed.

Two of the cars, a Detroiter and a Woods dual power, took a wrong road and were disqualified. The others made records as follows:

Franklin	3,450	17	21.76	37.6
Monroe	3,150	16¼	22.76	35.8
Dort	2,720	14¼	23.06	35.4
Saxon	3,020	17	21.76	32.9
White	5,980	32	11.87	35.5
Chevrolet	2,750	15¼	24.0	33.5
Wiston	5,610	33½	10.9	30.8
Chalmers	4,050	24½	15.14	30.6
Pullman	3,430	20¾	17.8	30.6
Standard	4,670	29	12.7	29.3
Marmon	4,350	28½	13.85	28.9
Liberty	3,150	23½	15.74	24.8

In making the awards the cars were grouped according to their prices, the Dort winning in the class for those costing less than $1,000, the Monroe in the group between $1,000 and $2,000, and the Franklin in the "big car" group. The Dort, which registered the highest actual mileage, consumed only $2.82 worth of gasoline in covering the 370 miles. For the Monroe the fuel bill was $3.25, and for the Franklin $3.40.

Due to interruptions in the schedule, both women's singles and doubles matches will be played this morning, and the women's doubles title will be decided in the afternoon.

The club will give its second dance of the tournament tonight in the unfinished clubhouse. The affair will be given on a waxed canvas flooring underneath open roof rafters, and will have the informal features of a barn dance. Summaries:

MEN'S SINGLES.

Fifth round—M. G. Ketchum defeated L. B. Williams, Highland Park, 6—2, 6—1; Walter T. Hayes defeated Cyrus G. Hill, 6—0, 6—3; Al Green Jr. defeated W. Riesser, 6—3, 6—3; Ralph E. Burdick defeated Melville Rosenberg, San Francisco, 6—7, 9—7.

MEN'S DOUBLES.

Third round—Al Green Jr. and M. G. Ketchum defeated D. W. Westervelt and J. Hattstaedt, 6—1, 7—5; Sam Hardy, London, England, and L. Harry Waldner, Wilmetka, defeated Walter Becker and Harold Ingersoll, 6—3, 3—6, 13—11.

RACING MEETING OF THIRTY DAYS FOR HAWTHORNE

Sport to Begin About July 28; Official Announcement Still Lacking.

BY HARVEY WOODRUFF.

Horse racing for a period of thirty days from about July 28 is the plan of Owner Tom Carey of the Hawthorne track, where the Illinois Jockey club last year conducted a thirteen day meeting, including a "revival" of the American Derby.

So far as can be learned in the absence of official announcement, none of the business men identified with the Illinois Jockey club, which was financed in part by contributions to a guarantee fund from Chicago business interests, will be identified with the venture this season. These guarantors, who thought racing an attraction to visitors for a brief period in the summer, did not expect a refund of their money. Nor did they get it, though just why more money was not realized never has been satisfactorily explained.

Track and Stables Ready.

The present venture is said to be a commercial proposition pure and simple. As a result of last year's renovation the track and stables will require little attention. The meeting of 1916 showed that racing under more experienced management could be made to pay if there was no more interference with the oral betting than prevailed last season. Joseph A. Murphy, at present conducting a ten day meeting in Grand Rapids, and later scheduled to try "betless" sport at St. Louis, is mentioned as likely to be head of the local proposition.

This second attempt to revive racing here, while approved by those who love to see them "go round," will not attract the preliminary glamour of last season's affair, which was heralded as a civic enterprise. Assurances from the inexperienced sponsors, made in good faith, were hardly observed in the spirit. Revenue from the so-called "betting privileges" remained more or less of a mystery as to ultimate destination.

Dates Chosen Are Timely.

Delay in official announcement of local plans is said to be fear of concerted action by the reform bodies which unsuccessfully attempted to stop the meeting last year. The dates mentioned are timely, as there will be no racing in Kentucky during August and horses from Canada also may be expected.

Without knowing the plans more in detail advance approval or criticism is hardly warranted so far as the meeting is concerned. The question of suppressing betting is not the concern of this department.

LACKING PUNCH, WHITE SOX LOSE GAME AND LEAD

BY JAMES CRUSINBERRY.

Detroit, Mich., July 6.—[Special.]—Because they were unable to deliver a punch when a punch would have been worth while, the White Sox were licked by the Tigers in the final game today and bilged back into second place in the pennant race. The score was 4 to 1. The Sox made twelve hits and left eleven of their men stranded on the bases. The Tigers made ten hits and left only three men on the bases.

In every one of the nine innings the Sox had one or more men on the sacks waiting for the punch to send them home. It never came. Once, when they filled the bases with no one out they drove over their lone tally while one of the other runners was forced out.

One Spurt Wins for Tigers.

Ted Faber was on the slab, and, except for one bad inning, when the Tigers drove the ball to the fences, just as fast as every one was pitched in the groove did they knew it was coming, Red was as effective as ever. The rampage came in the fourth, when there was a single, two doubles, and a triple bunched with two wild throws. The result was three runs for Detroit. Faber finished that round by fanning Stanage, and from that on he never was in danger, but that sixth bad inning was enough to lose the game. In the eighth Faber gave way to Murphy as a pinch hitter and Jim Scott came forth and hurled the final round.

George Dauss was on the rubber for the Tigers and seemed to have little speed control. He could put the ball over the plate and trust to luck that some one would get it if the batter hit.

Sox Threaten at Start.

Right in the first round the Sox had a chance, when Weaver and Eddie Collins got on with only one out, but Jackson popped up and Felsch hit a stinger right at Vitt. In the next they got two on again with only one out and the next fellow fanned and the next one popped. Gandil opened the fourth with a single and after Risberg had filed out, Schalk singled to right. Gandil was pegged out at third and another chance was lost.

It was the eighth when the big chance came. Jackson and Felsch singled and Gandil was safe on Bush's fumble. With the sacks filled and no one out Risberg popped to the catcher, Schalk hit to the second baseman, forcing Gandil while Jackson scored. Eddie Murphy came forth as pinch hitter and popped to the catcher.

Detroit Scores in Second.

The Tigers slammed the ball some in the early rounds. Veach opened the second with a triple and came home on Bellman's single, but no more damage resulted because Burns crashed into a double play. Vitt began the big fourth with a single and after Cobb had fouled out to Jackson, Vitt stole second, scooted on to third when Schalk's bad peg went to center. While Vitt scooted on to third Felsch shot to that corner.

The ball bounded clear over Weaver's head and then into the Tiger bench in spite of the fact that Faber was backing up. Vitt came home, then Veach on the scoreboard for two bases and came home when Hellman doubled. The latter counted when Burns tripled, but the rally was suppressed there, B. Jones bouncing to E. Collins and Stanage fanning.

Notes

Since leaving home the Sox have won five games and lost four and yet they were shoved into second place. They will be at home now for a long spell, meeting all of the eastern clubs, and when that period is over the boys expect to be back on the top.

Cobb tried to spring a Jim Sheckard play in the first inning, but failed. With Weaver on second and E. Collins on first, Jackson raised a pop fly to short center. Cobb deliberately dropped it, then shot to Bush, who tagged Weaver and then the bag, but in the American league one cannot drop a fly and work that trick. To do it he must trap the ball in regular Shackard style.

INDIANS GATHER 8 RUNS IN THIRD

St. Louis, Mo., July 6.—Cleveland made eight runs off Davenport and Groom in the third inning and defeated St. Louis, 12 to 6. In the third inning twenty-one men went to bat, the two sides making thirteen runs and ten hits. Manager Jones used six pitchers. Morton, relieving Coumbe after St. Louis had scored five runs in the third, pitched shutout ball. In the series just finished Cleveland garnered fifty hits for a total of seventy-one bases. Chapman got ten singles in twenty-two times at bat. Score:

Flack-Mann Combination Beats Dodgers in 3-1 Game

BY I. E. SANBORN.

Brooklyn, N. Y., July 6.—Leslie Mann and Max Flack were the Cubs who made it possible for Phil Douglas to inaugurate the second eastern invasion with a triumph over Brooklyn today by a score of 3 to 1. Max got on three times and Leslie twice delivered blows that enabled him to score. Douglas would have shut out the Robins but for a wild fling by Pattie Driscoll when he had a double play cinched in the fifth.

The Cubs hit Pfeffer much harder than their swat total would indicate. Five times the men behind the big hurler speared line drives that were meant for base hits, and thrice these horseshoe plays resulted in double killings which kept the Mitchells from increasing their run total.

Wheat Doubles Up Runners.

Zack Wheat pinched the fifth liner and could have made a double play unassisted, as it was a hit and run play and the runner was past third base when Wheat caught the ball. He started for second to make the putout, then changed his mind, tossed the ball to Olson, who handed it back to Zack when he reached second base to complete the play.

Pfeffer was wild and helped the Cubs to their victory by his passes. Douglas had perfect control except in the fifth, when he let the first two men who faced him walk to first. Phil was given excellent support in every other round, particularly by the outfield. Flack backed up against the wall in the eighth and copped a long fly from Hickman with a runner on second waiting to score on it. Wortman also came to Douglas' rescue with a pair of good plays. He cut down a runner at third base in the opening inning and stole a base hit from Myers in the fifth.

Driscoll's Bunt Too Hard.

Pfeffer started to pass the game away in the opener. Flack and Mann both walked. Driscoll tried to advance them, but bunted so hard that Myers forced Flack at third. Merkle's grounder forced Mann out and Williams whiffed. The Robins also threatened in their half, which Olson broke open with a single. Myers sacrificed, but Wortman got Hickman's rap in deep short and winged Olson at third. A wild throw by Douglas let Hickman to second, but Driscoll disposed of Stengel.

The Cubs broke through in the third, when Flack led off with a single and rode all the way home on Mann's screaming three bagger. Leslie was nailed trying to score on Driscoll's rap to Olson. That was all the runs until the fifth, which was pried open by Wortman with a two bagger that caromed off Cutshaw's shins to left center. Wilson flied and Douglas whiffed, but Flack drew a pass and Mann responded with a single long enough to score Wortman and put Flack on third. Then they negotiated a double steal by which Max scored the final Cub tally.

Robins Lucky to Score.

The only Robin run came in the home fifth when Douglas started by passing Mowrey and Chief Meyers. Pfeffer hit a line fly to Driscoll, who pinched it and had a cinch double play on Meyers at first, but hit the Indian in the back with the throw. Before Merkle could retrieve the pill the runners reached third and second and Mowrey registered on Olson's out.

The Robins threatened a bit in their last half when Wheat and Cutshaw singled with only one out. The second hit put Wheat on third and forced Cutshaw to steal second, which he did. But Douglas was equal to the occasion by striking out Mowrey and causing Meyers to roll one to Wortman.

Notes

Mique Prendergast reported to Manager Mitchell this morning with a new pitching arm. Bonesetter Reese discovered a ligament misplaced and snapped it back into its proper location, much to the anguish as well as joy of Prendergast. It hurt, but he is glad of it.

Harold (Rowdy) Elliott was suspended indefinitely today for breach of discipline. He could not sleep and was discovered by a Cub official at 7 o'clock this morning with his civilian clothes still on. Wilson and Dillhoefer will have to do the catching for a spell. Dillhoefer and Carter were on hand this morning to be welcomed to camp by their teammates. Before either can play there will have to be a Cub disposed of.

CATCH BY G. BURNS ENDS CARDS' STREAK; GIANTS WIN 2-1 DUEL

New York, July 6.—The Giants broke the winning streak of the St. Louis Cards today, winning the first game of a five game series, 2 to 1. Both Perritt and Packard pitched strong games, New York scoring the winning run in the eighth inning on Burns' single, two infield outs, and a single by Zimmerman. Burns ended the game with a sensational catch of Gonsales' low drive on which he doubled Hornsby off second base. Score:

PIRATE FIELDER BREAKS LEFT LEG

Philadelphia, Pa., July 6.—Pittsburgh won by hitting the delivery of Oeschger and Pittery hard, while the home team's errors were costly. The score was 5 to 3.

Left Fielder Hinchman of Pittsburgh had his left leg broken in a collision with Catcher Adams at the home plate in the ninth inning. With the bases filled and Pitler at bat the visitors attempted a double squeeze play. Pitler bunted and was thrown out at first by Adams, Wagner scoring. Luderus relayed the ball back to Adams and Hinchman rushed into the catcher and suffered his injury. Hinchman's wife and three children witnessed the accident.

EBBETS IS HELD BY MAGISTRATE

New York, July 6.—[Special.]—Magistrate Geismar decided in Flatbush court this afternoon that Charles H. Ebbets and Wilbert Robinson committed a crime last Sunday when they held a sacred concert for which an admission was charged, afterward throwing open the gates of Ebbets field and having a baseball game in the National league schedule between Brooklyn and Philadelphia. The proceeds of the sacred concert were $5,700, according to Manager Ebbets, and were donated to the Militia of Mercy, of which Mrs. John Hays Hammond is a leading spirit.

"The decision of Magistrate Geismar," said Mr. Ebbets, who was hot and cross after the three hours' hearing, "in holding us for special sessions is equivalent to a conviction. I can see nothing else to do but to call off the benefit game arranged for next Sunday between the Cubs and Brooklyn."

New York, July 6.—The reopened McGraw case was continued today until next Friday by the board of directors of the National league to permit the Giant manager to produce a couple of witnesses from Pittsburgh to testify in his behalf. Evidence produced in open meeting of the National league club owners brought out the fact that the author of the repudiated interview, attacking President Tener of the league, was told by McGraw to go ahead and write the roast and go as far as he liked.

After it was written the interview was submitted to McGraw for approval. He was in a hurry and did not read it, but told the scribe who wrote it to send it to his paper.

The Easiest Way Out.

Even after it was published McGraw admitted he read only parts of the interview, but signed his resignation under pressure from National league club owners, several of whom were anxious to catch their trains and took the quickest way out of the league.

The writer who obtained the alleged original interview testified he quoted McGraw in substance and later submitted the story to McGraw for his O. K. after giving a resume of it to the other writers with the team. McGraw stated all he had said when asked for an interview on the fact that he had been fined and suspended was "I don't care a d— what you say."

Called Statement "All Right."

McGraw said he returned the statement to the reporter with a general remark that it was "all right. He further said that up to today's meeting he never had read any part of the principal interview except two or three paragraphs marked by the president of the New York club.

McGraw's lawyers interposed many objections to certain parts of the testimony and submitted affidavits of two friends of McGraw said to have been present when McGraw was interviewed.

The writers' attorney objected to these affidavits unless he might have an opportunity of examining the signers. As a result the meeting was adjourned until July 13 in order that they might appear in person.

Among the members of the board of directors present were Charles Weegman, Chicago; C. H. Ebbets, Brooklyn; Barney Dreyfuss, Pittsburgh; William Baker, Philadelphia; Garry Herrmann, Cincinnati; H. M. Hempstead, New York; and P. D. Haughton, Boston.

BATTING STREAK OF MIGHTY COBB STOPPED BY SOX

[BY A STAFF CORRESPONDENT.]

Detroit, Mich., July 6.—[Special.]—Ty Cobb's wonderful batting streak was broken today when he failed to get a hit against the White Sox after having set a mark of thirty-five successive games in which he obtained at least one hit. Red Faber and Jim Scott were the pitchers to break his streak.

Faber pitched to the star slugger three times. The first time up Cobb hit a terrific drive, but it was right at Eddie Collins with a runner on first base and a double play resulted.

Fuel and Two Bounders.

The second time Cobb died on a long high foul to Jackson. His third attempt was a weak bounce to Eddie Collins after he had first failed in an attempt to lay down a bunt.

When Cobb came up the last time Scott was on the rubber. Ty tried to dump a bunt, but fouled, and he wound up with an easy bounce to Buck Weaver, who threw him out at first. When Cobb walked back to the bench the crowd applauded him just the same and kept it up until he raised his cap.

Faber a Jinx to Ty.

Faber has always been a difficult proposition for the Detroit star to solve. During his major league career Faber has held Cobb to a batting average of less than .250. The late Addie Joss was the only pitcher who has been more effective against the great outfielder.

Cobb began his hitting streak against Cleveland on Decoration day. He averaged .500 during the eastern trip and continued his terrific hitting when Detroit returned west.

Pennant to Peoria in Abbreviated Flag Race

Peoria, Ill., July 6.—Peoria clinched the 1917 Three Eyes league pennant today by its win over Bloomington, bringing to this city its second consecutive pennant, with Manager Bill Jackson as leader. The league has been forced to suspend next Sunday owing to war conditions, but President A. R. Tearney has announced that the pennant will be awarded.

Jinx Hits Another Yank; Shocker's Arm Fractured

New York, July 6.—Urban Shocker, the Yankees' young spitball pitcher, fell victim to the hoodoo that trails faithfully in the wake of the team. Shocker injured his arm in the eleventh inning of the game against the Red Sox in Boston. An X-ray today has revealed a fracture near the elbow. He will be out of the game for at least a month.

An Enormous Purchase of

La Flor de Cuba Cigars

FOR sixty-seven years La Flor de Cuba cigars have been made in Havana, Cuba, for smokers of the finest Havana cigars. Since 1907 they have also been made in a branch factory in this country, established to save the American consumer the cost of the customs duty on cigars imported from Havana. The choice Cuban tobaccos—wrappers and fillers—are divided equally between the Havana factory and the branch factory, insuring uniformity of blend and quality.

Today we shall place on sale 20,000 of these high-grade cigars at actual jobbers' list prices. (Main Fl., Dearborn St.)

These are offered while the lots last. As quantities in some sizes are limited, we suggest early buying. Some of the sizes are listed and priced below:

Flor de Cuba Coronets, 2 for 15c; box of 50 for $3.75
Flor de Cuba Meritos, 8c each; box of 50 for $4.00
Flor de Cuba Panetelas, 8c each; box of 50 for $4.00
Flor de Cuba Petit Duc, 8c each; box of 50 for $4.00
Flor de Cuba Heliotropos, 8c each; box of 100 for $8
Flor de Cuba Puritanos Fino, 9c each; box of 50, $4.50

FASHION'S BLUE BOOK

BY CORINNE LOWE.

Mother, may I go out to play?
Yes, my darling daughter.
See what the fashion lady has to say
And wear just what you oughter.

NEW YORK.—[Special Correspondence.]—So smart, fashionable, and sophisticated have styles for the wee girl become that we just couldn't help the above parody. The truth of it is that a grown-up lady hardly gets a real nice mode before it is taken over by the small girl's own dressmaker.

Take, for instance, the two material frock worn by the little lady of 6 in the drawing. That idea was borrowed from grown-up styles, and yet it manages here to be so simple and childish that we really can't object to it—pockets and all. The skirt is of white china silk and the bodice and pockets of white and blue checked silk are piped in plain blue. To go with this there is a cunning little hat of stitched silk with crocheted flowers.

At the same time that children's modes become grown-up, adult styles are becoming more and more youthful. We are now launched on an era of plain little bodices with round or square collars, skirts slim and much longer, and a general air of "What shall we do next?" Among such modes blue serge frocks take an important hand. For the summer this material combined with bodice of Georgette bids fair to be much smarter than the taffeta dress and in the fall the entire costume of blue serge will fill in the time before we get down to our street suits.

And, by the way, there is a new silhouette which we have noticed in some of the smartest of these blue serge models. It is achieved by a fullness at the hips—a sort of improvement on the regulation peg-top—and is known as the kite shaped skirt. It is probable, too, that as against the plain up and down model this kite shaped variety will pertain in all fabrics.

Many's the Way of Slaughtering the Innocents

By Mae Tinée.

A PATHETIC little creature came to my notice this week—a 5 year old child whose mother desires to push her into the movies. She was dressed fantastically in intended imitation of a southern belle of other days, in long, full skirts, a black silk, ruffled coat, lace mitts, and a big tulle hat. The last, sporting two blue plumes, crowned a head of unnaturally light and unpleasantly frizzed hair, from under which mop looked a pair of big blue, made-up eyes. The mother explained that the child had been a Daughter of the Confederacy since a year old. Then she put her through her tricks.

"How do you look when you are happy, sad, afraid, tired, etc.?" The little one changed her expressions to suit the words. The mother said:

"And how will you do when you go to a café and flirt with a man?" The child winked largely. The mother intervened—"No, no! Not like that! Somebody might see you. You don't want anybody to see but the man you're flirting with. Then he'll come over and sit at your table!"

The mother explained that she intends to take the child around until she succeeds in placing her—already the youngster has been in advertisements. There is much comment I could make which I will not, but I have this to say:

A child robbed of its childishness has no chance anywhere. In the world of children it is an alien. To adults it must pose as a curiosity.

Perhaps some producer may see possibilities in the child in question. I doubt it, however, for when children are used in pictures now it is the "regular kid" that is demanded. She, poor baby, has never been one and now, the pity of it, can never be one!

Paramount has instituted a system of "personal service" to exhibitors that is a big step in progress march. Not only do they offer this as regards pictures but the exhibitor visiting New York or the coast will find a cordial welcome at the offices and every attempt will be made to make him feel at home. He may also ask for and receive any shopping aid, information as regards sightseeing, the best cafés, theaters, etc., through this department.

Diet, Exercise, and Keep at It, to Reduce Flesh

If you attend the fashionable Dunstify suites selling here one ordered Mrs. Rae Lane thirty-six pounds in six weeks, or how she added twenty pounds in five weeks to Miss Helene Thorpe's weight, or how she removed a head of fat, thin, falling hair and an ugly scalp with dandruff, or the attitude on treating Miss Hill's complexion for pimples and blackheads, send a stamped, addressed envelope and the information will be mailed to you. Any other questions pertaining to beauty and hygiene will be gladly answered.

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

P. G.: LOCAL APPLICATIONS of any kind do not help you in the work of reducing. If you will follow the instructions just as Mrs. Lane did, I am sure you will be successful. Do not make the common mistake of relaxing even for a single day. The diet and exercise must be strictly adhered to, because eternal vigilance is the price that you will have to pay for keeping thin. I am glad that you are so enthusiastic, because that will make your work so much easier. Let me hear from you again.

R. L. B.: GOOD TEETH ARE ABSOlutely essential to good health, and a knowledge of their care is apt to save you a good deal both mentally and financially. At a good medical library you can get books on care of the teeth. If you will send me a stamped, addressed envelope I shall be glad to send you instructions both for the care of the teeth and mouth hygiene.

RUTH G.: YOU FOOLISH GIRL, TO even think of parting with your "crowning glory"! Lovely long hair is not given to every one, and it should be placed on the list of your treasures that have no money value. The danger of cutting the hair when one is near 30 are many. It is apt to come in coarser and of a different color and often the growth is stunted. The difference between the care of long and short hair is slight, certainly not enough to warrant the "shearing" that you mention.

HELEN W.: IF YOU WILL TREAT your nails to a good massage with equal parts of olive oil and cold cream every night you will find that the brittleness will soon disappear. Rub the mixture well under the nails and into the cuticle. The directions for manicuring are too long to print here, but if you will send me a stamped, addressed envelope I shall be glad to send them to you. Thank you for your good wishes and let me hear from you again some time.

MARIE: YOU CERTAINLY HAVE cause for complaint. The strength should remain in a good sachet for at least two or three months. If it fails to do this, the fault lies with the quality of the powder you are getting and not with the manner in which you keep it. As a first aid to daintiness there are few things that equal the faint odor of a good sachet. If you will send me a stamped, addressed envelope, I shall send you the formula for a splendid sachet that has well known powers of longevity.

DOT: I AM SORRY THAT I CANNOT recommend anything that will correct a receding chin. There seems to be a remedy for everything under the sun except our faces, and when it comes to changing the features in any way there is nothing to resort to but surgery, and that seems rather to dreadful a measure for the end in view.

Helen and her brother Randall had been frequently teased and annoyed by a neighbor boy, Ned's older and quick-tempered brother Frank, and for one long day Helen had refused to play with the boys. The next morning, however, on seeing Frank run sobbing into the neighboring house, her curiosity got the better of her, and, running down the walk to Ned, she called: "How did that naughty little bruvver of yours get 'ut?"

"That good little brother of yours told him he was too hot and turned the water on him," replied Ned with all his 5 year old dignity.

Carolina White to Sing in Conservation Rally.

The Woman's Division of the State Council of Defense are to give a food-conservation meeting on Thursday night, the 12th instant, in the Hotel Sherman. Carolina White, the dramatic soprano, is to sing on this occasion; she will not be in that night's program in Ravinia Park, where she is engaged for the entire season of ten weeks; and Louis Eckstein, president of the Ravinia Park organization, gave his consent to her appearing at the meeting—which is planned as a rally for the discussion and consideration of practical, common-sense methods of food-saving for the period of the war—when he learned of the purpose.

The Successful Home Garden.

BY J. F. H. HEIDE.
Article 122.

NOW NOW: Early green and wax pod beans, garden beets, early sweet corn, head lettuce, summer and winter radishes, early kohlrabi, and field turnips.

TRANSPLANT NOW: Early red cabbage as "catch crop," Savoy cabbage, self-blanching and green celery; summer endive, kohlrabi, head lettuce, and rutabagas.

Early Ohio potatoes may safely be planted this week—the last chance.

The Cabbage Worm.

The velvety green caterpillar of the common white butterfly riddles the leaves of cabbages, cauliflower, kohlrabi, Brussels sprouts, and kale, leaving only the thick spines, and strips mignonette entirely bare. It may attack also red cabbage, turnips, radishes, mustard, horseradish, sweet alyssum, and spider plant.

As soon as the butterfly emerges from its chrysalis in spring it begins to lay its eggs singly on the under side of the young leaves of vegetables. In a week they hatch and the voracious little worms start right in, eating their own weight in plant stuff daily, so that they grow rapidly and reach full size of one and one-half inches in two weeks. They then enter the chrysalis or pupal stage and in ten days or so emerge once more as butterflies, ready to multiply. There are new broods every five or six weeks between killing frosts, the heaviest in August and September.

Whenever any of the plants named show irregular holes, that is the time to examine the under side of the leaves for green worms or caterpillars ranging between one-fourth and one and one-half inches in length. They are about the color of the leaf and hard to distinguish at first.

On cool days they may be sunning themselves on the upper side. In neglected cases they may have eaten their way into the center of headed cabbage ultimately to trick the man expecting a vegetarian diet.

In the small home garden the pest is best kept down by hand picking on alternate days, destroying the worms. Old gloves or wooden tweezers may be used by the squeamish. Water kept at a uniform heat of about 120 degrees may also be poured over the worms on the plants. It kills the insects without serious injury to the plants. F. F. H., one of our readers, advises dusting parts of ground pepper and shaking the plants with a pepper shaker to drive the worms away.

In larger operations spray with arsenate of lead or with the following: Kerosene emulsion stock solution (made July 5, No. 120), 1 quart; paris green (poison), 1 ounce; water, 12½ gallons. Though there is no danger of poisoning, nevertheless it is advised to spray cabbages with hellebore, in the proportion of one ounce in two gallons of water, when the plants approach maturity or after the cabbages are two-thirds headed.

This department will answer questions only in "The Tribune" and only when sent from readers desiring through it advice on their home and back yard gardens to be used in the order of living should be addressed to The Garden Editor.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

Q.—1. Why do some of my bulbs grow up into stalks without forming bulbs? 2. I have put a handful of manure on each side of every tomato plant just under the surface and repeated the dose later. What is your opinion of this? 3. Will the tomato plants bear? They are about ten inches high.—I. B.

Ans.—1. Probably degeneracy of stock. 2. A very good practice. 3. If you are in a safe zone (see map of smoke zones, published March 5 and reprinted April 16) no reason is indicated why they should not. The size of plants is normal.

Hereafter no questions will be answered unless accompanied by a self-addressed envelope.

Real Love Stories

"While the Cat's Away."

A PECULIAR love affair was that of a young doctor who came to town to build up a practice. His home had previously been in a neighboring town where he had lived with his widower father and where lived his sweetheart, Isabel.

There was an understanding between the young people that when the doctor had built up a sufficient practice to warrant his taking a wife, they would be married. Of course after he came to our town, his visits to his lady became less frequent than hitherto.

Meanwhile the doctor's father, who was a fine looking, well preserved man of some 55 years, met his son's intended wife and, thinking to make the time pass less slowly for the young lady, would take her for drives or to entertainments where it was necessary for her to have an escort.

Gradually the widower's interest became something else than fatherly, and it was observed that the lady seemed to enjoy his society.

The younger man would drive over on an evening off to see Isabel and would find her entertaining his father in her parlor.

At last things came to a crisis and the widower married Isabel much to his son's chagrin. And in spite of the difference in their years, the marriage has proven a happy one. The doctor has consoled himself with one of the fair maidens of our town, and is himself happily married.

Too Young, Frank.

"Dear Miss Blake: I took a girl home two times from a party, but I never asked her for a date. Can you tell me how I could win her to be my steady girl? She is about 16 years old and goes to school.

FRANK."

The girl is too young for what you call steady company. I don't mind your having her for a friend, but a school girl should not give her time to any one young man. You might go and call on her at her home, however, and with her parents' permission you might take her to a dance or to some form of amusement now and then.

Mother's a Trifle Harsh.

"Dear Miss Blake: I am a girl of 17 and considered good looking. I have never gone out with boys as my mother thinks I am too young. About two months ago I met a boy of 20 through a girl friend of mine and he has called at my home twice and, of course, has met my people. Now he has asked me for steady company, but my mother will not even let me go out with him occasionally.

"Don't you think it is all right for him to take me out to theaters if we get home by 10 or 10:30 o'clock? Every one who knows this boy says he is good and the other boys all seem to like him. He has a good position and is supporting his mother.

"Any advice you can give me will be very much appreciated.

"BROWN EYES."

I think your mother is just a little bit harsh in the matter of your boy friends. I believe in girls of 17 having friends of the opposite sex and being allowed to enjoy that friendship in a wholesome, nice way. Of course, his asking for steady company is something else again and your mother is right in objecting to that. Why don't you intercede with her to let you have him come over to your house so that she may have a chance of knowing him better and possibly changing her mind in the matter?

"The Tribune" will pay $5 for every real love story published. If you have one, submit it, and write no more than 500 words. Address Doris Blake, "The Tribune," Chicago. No manuscripts returned. If you have a perplexing love affair upon which you need the counsel of a friend, write Doris Blake, inclosing stamped, addressed envelope if you wish personal reply.

Tribune Cook Book

BY JANE EDDINGTON.

A Meatless Meal.

ABOUT as simple a menu as we can get for a meatless meal is this: Radishes or an alternate, macaroni in cheese sauce, berries with cream. Without any additions, it is easy to get 500 or more food units per person out of this. If each person takes a good sized slice of bread and a pat of butter in addition, 200 more food units are added. Sugar and cream have high fuel value, and by a lavish use of those, with berries and perhaps by having them both in some coffee cold or hot, we may add from 100 to 200 more food units.

Instead of radishes we may serve a salad, and if with oil, we must remember that no food has more food units than olive oil. To say that we serve a salad thus might shock some people, who eat relishes and so-called fruit cocktails (ridiculous name for a fruit mixture) in this place and feel most conventional. If we want to call it fruit cocktail and eat it at this place in the menu, we must count the sugar, which has over 100 calories per ounce. The food units in most fruits, and in such things as radishes and celery, are practically negligible.

One cup of most kinds of macaroni dry yields about 200 calories. Cook it in one cup of water over a bit of fire, as you do Japanese rice, and you waste not one calorie or food unit.

Make a white sauce of two scant tablespoons of butter (200 calories), same of flour (56 calories), and one cup of milk (160 and up). When this is cooked add two ounces of grated cheese (about 250 calories) and stir until smooth. Add very little salt. The cheese makes it superfluous, but a little nutmeg is good. Put the macaroni in this with any small amount of water, that there may be around it, and cook together five minutes, or until blended.

French Table at Brownleigh Club for Red Cross Aids

THE people who are expecting to sail to France as soon as their Red Cross education is completed, and who are wondering how they will ask for a ticket or count their change in the new language, will have a chance to prepare for all this at the French table which is to be started at the Brownleigh club, 16 North Wabash avenue, under the direction of Mme. Alice Ouzilet de la Ruelle. Mme. de la Ruelle has been lecturing in Chicago for several weeks on the manner of preparing food in war time, having just come over from France to investigate industrial conditions among our women workers as well as to give lectures.

French will be spoken at the tables throughout the evening, and a number of the French colony in Chicago, including the consul, intend to dine at the Brownleigh club, where these dinners will be served every evening during the summer, beginning Monday evening, July 16. The profits are to go "to the purchase of an ambulance to be sent to the French front.

Mr. Scott Durand of Lake Forest, who is chairman of the conference committee of the midwestern branch of the Food's National Farm and Garden association, will preside this afternoon at 4 o'clock at a meeting to be held in the conference room of the Art institute. The purpose of the gathering is to discuss means of sending garden supplies from the country to the city, and to consider the kind of containers which may best be used. Many of the members of the association are fashionable women of Lake Forest and other north shore suburbs, who wish to ship vegetables and fruits grown in their gardens directly to people in the city, either to those in charitable institutions or hospitals or to special customers.

The meetings of the branch are to be held on the first Saturday of each month at the Art institute. All those who have garden products to dispose of are invited to come.

A little boy baby who was inspired with a patriotic spirit is a new arrival in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Davis Rowe of 190 East Chestnut street, having arrived on Independence day.

Capt. and Mrs. Arthur Read Christie, whose wedding took place last Saturday, have gone to the aviation field at Dayton, O., where Capt. Christie is stationed. The couple spent their honeymoon in Chicago because of the war duty of the captain. Mr. and Mrs. Elrad P. Russell, Mrs. Christie's parents, and their daughter, Doris, will spend the summer at Harbor Point, Mich.

Among the men from Chicago society who will go to the second reserve officers' training camp, which will start on Aug. 27 at Leon Springs, Tex., are Jesse Harding, Thomas Chalmers, Joseph T. Bowen Jr., Wallace F. Kirk, Robert A. Gardner, Paul B. Gardner, Springer Brooks, and Harold Scott.

A mixed foursome for the benefit of the Navy league will be played on July 21 at Onwentsia club, in which the players will be Miss Elaine Rosenthal, Miss Alex Starling of Atlanta, Ga., a champion golf holder; "Chick" Evans and Robert Gardner. Members of the country club of the city are receiving two tickets apiece, and the general public will be given the opportunity to purchase tickets.

Mrs. Warren Gorrell and family have gone to the H-F Bar ranch in Wyoming to stay until Oct. 1.

Mr. and Mrs. Harold Cushman Gifford, who have been at Virginia Hot Springs on their honeymoon, will return to Chicago about July 15. Mrs. Gifford was Miss Elinor Byrne.

Mrs. Albert C. Frost and Miss Aerielle Frost of the Virginia hotel expect to visit Mrs. Frost's daughter, Mrs. Joseph Fraser of Cleveland, after which Mrs. Frost will go to Lakeville, Conn., to visit her son, Albert, who is taking a summer course in agriculture there.

Mr. and Mrs. Loring W. Coleman, the latter formerly Miss Christine Snelling of Boston, expect to move into an apartment at 180 East Chicago in the fall. They are at present in the home of Mr. Coleman's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph G. Coleman, of 712 Rush street, who are in California for the summer.

A benefit card party and tea will be given for the day nursery maintained by the members of the National Park Seminary Alumnae association of Chicago at the Parkway hotel on Tuesday. The nursery is located at 239 West Twenty-fourth street, and cares for about 200 little children every month. Among those to be in charge of the nursery are Mrs. Thomas Hennesage, Mrs. Harold A. Gavin, Miss Lyle Jordan, Mrs. Edwin Karstrom, and Miss Karine Hansen.

The time for the weekly informal dances of the Country club of Evanston has been changed from Friday evening to Saturday evening. The change has been made because of the desire to make it possible for the club members and their friends who are at Fort Sheridan and Great Lakes to attend the dances during the summer. Sons and daughters of members may attend the dances this evening and on Saturday evening, July 21, and members are privileged to entertain additional guests.

MARRIAGES

The marriage of Miss Doris MacNeal, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Arthur MacNeal of Berwyn, to Harold T. Moore will be celebrated this evening at the Berwyn Baptist church. Miss Margaret Moore of Chicago will be maid of honor and the four bridesmaids will be Miss Louise MacNeal and Miss Florence MacNeal, sisters of the bride; Miss Mildred Kolb of Battle Creek, Mich., and Miss Luella Dean of Hinsdale. James H. Moore, father of the bridegroom, will be the best man and the ushers will be Kenneth MacNeal, Lawrence McGregor, Charles Grimes, and Lyndon Leach. Little Robert MacNeal and Betty Marquis will scatter flowers. A reception at the home of the bride's parents will follow the ceremony.

Miss Helen Mary Weldon, daughter of Mrs. John Weldon of 1132 Loyola avenue, will be married this evening to Bradley Sayre Carr of Detroit, Mich. Miss Pauline Carr, sister of the groom, will be bridesmaid, and Mrs. Leo Carter De Tray, sister of the bride, will be matron of honor. Howard Rost will be the best man.

Miss Shirley Frances Brown, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry P. Brown, will be married on July 14 to Ross Daniels.

Mrs. Eva Luce of 824 Leland avenue announces the marriage of her daughter, Helen Maris, to Lowell D. Ranous. The couple will be at home at 1204 Rosemont avenue.

Miss Evelyn Guthrie, daughter of Mrs. J. B. Guthrie, 1745 Orrington avenue, Evanston, and the late Dr. J. B. Guthrie, a prominent Evanston physician, will be married tonight (Saturday) in Toronto, Canada, to Lieut. Stewart Jarvis of the Canadian army. Lieut. Jarvis recently returned to Canada on furlough from the French front. Miss Carolyn Guthrie, sister of the prospective bride, will be maid of honor. Miss Guthrie was graduated from Northwestern university in 1916.

Women Warned Against Ignoring Calories in Food

THE Chicago branch of the Home Economics association united with the woman's committee, U. S. D., yesterday for a conservation discussion at the School of Domestic Science in the Tower building. Experts on dietetics from all over the state were present, as well as a large and interested audience from all the women's organizations.

Mrs. Lyndon Evans, president of the school, freed her mind on the subject of feminine indifference to the subject of calories.

"There is a curious dislike among housekeepers," said Mrs. Evans, "for the subject of calories, only exceeded by their dislike of proteins. Such knowledge is the multiplication table of a good housekeeper and we must overcome our prejudices. Don't be like one woman who said, 'I never eat calories; they give me indigestion.'"

Mrs. Evans urged the women to take more seriously the request of the government for food conservation. "It is not personal economy that we are concerned with," she told them. "Spend all the money you want to on the table for the nourishment of your family, but don't spend it for the foods which our government has asked us not to use. Mr. Hoover's call is being taken too quietly. If we cannot fall into line we are not worthy of the men we are sending to the front."

Miss Ruth Wheeler of the department of household science of the University of Illinois urged the need for accurate information among those who lecture on the subject of conservation.

A need for the conservation of wool was urged by Miss Gertrude Van Hoosen of the University of Chicago, who advocated doing away with fickle fashion.

"Darning stockings is not the fundamental issue," she declared. "Our government needs 800,000,000 pounds of wool. We must save wool in large quantities as well as small. Buy suits which you can wear four or five years. Do away with fashion. The American woman has a uniform in a good tailor suit of simple lines and conservative style. This could last for several years if it were not for fashions changing."

Mrs. Cecil Baker of the conservation department of the woman's committee announced that a call had come for the women to do some demonstration work along conservation lines on the municipal pier. Plans will be developed later.

At the close of the meeting it was voted to send telegrams to President Wilson, Mr. Hoover, and each of the Illinois senators urging the passage of the food control bill. Mrs. Frank Page of the Lucy Fowler school presided.

The new tri-weekly classes in home care opened yesterday at the Red Cross "university" in the Tower building. Miss Ursula Noyes stated that the classes had been organized to meet this frequently because of the large number of southern women who make Chicago their summer resort and who are enthusiastic students of the Red Cross.

Master Artists' Work Hung in Art Institute

BY LOUISE JAMES BARGELT.

FIVE loan collections were hung at the Art institute yesterday, and the increasing number of summer visitors the museum is attracting will find an added pleasure in their visits to the institute from now on. These collections are the Cyrus McCormick collection, the Edward B. Butler collection, the Martin Ryerson collection, the Charles Hutchinson collection, and the exhibition of pastels by McClure Hamilton, most of them in the possession of Mrs. E. H. Harriman.

Visitors to the institute this afternoon and evening and tomorrow should not miss these special exhibits, as they contain paintings by the master artists of the world. Such names as Corot, Daubigny, Sargent, Hogarth, Henner, Wyant, Inness, Van Marcke, Francois Hals, Diaz, Baron Leys, Netscher, and Lawrence are to be seen on the canvases hanging in the various galleries which contain the collections.

The McCormick exhibition occupies the largest gallery of the new annex, and there one sees paintings by Redfield and Metcalf, Antonio Bazzi and Ziem, Owen, Wyant, and Daucher.

Of interest to Chicagoans in particular is the gift which the Friends of American Art have just made the institute. It is a painting by John H. Twachtman, "Snow Bound," and is the only painting by this artist that the institute owns. It was only hung in the galleries of the Friends of American Art yesterday.

Call for Volunteers

Miss Isabella Holt and Miss Margaret Bentley are enthusiastic workers in the home charities department of the woman's committee of the council of national defense. Miss Holt drew a poster to advertise the need of home charities. Here are services that women can render at once. Our home charities need kindergartners, social workers, club leaders for settlements, teachers of cooking, and playground activities in vacation schools. The board of education has promised to open fifteen schools in crowded sections if volunteer teachers can be found. Volunteer teachers for knitting and fancy work in convalescent and old people's homes, visiting housekeepers, volunteers for darning and mending at hospitals and asylums all are much needed. If you can do any of these things, apply to Mrs. Dunlap Smith at 80 East Madison street.

Community "Sing" on Pier.

Community singing under the auspices of the Civic Music association will begin at the Municipal pier tomorrow evening at 8 o'clock. The singing will be conducted by Irving Jones and the Civic orchestra is under the direction of Wilhelmj Montelius. "Sings" will be conducted at the pier Sunday evenings during the summer.

Death of Herbert Kelcey, Veteran Actor, Expected

New York, July 6.—[Special.]—The condition of Herbert Kelcey, the actor, who has been ill at his summer home at Bayport, L. I., was reported tonight as so desperate that his death is expected at any moment. With Effie Shannon, he has long been a familiar figure on the American stage, playing in "Sherlock Holmes" and "The Thief," and making his last appearance with her in "Pollyanna." He is 62 years old.

Lutheran Unification Plan.

Atlantic City, N. J., July 6.—The plan for the unification of the three great branches of the Lutheran church into the United Lutheran Church in America was recommended by the committee on constitutional revision of the general council of the Lutheran church in North America at the close of a two day debate here tonight. This action by one of the most important bodies of the largest of the three branches paves the way for the amalgamation in Philadelphia next October, when the quadrennial of the reformation will be celebrated.

SHE FELL ASLEEP IN A PEDDLER'S CART 4 YEARS AGO

When Mary's Mother Is Well Again They Will Be Reunited.

One of the happiest persons at THE TRIBUNE hospital at Algonquin is a Lithuanian mother who arrived there, sick yet hopeful, yesterday with her 4 year old son, Nickie. After years of hardship and sickness and sorrow, her ship is coming into port, and she wants to be strong and well when it comes.

Four years ago Nickie's father died. Then the mother went to work in a laundry until two children became ill with typhoid and two more with pneumonia. Another child, Mary, who was the oldest, disappeared one day. Two of the sick children died. Then Nickie was born.

How Mary Disappeared.

The child had left home to gather firewood along the railroad tracks. Tired out with her work, she crawled into the covered wagon of a peddler to rest and fell asleep. When she awoke the peddler had driven miles into the country and shortly after he turned Mary over to a home in Milwaukee.

In the four years she has been away from home Mary, who now has almost finished a course in dressmaking, has forgotten her native tongue, Lithuanian. Her mother never has learned English. From Mrs. Laura J. Collar, superintendent of the hospital, she is learning to say "love" and "my baby" and "my little Mary." In Milwaukee Mary is trying to recall some of her Lithuanian.

Family to Be Reunited.

As soon as the mother has been at Algonquin long enough to regain her strength she will be taken to Milwaukee to see her child. Though they may not be able to talk to each other, they will understand.

The United Charities has secured a "mother's pension" for the family and they have been moved from a two room basement flat to a clean, light second story home, where Mary is to join them.

If you believe in bringing happiness and health to such as these mail your check to THE TRIBUNE Hospital Fund, care of THE TRIBUNE, and some mother who is sick and poor will be given rest and comfort.

ADVENTURER

Boy of Five, "Too Little" to Play With Brother, Carves Himself a Path to Equality.

Joe Kasian

THEY will be fortunate children that Joe Kasian, 5 years old, admits to his circle of playmates.

For is he not a traveler of the wide spaces? Has he not roamed at will, even as an adventurer? Has he not played a man's part?

Until yesterday Joe was "too little." That cut. His cousin Henry affected a superior pose, an elderly consciousness withal, and patronized Joe. Cousin Henry, who is 8, and Joe's sisters, who are some younger than that, bade Joe be off to his trundle bed while they pursued more sophisticated employments.

"You're too little, Joe," said Henry. "You can't play with us."

And he did. He softly closed the back door of his home at 1116 Ashland avenue and set off. He found the world a pleasing prospect; there were new streets to pursue whenever one reached a corner, the windows were good to look at, and there were magnificent distances to behold and negotiate. As he walked along he debated the matter of a destination, thinking now of Asia, now of Bagdad, now of Peru, and also of the glittering rajahs of India. All these places were perfectly familiar to him as he saw them through the pages of his story books. The only thing that worried him was the lack of a magic carpet or a lamp to rub.

In the midst of this meditation he sat down on a tuft of grass in lieu of a magic rug, and, lacking Aladdin's potent lamp, he rubbed his own, which were now full of sand and loath to remain open. It was thus in a prairie at 9:30 o'clock near Park Ridge he was found.

Emil Scherer, a farmer, took him home. Joe sleepily related his trials with the giants he had met, the pirates he had fought, the goblins he had vanquished. Then he slept. In the morning he returned from fairyland with a bump, finding himself on a white and downy pillow. His father, Walter Kasian, came for him. And the first thing Joe heard when he reached home was the voice of Cousin Henry saying:

"O, won't you come out and play?"

GERMANS KNOW WAR IS WAR AND FIGHT THAT WAY

That's Why, with Lesser Resources, They Are Still Unlicked.

BY COL. HENRY J. REILLY.

The war started with Germany and Austria-Hungary opposed by Great Britain, Belgium, France, Montenegro, Serbia, and Russia. Later Turkey and Bulgaria joined the enemy and Japan, Italy, Portugal, and Roumania our allies. Thus from the beginning the total of population has been overwhelmingly in favor the entente.

The British navy at the beginning of the war was vastly superior to the German one with respect to total tonnage, total gun power, and totals of each class of ship. In all these things the French navy was not very far behind that of Germany.

The Italian navy was superior to the Austro-Hungarian in all these particulars. The Japanese navy was also superior to that of Austria-Hungary, as was the Russian to that of Turkey.

Allies Superior in Many Ways.

The command of the sea which the allied superiority gave was promptly used to deny to the enemy the use of any resources other than those of his home country, and at the same time made the world's resources available to the entente.

Great Britain and France were the two leading financial countries of the world. This same control of the sea plus our sympathy with the allies made our financial resources available to them and practically out of reach of the enemy.

Thus, in man power, in sea power, in every material resource, including finance, our allies started the war overwhelmingly superior to the enemy. The review which has been made of the various campaigns shows that while the enemy has failed decisively to defeat any of our principal allies, he has steadily increased the total amount of territory belonging to them in his possession; succeeded in joining the territory occupied by him with that of his allies in the Balkans, thus obtaining a good many badly needed supplies, and that though giving up a certain amount of territory held in France he has succeeded this last spring in bringing to a stop the British and French offensives.

"Numbers Alone Crush."

In tracing the reasons for this it is seen that the enemy started the war with the tremendous advantage of having thoroughly studied the art of war in all its phases and prepared in time of peace to act when war came in accordance with the principles shown to be correct.

The fact that millions of civilians, unless trained, properly equipped, and properly led, do not make an army, was well understood. Every effort was made to put a very large part of the total enemy man power in the field immediately so as to get the tremendous advantage from the crushing blows which numbers alone can give.

They fully understood the advantage of acting without loss of time, and, having prepared accordingly, were able to take advantage of situations as they arose instead of having to let opportunities pass because lacking a sufficient number of troops.

Prepared for Trench War.

Their thorough study of war had enabled them to foresee trench warfare on a large scale, with the result that they were fully prepared for it. This same study enabled them to foresee that guns heavy enough to smash modern fortifications could be brought into the field, with the result that they were prepared to do so from the first days of the war.

Their policy throughout has been governed by military and not by diplomatic, political, or any other civilian consideration, with the result that they have always gained the maximum effect from the troops and guns used.

They have had interior lines of communication. Before the war they thoroughly understood the value of these lines and made such preparations that since the war began they have been able to take full advantage of them.

Due to their lack of proper preparation prior to the war, to their attempts to have civilian minds direct their operations, to their geographical position and failure to understand and prepare their communication on land in time of peace, our allies have violated all these fundamental principles of war more than once.

The real reason the central powers have not yet been crushed is because they have waged war according to war principles and our allies have not. The great lesson for us is to learn what the governing principles of war are and act accordingly, with the utmost fearlessness and determination.

ICE STRIKE

STATIONARY engineers employed in all the ice manufacturing plants of the city will go on strike Monday morning. Ice making in a number of establishments will be tied up, according to Albert Peterson, president of the joint executive board of the International Union of Steam and Operating Engineers.

"The strike will be the result of the refusal of the ice companies to grant a 15 per cent increase," Peterson said.

Cleaning Bedsprings with Gasoline Kills Woman

Mrs. Agnes Armen of 482 East Ninety-second street, was fatally burned yesterday afternoon when her clothing became ignited while she was cleaning bedsprings with gasoline in a vacant lot.

Wells Street Bridge to Be Closed Parts of 4 Days

The Wells street bridge will be closed to all traffic for several hours each day from Sunday to Wednesday, inclusive, to permit the construction of a cofferdam.

Interest will be paid from July 1st on deposits made up to and including the 12th of the month.

Every person who earns money should make it a point to set aside a fixed amount weekly or monthly—no matter how small the beginning or the regular deposit—if he wishes to protect himself or become independent.

Now is a good time at this interest period to open an account—no matter whether the initial deposit be large or small.

WIFE'S LETTER TO HUSBAND WINS DECREE FOR HIM

A letter that Mrs. Clara A. Massman wrote to her husband, Charles W. Massman, 1247 Bernice avenue, was the chief exhibit in Massman's suit for divorce yesterday. She ran away once before with another man, the husband says, but she came back for another try and it didn't work. She left again. Massman introduced the letter into the evidence before Judge Thomson. It reads:

"Charlie: I simply cannot stand the grind any longer. No one cares for me any more, not even our daughter, Marguerite. Even she shows it plain enough. She won't look at me and climbs all over you and loves you all the time. Nor do you love me, or you would not let me wear clothes and shoes that are picked out of the garbage. I am sick trying to run a house on $1 a day. A hired girl has a better time than I do. I suppose my life is blackened now, but I can't help it. Even our daughter's mind is poisoned against me. I couldn't stand it longer.

"And your habit of reading aloud about all the divorce cases is one of the big reasons. But I don't expect to live long, so why worry? Good-by forever.

"CLARA."

Judge Thomson granted Massman a decree.

Condition of Henry Field Is Reported Satisfactory

New York, July 6.—Henry Field, grandson of the late Marshall Field, is in the Presbyterian hospital here recovering from an operation for an abscess of the lung. His condition was reported satisfactory tonight.

GUST. HOFFMAN, CRIPPLES' FRIEND, DIES OF INJURIES

Gustav A. Hoffman, 75 years old, of 2325 Oriole avenue, who was "grandpa" to the crippled children, is dead. He was fatally injured in a street car accident. For many years "Grandpa" Hoffman had been employed by the board of education to help the crippled children into and from the automobile truck used in conveying them to the Fallon and Spaulding schools for crippled children. To many children he was a friend and counselor.

Several days ago he was struck by a Chicago avenue street car at Lake and Fifth avenue, and he died yesterday in the Passavant hospital of a skull fracture.

"Grandpa" Hoffman was once a noted singer and compatriot of Jules Lombard, the civil war singer.

COUNCIL QUITS WITHOUT A WORD 'AGIN' THE MAYOR

That dreadful malady "cold feet" developed in the city council yesterday afternoon, and it adjourned for the summer after dodging consideration of the resolution censuring Mayor Thompson for his recent gavel rule adjournment of the meeting, when council confirmation of the school board appointees was reconsidered.

Ald. Otto Kerner, chairman of the judiciary committee, called up the censure resolution after the council had been in session for almost five continuous hours. "I move we adjourn," Ald. Kuns had offered before this, but the mayor announced that Kerner remained to be reckoned.

Bedlam Ensues.

At this point books were slammed on the desks and Kerner was barely able to make himself heard above the noise. A few preliminary matters from his committee were disposed of, but when he finally reached the censure resolution the turmoil had become a bedlam.

"I move we adjourn," then cried Ald. James B. Bowler, rising from his seat.

The mayor, who had remained seated up to this time, arose and began to pace back and forth on the rostrum.

The Vote on Adjournment.

The of the reasons adduced for the council's change of heart toward the mayor was that he would accompany the aldermen to Milwaukee today, and it wouldn't look right for them to have a censured mayor in their midst. Although the resolution has been sidetracked, it will again come before the council at its first meeting in the fall, set yesterday for Oct. 1.

Phone Row Ended?

The council, by a vote of 47 to 17, passed the ordinance allowing the automatic telephone system to junk its property in return for $200,000 compensation to the city. Its action yesterday is believed to have ended the controversy that has existed for years between the city and the Chicago Tunnel company. There was a stiff fight against the measure, Ald. Link being the first to attack. He introduced an amendment providing for acceptance of the $200,000 in the event the company would share 50 per cent of its profit on the sale if the latter brought more than $400,000. Ald. Thomas J. Lynch moved to table this amendment, and the council concurred by 48 to 15.

Several amendments, prepared jointly by Ald. Lynch and Walker, were made to strengthen the measure, but some of the members of the council remained dissatisfied. Ald. A. A. McCormick moved that it be returned to the committee for further consideration.

"Here is an ordinance," he said, "that has been drawn by Schuyler & Weinfeld, former partners of Corporation Counsel Ettelson. The committee should employ competent counsel to examine it. The amendments introduced today have not even been before the committee."

Roll Call on Measure.

His motion was lost, though, and Ald. Lynch then asked for passage of the measure. The roll call follows:

FOR.

Busch,	Kendall,	Hoderlein,

An ordinance allowing retail stores to sell goods in subbasements was passed by a vote of 41 to 22. The measure was before the council twice before, but was defeated.

Film Ordinance Referred.

A proposed ordinance from John C. McDonnell, chief of the bureau of fire prevention, providing for the exclusion of film exchanges and firms handling motion picture films from the downtown district was referred to the committee on buildings. The fire in the Pathé exchange in the Consumers building last Sunday morning caused Chief McDonnell to prepare the measure.

Ald. Byrne attempted to suspend the rules for consideration of a resolution urging the dismissal of Walter L. Fisher as special counsel for the local transportation committee, but he was unsuccessful. The council denied a suspension of the rules by 36 nays to 26 yeas.

Censor Curb Proposed.

Ald. Steffen introduced an ordinance intended to curb the censorship power of Second Deputy Superintendent Funkhouser over moving picture films, and it was referred to the judiciary committee. The measure provides the chief of police shall refuse issuance of a permit if a picture is ruled "immoral or obscene" by a majority of a board of ten censors, none of whom shall be an official. This would let the mayor out.

The local transportation committee will receive a resolution presented by Ald. Schwartz requesting information from the state's attorney as to the present status of quo warranto proceedings against the Union and south side elevated railway companies.

By unanimous vote the council ordered collection of taxes for the municipal pension fund and for playground purposes. The pension fund will receive $141,836.47 and $106,172 will be used for playground improvements. Mayor Thompson transmitted to the aldermen a telegram from Baron Moncheur, head of the Belgian commission, thanking Chicago for the courtesies extended the visitors when they were here.

COUNCIL

What the Aldermen Did Before They Adjourned for Summer.

Passed by a vote of 47 to 17 the ordinance enabling the automatic telephone system to dispose of its material upon payment of $200,000 compensation to the city at the time of sale.

Fixed Oct. 1 as the date of its next meeting.

FOURTH CRUISE OF PARSON NEAR DIVORCE REEFS

The last episode of the fourth chapter of the romances and ventures in that large ocean of matrimony of the former Rev. and now the Mr. Francis L. Newcomb, began yesterday when Mrs. Martha Newcomb of Oak Park filed suit for divorce.

There is a little son, Wesley Newcomb, 7 years old, the bill states, and asks that Mrs. Newcomb be given the custody of the child.

No mention is made of Miss Louise Musek of 2706 Normal avenue, the pretty little 19 year old girl the former minister instructed in cornet playing.

Newcomb's colorful career in matrimony started way back in Stanberry, Mo., when he was a youth. There he married a young woman whose parents objected. They were divorced a few months later.

The next chapter was laid in Bloomington. There the minister met a church worker and they lived happily for three years. But she didn't care for the children. He got a divorce this time.

The third affair took place in San Francisco. It was a young widow this time, but along came a divorce.

MAYOR FAILS TO VETO GAS AND HARBOR LAWS

The new gas rate ordinance became a law yesterday without the signature of Mayor Thompson. It was passed by the city council June 25, and by it gas rates will be reduced from 80 to 70 cents a thousand cubic feet in excess of the first 350 cubic feet. Consumers will also receive from 25 to 50 per cent of the company's profits when they are over $4,000,000 annually.

On the basis of the average monthly bill, estimated at $2, a saving of 20 cents will be effected by the new ordinance.

Thirteen ordinances granting certain submerged lands in Lake Calumet for the riparian rights of property owners also became laws yesterday minus the mayor's signature. This is the first direct step in the proposal to make Lake Calumet one of the great inland harbors of the country.

REPORTER TRIED HARD, BUT YOU'LL HAVE TO GUESS

Mebbe Howard Capper and Frances Callan Were Married.

Last evening a man called THE TRIBUNE and said:

"Thought you might be interested to learn that Howard Capper and Miss Frances Callan were married tonight. Even the Callans didn't know about it until it was all over. They went to the hotel after the wedding."

A few moments later Miss Callan's mother, Mrs. M. R. Callan, who lives at the Edgewater Beach, was reached on the telephone. The conversation follows:

"Tell us about the wedding of your daughter to Mr. Capper."

All a Joke.

"It's all a joke."

"Aren't they married?"

"Nothing to it at all. Don't you write a story about that."

"Are they engaged?"

"No."

"Are they together tonight?"

"I don't think they are."

Hotel Clerk Diplomatic.

The hotel clerk was reached next.

"Are Howard Capper and wife stopping there?" was asked.

But a moment later Mr. Capper was reached on the telephone at the hotel.

"We have the report that you were married to Miss Callan. Is it true?" he was asked.

"Yes."

"O, I can't tell you the details," shortly.

"Was it a surprise to your friends?"

"Yes," and the receiver banged.

Nothing Like That.

With more persistence than politeness, the reporter sought to be connected with Mr. Capper again. A woman's voice answered.

"Who performed the ceremony?"

"Wasn't there any wedding?"

"Nothing like that."

"Is this Miss Callan?"

"Yes."

"Well, didn't you——?

Mr. Capper returned to the telephone.

"I wish you wouldn't bother us," he said. "We're not going to hand you anything and what you don't know won't hurt you. So cut it out."

Married in the City Hall.

Shortly after midnight another voice came over the wire to THE TRIBUNE office.

"Did you want to know something about the Capper wedding?"

"Yes."

"Well, they were married, all right."

"Who are you?"

"Never mind that. They were married in the city hall and leave town tomorrow. Get her name right. It's C-a-l-l-a-n."

"Was Mrs. Callan present."

"No. And she was peevish when she found it out. Goodby."

MRS. MATLACK TAKES CASE UP TO GREGORY

St. Louis, Mo., July 6.—[Special.]—Mrs. Sarah B. Matlack of Webster Groves today mailed registered letters to United States Attorney General Gregory and Senator Stone, in which she complains that District Attorney Oliver here refuses to attach sufficient weight to representations she made to him concerning her wealthy husband and Mrs. Estelle Metzer Hameley, his "soul mate."

"Mr. Oliver," recites the letter, "declined to take any action in the case whatsoever, explaining that Mrs. Hameley had no complaint and that she consented freely to accompany my husband on interstate expeditions.

"Is a woman who is instrumental in breaking up a home to be excused simply because she commits this wrong deliberately and intentionally?"

CITY HALL WINS COURT SKIRMISH ON SCHOOL ISSUE

Ettelson Will Move to End Quo Warranto Action.

In the first court skirmish between the old and the new board of education the Thompson organization was victorious yesterday. Judge Charles M. Walker granted Corporation Counsel Samuel A. Ettelson leave to file a motion to throw out the quo warranto proceedings which have been started by the old board.

The motion will be argued Monday morning and the hearing is expected to take several days. It may be a week before the argument on the quo warranto case itself is begun in case the old board is victorious in the matter of the corporation counsel's motion. Angus Roy Shannon, attorney for the old board and one of the complainants in the action, said it was a move by the Thompson forces to delay a hearing on the merits of the case until the courts adjourn for the summer, July 14.

A Technical Point.

Corporation Counsel Ettelson's contention is that Judge Walker granted leave to file the quo warranto proceedings in the absence of the defendants, who are the members and officials of the new board, and contended that such leave was improper.

More secrecy shrouded the acts of the new school board yesterday. Three committee meetings were held, all of them behind closed doors. The so-called finance committee, appointed to make an investigation of finances, sites, and leases, has previously met in the open, but it followed the lead of the other school committees by getting behind locked doors.

Explanation Delayed.

A statement from Albert H. Severinghaus, the chairman, was promised, but as the session closed the issuance of the statement was postponed until next week. Among the things discussed was the insurance on the Chicago Parental school. It was awarded originally by the officials of the board at a price $1,000 over that of bids secured by Jacob M. Loeb. Reports from the session were to the effect that some harsh words were spoken of Mr. Loeb, but details could not be learned.

Morton MacCormac was one of the witnesses. He told of his work as head of the bureau of economy before being discharged by the old board, and said that he had saved thousands of dollars to the school board. A meeting of the rules committee was held in the president's office, but it was stated no rules were prepared.

Dr. Sadie B. Adair's committee to investigate the cases of the sixty-eight teachers dropped last June met in the office of Supt. Shoop, but no reporters were permitted and no statement of the acts was given out.

BEG YOUR PARDON!

THE TRIBUNE'S roster of Chicago members appointed to serve on the draft-exemption boards, printed June 27, named, as the medical man of Division 51, E. D. Howland, giving his address as 843 Walton avenue. Dr. Howland's address is 843 Belden avenue.

The error was in the official list furnished to THE TRIBUNE.

Cinderella, in the issue of June 6, told of a book-room which has been added to Mellody Farm, the J. Ogden Armour place at Lake Forest. She described it as of old-Italian make, and as having been brought from southern Italy by Elsie de Wolfe.

William Baumgarten & Co. write to say that the room is old-English; that it was imported by them, and not by Miss De Wolfe; and that they rearranged and installed it at Mellody Farm from plans made by Arthur Heun.

A LITTLE BROKEN CHINA IN WAKE OF MRS. NEUBERT

She who formerly was the "Baroness" Eugenie Baukal and is now Mrs. Neubert, wife of Dr. W. L. Neubert of Lake Forest, returned yesterday afternoon to the home she had barricaded against her husband prior to departing at 8 o'clock in the morning.

She heard that Dr. Neubert, whom she proposes to sue because he called the Kaiser a crook, was in the house. So she asked police protection. A policeman accompanied her while she packed her things. The policeman was asked if there were any incidents.

"A little broken china is all," he said.

Ten Cent Bananas Bring Trouble by Dollars' Worth

Albert Holcomb of 800 Wabash avenue, feeling a bit peckish, bought himself a dime's worth of bananas in a paper bag last night at Clark and Division streets. He bit into one. It was rotten. Furious, he gave the bag a mighty heave. Just then Mario Scarano of 1237 Fifty-first avenue, Cicero, was passing in an automobile. The bag of bananas crashed through his windshield and whanged him abaft the jaw. Holcomb was arrested.

AUTO THIEF GETS CAR AS 50 POLICE START ROUNDUP

While a special detail of fifty policemen patrolled the downtown district yesterday, eyes peeled for automobile thieves, an impudent rascal hopped into a big Cole 8 belonging to Arthur Berg, 419 Oakwood boulevard, and rode merrily away.

Be it said to the credit of the policemen, the thievery has dwindled much.

For the twenty-four hours ending last midnight only six cars were reported stolen. This, it was said, was the smallest number of thefts for one day in several years. The average number of cars reported stolen is about fifteen. A member of the vehicle bureau offers this threat:

This is explained as meaning that there is to be a round-up of cars with "jimmied" numbers under the new law which went into effect July 1. This makes it a misdemeanor to have in one's possession a bar bearing a tampered number, no matter how honestly it may have been secured.

SHE SUES HOTEL LA SALLE FOR $25,000; WHY?

A precipe in a $25,000 damage suit was filed yesterday in the Circuit court by Mrs. Marguerite M. Curtis of 820 Sunnyside avenue against the Hotel La Salle company. Attorney Leslie H. Whipp, who represents the complainant, refused to discuss the matter.

"I don't know," said E. J. Stevens, manager of the hotel. "I think she likes to see her name in print, though."

"I can't tell you about it this evening," said Mrs. Curtis, just before she hung up the receiver.

Mrs. Curtis figured in a lawsuit last year, when she was sued by Mrs. Jennie Schleuter of 4459 Beacon street, who said Mrs. Curtis' dog, Nancy Lee, bit her on the wrist.

M'Govern 'Not Guilty' of Running Disorderly House

John McGovern, one of the proprietors of McGovern Bros.' saloon and cafe at 661 North Clark street, was found not guilty of operating a disorderly house when a jury returned a verdict in his case yesterday, after several days of heated trial.

Mayor Thompson, when informed of the result, said he would not restore the saloon license to its former owners.

HE MARRIES HIS WIFE AGAIN FOR THE BABY'S SAKE

Claude L. Chase, an expert accountant, attended his own wedding under protest yesterday. The bride was his wife, and the principal witness was Marguerite, wide eyed, on her mother's arm.

More than a year had gone by since the first marriage ceremony, two weeks after Elizabeth Gordon had obtained her divorce after only five days of married life. She had sought the divorce to marry Claude and be happy ever afterward. They were for a time. Meanwhile Marguerite came.

Chase appeared at Mrs. Julia McGuire's desk in the Court of Domestic Relations the other day to see how he could keep his baby and get rid of his wife. He wasn't legally married to her, anyhow, he explained, because they hadn't waited a year after her divorce, and he didn't wish to have the responsibility of her support any longer.

Yesterday the couple were before Judge Fry.

"Don't you wish to give your baby a name?" Chase was asked as the baby gurgled and smiled.

After the ceremony he hurried back to his job, leaving his wife to roll up the marriage certificate and go home to his mother. The wife and baby have been living at 3432 West Sixty-fifth place.

'Feed U.S. First' Advocate Tries Scheme on Alcohol

William Bayer, a gardener for Mrs. C. B. French of Lake Forest, a member of the I. W. W. and a devotee of the "Feed America First" creed, was arrested yesterday, stoutly pursuing, with a number of his friends, the "feed America" idea. They were dining on the following bill of fare:

Alcohol	1 quart
Alcohol [empties]	3 quarts
Peach brandy [going]	1 quart
Whisky [gone]	1 quart

Bayer was soundly lectured by a secret service operative for his pro-German utterances and then fined $15 by the justice of the peace and invited to leave town.

China Club Operator Fined $25 by Gemmill

Mrs. C. Bishop, owner of the Garfield Art shop, 4102 West Madison street, was fined $25 and costs yesterday by Judge Gemmill. She was charged with conducting a lottery in connection with a so-called china club.

The trial was a test case brought to determine the status of eighteen similar clubs whose owners have been arrested.

WHALEBACK JURY BLAMES TUG AND BOAT CAPTAINS

Milwaukee, Wis., July 6.—(Special.)—The jury at the inquest into the Christopher Columbus accident, in which sixteen lives were lost, returned a verdict attaching blame on the captains of the Columbus and of the tug Knight Templar, after three hours' consideration today. The verdict reads:

"They came to their deaths by the fall of a large water tank, used for a fire sprinkler system, the supports of which were struck and broken by the steamer Christopher Columbus while in the Milwaukee river. We, the jury, from the evidence submitted, believe that there was an excessive current on account of the heavy rains and that the captains of the steamer Christopher Columbus and the tug Knight Templar did not use proper precaution to avoid said accident."

Capt. Moody's Testimony.

Capt. Charles Moody, in charge of the vessel at the time, gave the principal testimony.

Capt. Moody said he had had charge of large steamers for twenty-nine years and before that he was captain of a tug in the Milwaukee harbor and is thoroughly acquainted with the Milwaukee and Manominee rivers. He had commanded the Christopher Columbus for thirteen years and this, he said, was his first serious accident.

"When we came up the river and passed through the East Water street bridge I observed that the water was very high," he said. "The current did not then cause us any trouble, however.

"Just before we were pulled away from the dock I sent the second officer to inform the captains of the Knight Templar and Welcome that the water was so high that I thought we might have difficulty in clearing the bridges and to ask them to proceed very slowly. This request was complied with."

No Orders to Tugmen.

Under questioning by District Attorney Zabel, Capt. Moody refused to say whether the captains of the tugs could not have prevented the accident. He said he gave the tugmen no orders; that he had no right to do so. He said the two tugs were in charge of the vessel and that they were responsible for getting the boat out into the lake.

STORES TO ASK: CARRY HOME ALL GOODS UNDER $5

Within a few days shoppers on State street will see this sign prominently displayed in department stores:

"In accordance with the policy of the government to eliminate waste and effect a larger measure of economy, we ask our patrons to carry all packages of merchandise under $5 in value."

This action was the result of a meeting of fifty members of the Chicago Retailers' association, presided over by the head of the association, F. W. Hardcastle of M. L. Rothschild. The suggestion was made by Charles Sommers of Klee Brothers.

It was decided that the plan of pooling delivery facilities was not desirable at this time. A great many suggestions were heard, however, as to individual methods whereby the public may be gently broken in to the old custom of taking home purchases.

One suggestion was that sales persons should not say, upon wrapping up the parcel: "Send it, madam?"

This sets in the nature of suggestion, and madam, who had every intention of carrying the parcel home herself, immediately decides it should be sent.

President Hardcastle requested all the members to send in their suggestions as how best to reduce delivery expense, and the results will be gone over at the next meeting.

SPEEDS TO LEARN CAUSE OF ARREST; ARRESTED AGAIN

Now here's what you might call tough luck. John Janawais can neither read nor write, but he can step on the gas and hit twenty-five miles in Jackson boulevard. That's what he was doing when a motorcycle policeman mailed him and gave him the little slip which invites one to drop around to the Speeders' court and tell it to the judge.

John mulled over the bit of paper for a moment, but could make nothing of it. So he threw in the clutch with the idea of overhauling the policeman, who now was sputtering off down the boulevard, to ask him what it was all about.

As he chased the policeman another caught him and he was arrested again. This time it was made clear to him.

Friends of Motorcycle Policeman Give Widow $58

M. Wasserman turned in to THE TRIBUNE last night $58, with the request that it be sent to the widow of Motorcycle Policeman John Donner, who on May 7, while attempting to arrest the occupants of an automobile for exceeding the speed limit, collided with another automobile and was killed.

Mr. Wasserman stated that he was a personal friend of the deceased officer and had raised this amount among his friends and acquaintances. The individual contributors are:

M. Wasserman, $5; Max Spiegel, $5; Ed Master, $5; Tom Chamales, $5; W. B. Casey, $1; Herman Priess, $1; Harold M. Plamondon, $5; Ernest B. Lohman, $10; A. B. Magnus, $10; Townsend Netcher, $10; Tom K. Dunbar, $5; Max Eitel, $5.

Corn futures started out with a great burst of strength yesterday, following the action of the directors of the board of trade in prohibiting further trading in July corn and fixing a settling price of $1.65, but met with a great deal of selling on the advance and reacted sharply. At the finish September corn was unchanged to ⅛c lower, while distant months showed declines of 1@1¼c. Longs in general elected to take profits on the early bulge and as prices declined many holders were forced to liquidate. Minor was a heavy seller of corn and sales by Martin and Hellman were also large. Bartlett-Frazier, Wagner, Block-Maloney, Thomson-McKinnon, and Logan & Bryan all sold corn freely and most December.

Early demand for cash corn was good, but later some of the big buyers withdrew from the market and prices at the close were off 1¼c from the top. Sales were mainly 1@3c higher than on the previous day. Shipping business here was 50,000 bu. Seaboard advises indicated that exporters were out of the market for the time being. Primary receipts were 694,000 bu, against 779,000 bu a year ago. Bradstreet's makes week's clearances 451,000 bu, against 1,005,000 bu a year ago. Argentine shipments were 779,000 bu, against 2,704,000 bu last year.

Oats Under Much Pressure.

Oats were inclined to show a little firmness at the outset, in sympathy with the bulge in corn, but developed much weakness later and closed ¾@1¼c lower, latter for July. There was further buying of July oats early in the session by houses with seaboard connections, but the demand was soon satisfied and the offerings became heavy. Commission houses in general were selling oats, and Minor was a conspicuous seller among the local element. Most of the pressure was in the way of taking profits on long lines, but there was also considerable selling for short account. Demand for cash oats did not appear to be so urgent, in fact, prices in the sample market were ½@1c lower. Export interest at the seaboard was reported as lighter.

Crop news was of a bearish character and with everything pointing to a big yield the long became timid, especially with the cash situation less bullish. Local shipping sales were 125,000 bu. Clearances for the day were 707,000 bu. Primary receipts totaled 632,000 bu, against 797,000 bu a year ago. Argentine shipments for the week were 918,000 bu.

Wheat Prices Are Higher.

Price fluctuations in wheat were quite sharp, but there was no material improvement in the volume of business; in fact, the trade is entirely of an evening up character, as no new business is being done. Urgent short covering lifted values sharply at the outset, but they reacted some later and closing figures were 2¼@3c better than previous resting spots. Crop news was generally fine. Offerings of new wheat are moderate. Clearances for the day were 360,000 bu. Week's exports from North America, as compiled by Bradstreet's, were 5,469,000 bu, against 5,817,000 bu a year ago. Argentine shipments were 188,000 bu, against 1,608,000 bu last year. Primary receipts for the day totaled 358,000 bu, against 708,000 bu a year ago.

Provisions were higher early on buying induced by the firmer hog prices and the strength in corn, but on the bulge there were free realizing sales and the market reacted sharply. Closing prices showed moderate losses all around. Hog receipts at western markets were 70,000 head, against 51,000 a year ago. Liverpool market firmer.

Rye Scarce and Firm.

Barley ruled firm. Malting was quoted $1.30@1.45 and sold $1.30@1.40; feed and mixing, quotable $1.15@1.25; and screenings, 80c@$1.00, with latter selling at 60@64c. Receipts were 16 cars.

Timothy seed was steady. September sold $8.35 and cash lots $8.50@7.00. Clover seed ruled firm. Cash quoted $13.50@17.00 and spot, prime, $18.40 nominal.

Flaxseed closed 6c lower. Cash quoted $2.64@2.69 nominal. Duluth was 5@6c, Minneapolis 9c, and Winnipeg ½c lower, respectively.

GOSSIP OF THE BOARD OF TRADE

THE high price for cash corn yesterday was $1.83½ for No. 2 yellow corn. No. 2 white sold at $1.83¼ and No. 3 corn at $1.82. Offerings were light and the general market was quoted 1@2c higher. The shutting off of the trade in July did not affect cash prices to any extent. Distillers are bidding high prices for corn in all markets. The offerings from the country are small. Local sales were 50,000 bu. Cash oats were weak and ½@1c lower. Sales of oats were 135,000 bu. Some of the local shippers said the demand for oats for domestic account was slow, but it is understood there is a fair demand for the grain for export at the seaboard and clearances continue liberal.

High winds in the northwest have prevented the crops from getting the full benefit of the showers the last week, according to the weekly report of Van Dusen-Harrington of Minneapolis. All crops are from one to two weeks late and the wheat outlook in North Dakota at present is uncertain. With the most favorable weather the state can produce only a fair crop of heat. Soaking rains and warm weather are badly needed. Late sown barley is in poor condition and much of the flax has not germinated owing to lack of moisture. Minnesota conditions are spotted but much more favorable than North Dakota. With favorable weather an average crop of wheat may be secured. Corn is late in this state and warm weather is needed to insure a crop. Crops in South Dakota are in better shape. Early sown wheat, barley, and oats are heading out with short straw in South Dakota. Corn has made good growth the last week but needs warm weather.

Profit taking in corn was on a big scale yesterday. With the advance in the September to $1.67¾ and the maximum at $1.65, longs were disposed to sell out their lines. Minor sold out a line of long September and there was selling credited to Livermore and eastern longs as well. Short covering early lifted prices sharply and there was some replacing of July lines in September and the deferred months. Commission houses took advantage of the bulge in December and May to sell out considerable corn. Sentiment as a rule was less bullish and the close was weak.

The Modern Miller said in its weekly review: "Harvesting of wheat is progressing as far north as the northern part of Kansas; yields better than expected; in extreme cases as much as 30 bu per acre and even larger. Oklahoma crop will average about normal; great improvement reported central states, and larger yields are expected than looked for a month ago. Spring wheat crop has not gone backward; conditions favorable. Crop of western Canada holds in balance and conservative men fear losses from recent frost there. Corn is backward owing to unfavorable weather."

Cash wheat prices were a little firmer relative to the futures and mills were moderate buyers. Cash sales here were 15,000 bu. No large sales of new wheat are reported and the volume of business is expected to be light until there are more definite reports from Washington in regard to the methods which are to be established in marketing and distributing the wheat.

Bradstreet's reported exports of wheat and flour from both coasts this week at 5,400,000 bu, a decrease of 3,496,000 bu. Corn exports were placed at 451,000 bu, decreasing 94,000 bu. Comparative totals follow:

	Wheat and flour.	Corn.
This week	5,400,000	451,000
Previous week	8,896,000	525,000
Last year	5,897,000	1,005,000

Argentine shipments of wheat this week decreased 264,000 bu, while corn decreased 919,000 bu; oats increased 475,000 bu, and flax decreased 32,000 bu. Comparative totals follow:

	This wk.	Last wk.	Last yr.
Wheat	183,000	447,000	1,605,000
Corn	779,000	1,698,000	2,704,000
Oats	918,000	443,000	1,210,000
Flaxseed	83,000	115,000	171,000

Better storage facilities for grain are to be provided in Australia and the warehouses will be ready by the next harvest. Serious losses have been incurred the last year on account of grain not having adequate storage room. Indian crop reports are favorable with prospects for more than the usual amount of rain.

The weekly Kansas report says corn is practically the only crop that has not been damaged yet by drought. The season for corn is late and considerable replanting has been necessary. An unusually fine crop of oats is ready to cut in the eastern third of the state, while in the west the crop is practically a failure.

Reports from the seaboard indicated neutral countries had been doing little in the way of export corn business lately owing to difficulty in obtaining letters of assurance. This is in line with previous reports to effect exports to countries still holding intercourse with Germany will be under close supervision.

Weather conditions were not unfavorable as a rule. There was rain in the central parts of the corn belt, with generally fair conditions in the southwest, but with moderate temperatures in all directions. In the northwest the conditions are said to be favorable.

Wheat	4,440,000	6,120,000	13,064,000
Corn	4,000,000	4,000,000	16,616,000

Receipts inspected yesterday: Wheat, 21 cars; corn, 119 cars; oats, 77 cars; rye, 3 cars; barley, 14 cars. Hogs estimated for today, 14,000 head.

Minneapolis wheat stocks decreased 200,000 bu for the week and oats stocks decreased 680,000 bu for the week.

Hog market at Chicago yesterday started 5@10c higher on estimated receipts of 12,000 head. Later this run was increased to 17,000 head, and the market lost most of its gain. Trade was active, with best Hogs selling at $16.05, while the bulk made $14.85@15.85. Shippers were credited with purchases of 2,500 head, and there was a good demand from all packers, only a few of the receipts being direct to local killers.

Best cattle values held without material change on receipts of 2,500 head. There was a good demand for desirable offerings and the market closed in a healthy condition. Calves met with a brisk call and were mostly 25c higher, with prime vealers at $14.75.

Sheep and lamb receipts of 4,000 head included about 1,500 direct to packers. The supply on sale was quickly absorbed at former prices and the market closed on a strong basis. Best lambs offered made $16.25, while sheep topped at $9.00 for ewes.

SUGAR.

CHICAGO, July 6.—SUGAR—Prices were quoted by the wholesale grocers: 100 lbs: granulated, $8.50; beet granulated, $8.00; extra C, $4.75; canary, $7.35.

NEW YORK, July 6.—SUGAR—While there was a little more activity noted in the raw sugar market, most of the trade were without spot options, local refiners apparently being fairly well supplied and not in the market at the present time. The day's business included 50,000 bags of Cubas, prompt and July shipment, at 7½c, cost and freight, equal to 9.30c for centrifugal, subject operations; 10,000 bags of Cubas to New Orleans, July shipment, at 5 5-16c, cost and freight, equal to 9.35c for centrifugal and 6,000 bags at 9¾c cost and freight, July delivery to New York and Philadelphia. Spot prices were nominally unchanged on the close, with refiners quoted at 9 5-16c for centrifugal and 8.45c for molasses, although holders were asking ¼c above these prices. In refined sugar quiet conditions prevailed, 25 points being cut off the leading refiners to the basis of 7.50c for fine granulated, but otherwise no changes were reported. Business was only moderate. It was reported that a leading authority estimated the increase in consumption of 10 per cent during the first six months of this year. Sales were 5,000 tons. MIDWEST PLANS STOCK INCREASE OF $30,000,000

Denver, Colo., July 6.—[Special.]—The directors of the Midwest Refining company today adopted a resolution submitting to the stockholders a proposal for the increase of the capital stock of the company from $30,000,000 to $60,000,000. This proposal will be voted upon at a special meeting of the shareholders to be held in Portland, Me., early in August.

Earnings of the company are at such a rate as warrant the expansion of its capitalization to an even larger extent than that decided upon by the directors and the declaration of a stock dividend later in the year is among the probabilities as the only means of distributing these earnings, except through extra dividends or an increase in the regular rate. Consideration has been given to the declaration of a stock dividend of 100 per cent, leaving the remaining $10,000,000 to provide new cash capital. This may be offered, either in whole or in part, in the near future to present stockholders at a point approximating par or it may be retained in the treasury to provide for future fiscal requirements.

The directors also declared the usual quarterly dividend of 2 per cent or $1 a share on the $19,830,000 of stock outstanding. This dividend is payable on Aug. 1 to stock of record July 15. It will aggregate $198,300.

SHORTS ACTIVE.

New York, July 6.—The short interest, which seems to have reached formidable proportions, indulged in further determined efforts to depress quoted values today. For a time heavy offerings of important stocks forced the list to lower levels of the present movement, the decline being aided by greater weakness in speculative issues long under critical observation.

Prices rebounded quite generally in the greatly reduced dealings of the last half of the session, many leaders finishing at net gains. In the main, however, the outcome was without significance because of the market's ultra professional character. Various factors, particularly those dealing with the question of excess profits and war taxes, again failed to restrain public interest. Labor problems and the undefined attitude of the administration toward general industry also served to check constructive operations.

Motor Stocks Heavy.

Automobile stocks furnished more than their usual quota to the day's moderate turnover, the status of that industry, according to trade authorities, being reflection in the heaviness of the better known issues, notably General Motors.

All the prominent equipments were firm to strong at times, but forfeited their gains when selling became extensive. United States Steel and kindred shares improved on covering of short contracts and Industrial Alcohol closed over five points at its best for much the same reason.

Rails Steady.

Rails showed a narrow but steady tone, responding to such support as emerged at irregular intervals. Metals were steady despite the expansion of other features, but shippings were backward or heavy on intimations of an early regulation of American vessels by the federal authorities, but rallied on the general upward tendency which marked the close.

Additional gold imports of $6,500,000 were again partially neutralized by exports of about $2,400,000 to Spain and South America. Sterling was strong and francs rallied from yesterday's low ground. Trading in bonds was irregular on diminished dealings in internationals. Liberty 3½s ranged from par to 100 5-32nds. U. S. bonds were unchanged on call.

TEXAS COMPANY TO OPERATE IN MEXICO FIELDS

New York, July 6.—[Special.]—According to reports from Tampico, Mex., the Texas company is preparing to extend its oil operations to the gulf coast fields of Mexico. It has adopted plans for development work in the different fields that will be carried into effect within the next few months.

As a result of the new pipe line law in Texas, which went into effect June 15, the Texas company has conveyed to the Texas Pipe Line company its pipe line properties owned in that state by the Texas company. The capital stock of this company will be $6,000,000, which also will be owned by the Texas company.

Resources of Chicago Banks Show Decrease

Springfield, Ill., July 6.—Resources of the almost 100 Chicago banks showed a decrease on June 21, as compared with May 3, of $18,714,290, according to the report of State Auditor Russell, issued today.

Resources on June 21, when ninety-five banks reported, amounted to $884,-100,000, and on May 2, when ninety-seven banks reported, they were $880,-814,290.

Total deposits, including "due to banks," were less by $18,008,842 on June 21 than on May 2. This was accounted for by the statement that many deposits had been removed from banks and put in Liberty loan bonds. Deposits on June 21 in Chicago amounted to $34,063,044.

Government bonds increased $4,058,515, going up from $5,676,050 on May 2 to $9,734,565. This figure does not include Liberty loan bonds to the extent of $2,135,000, listed separately.

The per cent of reserve to deposits, including "due to banks," is given as 22.15.

ON THE BROAD STREET CURB

NEW YORK, July 6.—[Special.]—Business on the Broad street curb showed an absence of unison in greater movements and stocks in the same group moved in different directions. Curtiss Aeroplane, which has been strong for some time because of war contract possibilities, was a weak feature, falling from 43 to 39½. Ohio Cities Gas, new stock, dropped from 58½ to 57¾, and Sinclair Gulf sold down to the new low record of 24. Midwest, after selling at 145, dropped to 142. Pennsylvania Kentucky, which was first traded in on the curb yesterday, was in good demand, selling at 5⅝. Federal Oil sold at 4¼ and 4⅝.

The feature of the mining group was the strength in Acme Copper, which advanced to the new high record of 1⅛. Bid Ledge sold at 2¼ and 2. Butte Copper and Zinc at 10 and 9⅞. Mason Valley at 6⅞ and 7, and Ohio Oil at 1⅝.

United Motors, which sold at a new low record of 24 yesterday, was first with trading at 25¼@25⅝. Chevrolet was weak, falling from 97 to 92.

HALL PRINTING COMPANY PLANS A LARGE ANNEX

Real Estate Transfers

Real estate transfers filed for record yesterday totaled 253, of which 191 were in the city and 62 outside, including 19 under the Torrens system. Transfers were as follows:

Rogers Park	1	Lemont	1
Lake View	14	Leyden	1

Cicero	18	Worth	1

Plans have been filed for a building to cost $900,000 to be erected by the W. F. Hall Printing company. When this structure is finished the Hall company will occupy the block bounded by Chicago avenue, Townsend street, Kingsbury, and Superior streets. Part of this block already has been built up by the company.

The new building will have a frontage of 130 feet on Townsend and Kingsbury streets by 241 feet on Chicago avenue. It will be seven stories and basement and will be connected with the old building above the first story. The two water tanks will be encased in brick walls and will appear as towers. These walls will extend to the ground. The building will be of heavy mill construction. The exterior will be of brick and Bedford stone. Glaver & Dinkelberg are the architects.

Buys Acre Tract.

Charles G. Mollan has bought a tract of a little more than sixteen acres from the Chicago Title and Trust company through W. D. Kerfoot & Co. It is understood that the price was about $5,000 an acre. The tract adjoins the Grand Trunk railway right of way on the south and lies between Fiftieth street, Rockwell street, and California avenue. Mr. Mollan has not announced his plans for the development of this property. Woodruff J. Parker represented the Title and Trust company.

Edward A. Cudahy, president of the Cudahy Packing company, has just bought two residence sites in the district north of Lincoln park. One of the purchases was made from Mrs. Montgomery Ward. This property is on Wellington avenue, 150 feet east of Sheridan road, north front, 75x140 feet. The price is said to have been about $350 per foot. Edward Rosing represented Mrs. Ward and Paul Steinbrecher & Co. were agents for Mr. Cudahy.

Mr. Cudahy also bought from Mrs. Rosalie Sturges Carpenter a lot 50x140 feet, south front, on Oakdale avenue, 169 feet east of Sheridan road. It is said that $350 a foot was paid in this case also. Paul Steinbrecher & Co. were the brokers. It is reported that Mr. Cudahy will give this property to his daughter and that he will occupy the Wellington avenue place himself.

Buys West Side Residence.

Alphonso Hilliard of Dickinson, N. D., has bought from Mrs. S. A. Robbins of New York a three story building on the south side of Van Buren street, 48x101 feet, and from Mrs. A. P. Woodworth of New York the 32x101 feet adjoining, making a piece 64x101 feet, commencing 103.5 feet east of Halsted street. The board of review valuation was $21,843. W. D. Kerfoot & Co. represented the sellers. John F. Jones of E. Orris Hart & Co. acted for Mr. Hilliard.

O. W. Richardson & Co. have purchased a seven story warehouse on Racine avenue, 264 feet south of Thirty-fifth street, west front, 150x373 feet, from the trustees of the Central Manufacturing district. The purchaser gave back a trust deed to the First Trust and Savings bank covering a loan of $165,000 at 6 per cent, due June 1, 1942.

North Avenue Deal.

A tract of 60,000 square feet at the northwest corner of Hawthorn street and North avenue has been purchased by Louis Birkenstein from the Northern Trust company, trustee of the estate of William S. Johnstone. Mr. Birkenstein gave back a trust deed to the Northern Trust company for $40,000 for five years at 5 per cent. Mr. Birkenstein intends to put up a warehouse on the property at some future time.

James Maltman has given a trust deed to the Central Trust company covering a loan of $80,000 for seven years at 5½ per cent. The property is at 2600 North Halsted street, 76x124 feet, and at 805 Wrightwood avenue, 174x100 feet.

LESS HESITANCY IN BUYING SEEN BY R. G. DUN & CO.

Dun's weekly review of Chicago trade, published today by R. G. Dun & Co., says:

"Midyear activities reflect less hesitancy in the general buying and, with some recovery in seasonable lines at leading retail centers, there is enlargement of forward demands upon the prominent industries, some gain in wholesale merchandising, and distinct betterment in crops.

"Money again assumes an easier trend and although discount is firm at the recent advance no pressure appears in borrowing. The preparatory steps in anticipation of unusual movements of funds to meet July settlements of new magnitude had a good effect, and, while readjustments following the Liberty loan payments involve many depositary changes, there is assurance that a return flow of currency to this center soon will be apparent.

"Investment quiet is no more than attends the approach of the warm weather and vacations. Most all other current operations have lost none of their intensity and while there is further loss of hands by enlistments and harvest needs, iron and steel production benefits from improved methods as it exceeds former high tonnages; indeed, there is little other factory effort that is not pushed to the limit of available capacity."

Name Committee to Work Out New War Loan Plan

A committee has been appointed to represent the Chicago Clearing House association in conferences with similar committees to be appointed in other large cities of the country, which will be held for the purpose of working out a more satisfactory plan for the floating of the next government war loan. The personnel of the committee is as follows: E. K. Boisot, president of the First Trust and Savings bank, chairman; Arthur Reynolds, vice president of the Continental and Commercial National bank, and W. M. L. Fiske, resident partner of William A. Read & Co.

Hills Trying to Sell Steamers.

TACOMA, Wash., July 6.—(Special.)—The Hills are negotiating for the sale of the two turbine steamers, Great Northern and Northern Pacific. These vessels were put into service on this run when the roads established a port at Fiavel to get a share of the through traffic to San Francisco. With ships commanding high prices on account of the war, it is believed the Hill interest deemed it advisable to dispose of its steamers for this reason.

U. S. Steel to Sell Kewanee Plant to Walworth Mfg. Co.

Boston, Mass., July 6.—[Special.]—The Walworth Manufacturing company has just completed arrangements through Hayden, Stone & Co. by which it will purchase from the United States Steel corporation the Kewanee plant of one of its subsidiaries, the National Tube company. It employs 2,500 men and its product of over 27,000 gross tons of pipe fittings and valves is the second largest in the country.

Rail Net Increase.

WASHINGTON, D. C., July 6.—May reports of 130 of 186 railroads to the interstate commerce commission show an increase in net revenue of approximately $1,500,000. The decrease in earnings of eastern roads of $1,800,000 was more than offset in the total by a slight increase in southern roads' earnings and a rise of more than $3,000,000 in net revenues of the western roads.
